U. S. Troops Enter Luxemburg; New Gains for 1st Army

G. O. P. LIKELY TO GAIN HOUSE CONTROL NOV. 7

Only a Landslide Can Win Senate.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 10.—Republican gains in congress are in prospect, no matter what the outcome of the Presidential election.

A canvass of the possibilities in the election of the 79th congress on Nov. 7 indicates that the Republicans are likely to capture the handful of seats that will enable them to organize the house. Likewise they appear likely to gain seats in the senate, tho nothing short of a landslide for Gov. Dewey for President would bring them control of that body.

The Republicans now have 213 seats in the house, the Democrats 216, there being three minor party members and three vacancies. A gain of only five seats would give the Republicans on an over-all majority and thereby the speakerships and the committee chairmanships.

Needs 12 Senate Seats.

There are now 37 Republican senators, 58 Democratic and one Progressive. To control the senate the Republicans would need to gain 12 seats. Only an electoral avalanche enables a party to capture that many senate seats from the opposition.

The probability that the Republicans will carry the middle west gives reason to believe they will gain senate seats in Illinois, Indiana, and Iowa. If Gov. Dewey carries New York the Republicans are virtually sure to gain a seat in that state.

Another senate gain will probably be made in Idaho and still another in New Jersey. If Dewey should carry Missouri, Kentucky, and Oklahoma the Republicans would be likely to pick up senate seats now held by Democrats from those states.

Dewey Pauses in Chicago on His Trip West

BY HAL FOUST.

Gov. Dewey passed thru Chicago last night on the second lap of his transcontinental Presidential campaign. The Republican candidate's special train arrived at 10 p. m. from Owosso, Mich., his boyhood home where on Saturday he was given a great welcome by old friends and neighbors. Previously he had delivered his first major campaign speeches before enthusiastic crowds at Philadelphia, Pa., and Louisville, Ky.

On the train yesterday, Gov. Dewey polished a revised draft of the address he will deliver at Seattle, Wash. He retired to his private car shortly after the train reached Chicago. The train was switched over to the tracks of the North Western railroad on which it departed at 12:01 a. m. for Des Moines, Ia.

Conferences in Iowa Today.

After a day with Gov. Hickenlooper and other Iowa political and farm leaders, the Republican Presidential candidate will leave tonight for Valentine, Neb., where he will be a guest until Thursday on the ranch of Samuel R. McKelvie, former governor of Nebraska and head of the Republican national committee's Chicago office. Conferences on the ranch will include meetings with cattlemen, a delegation from South Dakota headed by Gov. Sharpe, and a group led by Gov. Griswold of Nebraska.

The campaign tour will continue with its unusual characteristic of few rear platform appearances. Dewey spends his time studying, reading, and writing with his staff of advisers aboard the train. His next scheduled speech is Sept. 18 at Seattle.

Attends Church Services.

After a demonstration of welcome in front of the city hall following the arrival of the special train in Owosso Saturday night, Gov. and Mrs. Dewey retired with his mother to her home, a two story frame white house. He had a late breakfast and then attended Christ Episcopal church where he was a member of the boys' choir as the son of the town newspaper publisher.

Movie and still camera men scampered about the spacious church lawn when the governor's car arrived with an escort of Michigan state police. The governor, carrying his hat, walked with his wife and mother thru the battery of cameras to the church door where he exchanged greetings with his mother's friends who remembered him as a lad in his teens.

Rector Welcomes Deweys.

The three Deweys sat in the center near the front. The wife was wearing a purple dress with a black velvet hat and a fox neck piece. The mother wore a navy blue dress with a small hat of the same color. Gov. Dewey wore a blue serge suit. The trained voices of the governor and his wife could be distinguished in the community singing.

The rector, the Rev. William D. Davis, a Canadian and naturalized American, announced a welcome to the Deweys in behalf of the officers of the church.

His sermon was about Jesus Christ and the Christian cross.

THE POODLE THAT JOINED THE WOLF PACK

HAIL M'ARTHUR IN BATAAN RALLY

Gov. Green Pays Tribute at Maywood Rites.

Tribute to the magnificent leadership of Gen. MacArthur and Adm. Nimitz, who are leading American forces back to Bataan on the road to Tokyo, was paid yesterday by Gov. Green at the third annual Bataan day celebration in Maywood.

Afterward, the governor unveiled an honor roll containing the names of 3,500 Maywood men and women in the army and navy, 53 of them marked with gold stars.

"Today, three years after Bataan, we are at the approaches to the Philippines, we are crushing the enemy in every encounter, and our fighting men are on the way back to Bataan," said the governor.

State Ready to Care for Heroes.

"As avenging brothers in arms, they will destroy the barbarous hordes of the rising sun. We pray to God that soon they will release those gallant soldiers held in the prison camps, and speed them back home to you."

When they return, he added, they will find that Illinois has made adequate preparation to take care of them.

Gov. Green spoke from a platform erected in Maywood park, at 5th av. and Oak st. The program was preceded by memorial services in all Maywood churches at 11 a. m., and a parade at 2 p. m.

The parade, which included police cars of Maywood, surrounding suburbs, Chicago and state police, army, WAC, navy and marine units, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, the office of civilian defense, Boy Scouts, and Girl Scouts, moved from 15th av. and Washington blvd. to St. Charles rd. and 5th av., where it disbanded.

Between 2,500 and 3,000 persons marched in the parade, and the sidewalks were lined with an estimated 40,000 spectators.

Rally an Annual Event.

The Bataan day celebration has become an annual event since its inauguration two years ago by the American Bataan Clan of Maywood, composed of immediate relatives and sweethearts of men of the 192d tank battalion who died or were taken prisoner when Bataan fell.

Since then, the clan's members have fought for increased aid to Gen. MacArthur in the form of men and materials, and have repeatedly assailed Washington for apparently viewing the war in the Pacific as secondary to the war in Europe.

The clan also denounced official delay in permitting THE TRIBUNE to give to America the story of the late Lt. Col. William E. Dyess, who escaped from a Japanese prison camp in the Philippines.

Churchill Arrives in Canada for Quebec Parley with F.D.R.

QUEBEC, Que., Sept. 10 (AP). — Prime Minister Churchill arrived in Halifax on a liner today, and took a train to Quebec to meet President Roosevelt in a victory conference packed with gold-braid commanders.

Official confirmation of this much rumored meeting was made this afternoon in the historic Chateau Frontenac hotel following Churchill's arrival. The President, the prime minister, and top allied commanders met here a year ago.

The Canadian and American offices of war information announced that Churchill was in Canada again, accompanied by Mrs. Churchill and military and naval leaders.

Unofficial speculation as to the nature of the conference was that a main subject would be plans to bring about an early end to the fighting in Europe without departing too far from the "unconditional surrender" edict of the Casablanca conference.

Leads Crowd in Song.

The Canadian press said it was believed that declaration might be revised if it seemed necessary to save further sacrifice of allied lives in fighting an already beaten enemy. The unconditional surrender demand might stand in the way of an appeal to Germany that might lead to an armistice, the Canadian press added.

Churchill led a crowd in song at Halifax during the hour between the time of his arrival and the departure for Quebec of the two special trains carrying his party.

A tumultuous crowd of hundreds cheered the empire war leader and his wife as they waited on the observation platform and the smiling Churchill led them in song after song until the train pulled out.

"Roll Out the Barrel."

The Churchills sat down on the train steps while the crowd joined in "Roll Out the Barrel," "There'll Always Be an England," "When the Lights Come on Again," and "Tipperary." He joined in the singing enthusiastically.

When the spectators had quieted, he pulled the cigar from his mouth and started talking.

"It was very kind of you," he said, "to give my wife and myself such a splendid welcome. It is not the first time we have been here, but never have we been here when the skies were brighter or when the invincible march of our forces has been more swiftly and inevitably directed toward its goal."

Hundreds of voices roared out, "For he's a jolly good fellow." Churchill bent over to ask a trainman how much time he had left.

"A couple of minutes," the trainman said.

"Make it five," Churchill told him, "and we'll have a few more songs."

Then he called for "Land of Hope and Glory," "The Maple Leaf Forever," and "O Canada." Just before the train moved, he asked for "God Save the King." Standing at attention, he led the chorus.

Wears His Uniform.

The prime minister wore the semi-naval Trinity House uniform, dark blue with gold buttons. His wife wore a gray tailored traveling suit, topped by a flowered turban of gray and red.

The time of Mr. Roosevelt's arrival was not made known, nor was the make-up of his official staff. But the military corps accompanying Churchill, by their presence, stressed the war-emphasis of their talks. Britain's prime minister brought with him the first sea lord, Adm. Andrew Cunningham, Minister of Transport Leathers, and Maj. Gen. R. E. Laycock, who succeeded Adm. Louis Mountbatten as Britain's Commando chief.

Also included were Paymaster General Cherwell, Air Force Chief Marshal Charles Portal, Gen. Hastings L. Ismay, chief of staff to the prime minister as minister of defense, Field Marshal Alan F. Brooke, chief of the general staff, and Dr. Charles McMoran Wilson, Churchill's physician.

More from Washington.

A separate party of British representatives came from Washington for the meeting. It included Field Marshal John Dill, chief British representative for the combined chiefs of staff at Washington; Adm. Percy L. H. Noble, head of the British naval delegation at Washington, Lt. Gen. Gordon MacReady, chief of the British army staff at Washington, and Air Marshal William L. Welsh.

Canadian Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King arrived here tonight from Ottawa to act as host to Churchill and Roosevelt. It was said officially that King, as last year, was expected to confer frequently with Churchill and Roosevelt.

Planes and trains brought officers and advisers to Quebec all day. Among the arrivals were the American chief of staff, Gen. George C. Marshall, Gen. H. H. Arnold, Adm. Ernest J. King, and Rear Adm. William D. Leahy, chief of staff to President Roosevelt.

As to soviet participation in the sessions, a Canadian official said: "There is no word. Nothing we know indicates they will be here."

BATTLE RAGES AS ALLIES PUSH ON BELFORT GAP

Yanks and French Win New Towns.

ROME, Sept. 10 (AP). — French troops have struck within 16 miles of Belfort and are engaged in bitter fighting against Germans defending the gap leading into the Black forest of southwestern Germany, allied headquarters announced tonight.

The battle raged near the village of Blamont, 16 miles south of Belfort, and 36 air line miles from the German frontier. The French had pushed on thru the Jura Alps after taking the villages of Pont de Riode and St. Hippolyte.

[An ABSIE (American broadcasting station in Europe) broadcast monitored by CBS said that French troops were reported fighting only 2½ miles from Belfort.]

Americans striking toward Belfort from the southwest had driven along the Doubs river to within 24 miles of the sentinel city, covering half the distance from Besancon.

Take Baume les Dames.

Americans hitting along the Rhone-Rhine canal surged thru Baume les Dames, cleared after severe fighting, and Clerval, 24 miles from Belfort. The rapid French advance seized Aissey south of Baume.

[The Germans estimated the 7th army was attacking with five divisions and said they were "fighting with great determination to rip open German defenses in the Belfort gap."]

Far to the west, other French units pushed up the west side of the Saone river against apparently large German forces whose retreat route to Germany already had been cut, and occupied Urvy and Chamboeuf, nine miles southwest of Dijon and Auton.

Americans captured Dole, 25 miles southeast of Dijon, in the Doubs valley, as enemy resistance there began to weaken.

Junction with Patriots.

A headquarters officer commenting on broadcast reports that the 7th army had joined with the American 3d army said such reports arose from a meeting of Lt. Gen. Alexander Patch's troops with a certain group of armed French patriots.

Belfort's fortifications can both defend the town itself and harass with artillery the entire pass between the Vosges and Jura mountains.

A front dispatch said the pass—which for centuries has protected France against Germany—may become the first bloody battleground of a Nazi attempt to beat back the southern phase of the allied march on Berlin.

The bag of prisoners swept up in the push from the Mediterranean soared beyond 70,000.

Trapped Near Dijon.

There were indications considerable numbers of Germans were virtually trapped in the Dijon area, 47 miles west of Besancon and 87 west of Belfort. Opposition to a French advance was stubborn. This suggested there were substantial forces of Germans there whose avenues of retreat to the homeland already had been cut by Americans and Frenchmen to the east.

[Sunday's German war bulletin said, "On the Franco-Italian border in the area of Mont Cenis and Maddalena pass some height positions were captured and cleared of the enemy."]

Churchmen Write Letters at Sermonless Service

Daytona Beach, Fla., Sept. 10 (AP).—The Rev. C. E. Jackson, pastor of the First Christian church, after reading the scripture for the morning closed his Bible and told the congregation to "preach your own sermon." Writing material was provided and each member of the congregation was asked to spend 15 minutes writing a letter to a service man overseas. The church paid postage.

COURAGE, ROPES, AND BOATS SAVE YANK WOUNDED

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE AMERICAN 3D ARMY ON THE MOSELLE RIVER, Sept. 10.—A battered little band of defiant American infantry men still held grimly tonight to a clump of woods across the Moselle river from Dornot.

The two day old bridgehead is under almost constant German mortar, artillery, and machine gun fire, hampering reenforcement by daylight. But not even German counter-attacks early yesterday morning, in which tanks crashed blindly into American positions and guns as they roared past the men crouching in foxholes, could shake loose the Yanks' grip on this bit of territory.

Their comrades on this side of the river, knowing that only 16 wounded men were brought back last night and that many still were on the far side, exposed themselves time and again today to observe machine gun and artillery fire until all the wounded were once again on this side of the river. But it was a costly action.

Wisconsinite Tells of Action.

Lt. Raymond Bitney, Bloomer, Wis., who was wounded slightly by a shell during the evacuation, told us about it.

"We moved down to the river about 8 a. m." he said, "and got into position along a lagoon separated from the river by a high bank. We were to deliver fire while the medics and engineers pulled in wounded on boats with ropes attached. Our captain was supervising this while I was directing the fire.

"The Germans started dropping mortar and artillery shells into the lagoon when we were about half done. The captain was hit. I heard him call the medics, then he called me and told me to take over. He had been hit in both legs.

"We were lifting him into a boat in the lagoon when another shell burst and a fragment caught me in the neck. Two others, at least, were hit.

Dying Plead for Aid.

"By now my men were helping pull the boats across and we kept sending men back into town with messages, but no one ever came back. Dying men were asking me why nothing was done. One cried 'Help,' then died. Two men of my platoon also were dead. No vehicles had been able to get down, and so I came back to learn why."

Lt. Bitney was in the unit command post as he spoke. He insisted he had to go back to the river to direct his men.

"We need more litters," he told a medical officer. "There are five men down there crawling."

Jeeps were promptly dispatched.

Bitney said it took about five minutes to pull a boat with six or seven wounded men in it across the river and that the Germans shot at each boat and at the medics who went down to the water's edge on this side of the river.

One Burst Hurts Four Medics.

"Four medics were wounded by one burst," he said. "I started pull-

ONE-MAN CHICAGO ARMY CAPTURES 91 NAZIS IN ONE DAY

Sgt. Karl R. Jansey

Down the road toward an American command post in France marched 60 German soldiers. Behind them, his rifle at the ready, strode Staff Sgt. Karl R. Jansey, 5211 Ellis av., Chicago. He turned his prisoners over to the post staff and went back for more.

He got 'em—one group of 22, and another of 9—making 91 prisoners captured single handed in one day.

This story came yesterday out of a United States army hospital in England, where Sgt. Jansey, wounded by a sniper's bullet near St. Pois, is recovering. He is the son of Dr. Felix Janovsky, Czechoslovakian consul in Los Angeles, Cal. His wife, Margery, and their son, Bobby, 2, live at the Ellis av. address.

LINKS UP WITH BRITISH ALONG ALBERT CANAL

Patton Forces Sixth River Crossing.

WITH THE U. S. 1ST ARMY NEAR THE GERMAN FRONTIER, Sept. 10 (AP). — American artillery men wheeled their guns into line opposite the Siegfried line and fired their first shots onto German soil near Aachen at 3:30 this afternoon.

Eight rounds from old long barrel French 155 mm. rifles mounted on tank chassis crashed on or near a crossroads in the vicinity of the German frontier city, preparing the way for Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' great drive to smash thru the Nazi Siegfried defenses.

The guns which fired the first rounds were used in support of armored artillery. They were made in the last war for long range fire.

Only Few Miles Away.

American infantry and tanks are standing only a few miles from the concrete forts and dragon toothed anti-tank defenses along Germany's western border.

As the last straggling elements of the Germans who slipped out of the trap at Mons fell back into the Siegfried defenses, the Germans were putting up a bitter rear-guard action to protect their final withdrawal from Belgium. Virtually all of Belgium now is freed of German troops.

"If they have time to get set in their defenses, then the battle to break the line will be one of the toughest we have fought," said Lt. Col. Robert Evans of Davenport, Iowa.

Yanks and British Link Up.

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Sept. 10 (AP).—Lt. Gen. Hodges' American 1st army linked up with the British 2nd army on the Albert canal above the Belgian city of Hasselt today and at its southern flank drove a wedge into Luxemburg to highlight its march eastward toward Germany along a 100 mile front.

A field dispatch from 3d army headquarters reported without confirmation the entry into the city of Luxemburg, lying in the southern section of the tiny duchy.

[The London radio reported that a Paris broadcast today said that the city of Luxemburg, capital of the duchy of the same name, has been taken by American troops.]

Two columns of the American 1st army probed within 8½ miles of the German and Dutch borders. Other Americans pushed deeper into the Ardennes forest toward the Siegfried line.

The United States 3d army, attacking along the Moselle river on the southern front facing the Saar basin, was putting armor and infantry across the stream as the battle raged with mounting intensity around Toul.

Prisoner Total 168,047.

A new and sixth crossing was forced south of Metz, but the Germans were fighting back hard. Efforts to expand the bridgeheads made little progress and American losses were considerable.

It was another day of swift moving advances for Hodges' 1st army which up until midnight Saturday had taken 168,047 prisoners since D-day.

The American 1st army also captured the city of Verviers, east of Liege, and supreme headquarters confirmed the entry of Canadian patrols into Zeebrugge, which took them within three miles of the Netherlands frontier. Verviers is 15 miles east of Liege.

Face Fresh German Troops.

In the latest fighting east of Antwerp where Lt. Gen. Miles C. Dempsey's British 2d army men, aided by a Dutch brigade, are fighting their way toward Holland it has been reported German troops were brought in from Denmark to aid in staving off invasion of Germany.

[A headquarters spokesman, in a broadcast reported allied forces in France and Belgium "have killed, wounded, or taken prisoner a total of 700,000 Germans since the allied landings in Normandy."]

The British 2d army captured 12,135 prisoners in three days.

To the north of Luxemburg, the 1st army unmasked a powerful offensive which rolled east 14 miles to within 12 miles of the Siegfried line fortress of Aachen, gateway to the Rhineland and Berlin, 340 miles beyond, without a hint of a serious check.

[The Germans said the Americans had launched a great drive all along a 60-mile front from east of Liege to the southern border of Luxemburg aimed at piercing the heart of the industrial Rhineland.]

In northern Belgium, the British gouged out gains across the Albert canal at two bridgeheads.

Fight in Streets of Town.

The British were fighting in the streets of Geel [Gheel], two miles north of their bridgeheads 25 miles east of Antwerp. To the east they were engaged in a stiff battle around Hechtel after a four mile push east of Bourgleopold. They were approximately 20 miles from the German frontier on the road around Kleve, the northern anchor of the Siegfried line.

The Americans reached Limbourg, which is 12 miles southwest of Aachen and eight and a half miles from the German frontier.

These forces were within four miles of Eupen, Belgium, which the Nazi dictator incorporated into Germany by decree in 1940.

[Radio Atlantik, a clandestine German language station, said last night that Eupen was in allied hands.]

Hit for Weakest Link.

The Americans knifing toward Holland on the north were traveling toward the weakest link in the German defense chain—the 70 miles of hastily built fortifications from Aachen north to Kleve.

They were reported officially at Tongres, 23 miles northwest of Limbourg, 8½ miles from the Dutch border and 10 miles from the Dutch city of Maastricht.

The Americans also swept up Remicourt and Hex, 12 miles northwest of the fallen Belgian fortress of Liege, and one force 11 miles southeast of Liege took Theux, three miles above the world famous health resort of Spa.

Push in Ardennes Forest.

Americans pushing steadily thru the Ardennes forest, once considered an impenetrable military barrier, entered Neufchateau, 14 miles from the Luxemburg border, and Marche, 25 miles to the north.

The doughboys also were threading their way thru the forest east of St. Hubert, which is between Marche and Neufchateau.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's 3d army was locked in grim fighting with German forces trying to throw the Americans back across the Moselle river from their six bridgeheads, but reinforcements were arriving and the general outlook was somewhat better.

A front dispatch said one of the army's five bridgeheads south of Metz, the one near Toul, had been reinforced both by infantry and armor, while supplies were being put across the Moselle for troops on the east bank just south of Metz.

Bomb German Rear.

There nine waves of allied medium bombers roared over and plastered troop concentrations with good results, delivering their destructive loads at points where pill boxes and guns were hidden. This sort of punishment lasted for 50 minutes.

[The German news agency, DNB, reported "heavy fighting is going on at Briey," 13 miles northwest of Metz, in an area where a heavy counterattack was smashed on Saturday.]

Another channel port fell to the allies as the Canadian 1st army made further progress in mopping up the channel coast. Canadians entered Zeebrugge unopposed.

Drive to Coast of Strait.

The Canadians also were closing on the port of Blankenberge, 10 miles east of Ostend, and were near Brugge, 15 miles east of Ostend.

Fifty prisoners, surrendering in the besieged Normandy port of Le Havre, said the rest of the garrison was afraid to give up because it could not find its way out of its own minefields. The port again was under heavy aerial assault.

In the far-off Breton peninsula, American troops were fighting house to house into the outskirts of the big port of Brest after smashing the perimeter of defenses.

[The Germans said they had abandoned Le Conquet peninsula, west of the port.]

YANKS FIND LIEGE CITY OF PLENTY IF THEY HAVE MONEY

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIEGE, Belgium, Sept. 10.—Church bells rang this morning in Liege, after the tumultuous welcome of yesterday and the day before began to abate, but the city continued to extend to the Americans one of the warmest welcomes our soldiers ever experienced. Some of them have seen paralytic patients in the city's hospitals trying to crawl toward them merely to touch a part of their uniforms.

They have found the poorer people living on meager rations. In the flourishing black market an excellent dinner of beefsteak, potatoes, string beans, butter, black bread, Camembert cheese and tea or coffee, to say nothing of wine, could be had for 400 Belgian francs [$16], while a breakfast of three eggs, bread, butter and coffee cost 150 francs [$6].

Electric streetcars are running. Hotels have plenty of electric light and even elevator service. Drinks are plentiful in many cafes, including good beer.

CHAMBRUN AND WIFE GRILLED IN PARISIAN PURGE

PARIS, Sept. 10 (AP).—Count Rene de Chambrun and his wife, Marie Jose, daughter of Pierre Laval, were released by police tonight after several hours questioning, it was announced by the ministry of the interior and the prefect of police.

The countess and count, who is a descendant of Lafayette and a nephew of Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, were among a score of prominent persons taken into custody in the roundup of suspected collaborationists.

Actress Ginette Leclerc, arrested a few days ago, also was released tonight after questioning. Arrests to date total nearly 10,000 charged as collaborators with the Germans, and have been accomplished by such complicated means that the current comment is, "everybody is arresting everybody."

Franco Foes Take Over Falangist Office in Paris

PARIS, Sept. 10 (AP).—Headquarters of the Spanish Falangists [Fascists] in Paris were taken over today by the Spanish National Union, an anti-Franco group that has been active in the French movement of resistance to the Germans. Julio Hernandez, president of the union, was quoted by the newspaper Liberation as declaring: "Our immediate aim is to get rid of the government of Franco and his Falange and institute a provisional government under the constitution of 1931."

VOICE OF ALLIES MAY FIX ITALY'S FORM OF RULE

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, Sept. 10.—The first move toward establishment of what eventually may be a free Italy came on an August evening in 1943 when a swarthy little man stepped from the Lisbon-Madrid express at Lisbon, Portugal. So insignificant was he that he attracted only a cursory glance from a German secret service agent.

The little man was Gen. Guiseppe Castellano of the Italian general staff, and in his memory he carried Marshal Pietro Badoglio's request for an armistice. Benito Mussolini had been arrested two weeks before.

That night Castellano and Franco Montenari, a Harvard educated Italian diplomat who had traveled to Lisbon in another compartment of the same train, met allied chieftains at the home of the British ambassador. Maj. Gen. Walter B. Smith, chief of staff to Gen. Eisenhower, represented the United States.

The allied leaders bluntly presented the requirements of the now famous "short terms of the armistice"—unconditional surrender, full use of Italian bases, long terms of an armistice dealing with punishments and reparations to be announced later.

Status Still a Secret.

Italy has traveled a long road since then. Politically, the question is which road?

On Sept. 29, 1943, Badoglio signed the long term armistice after much quibbling over its contents, which are still unrevealed. On Oct. 13, Italy, seeking to gain favor with the allies and thus escape at least some of the punitive measures of the secret armistice, declared war on Germany and immediately was given the undefined position of co-belligerent. No one in Italy yet knows what co-belligerency really means, and Washington and London are not telling if they know.

In November, Badoglio formed a cabinet, now known as the government of technicians. Scorned by Italy's six strong anti-Fascist political parties, which labeled it variously as Fascist, monarchist and not representative, the cabinet received its death blow on April 1 from a little man just returned from Moscow. He was Palmiro Togliatti, leader of Italy's powerful Communist party and an exile in Russia for 20 years. His bombshell was a demand that a new government be formed representing the six parties.

Badoglio's second government came on April 22, with himself again premier. It included Togliatti, Carlo Sforza, rabid anti-Fascist who had been in exile in the United States, and Benedetto Croce, Liberal party leader who is Italy's outstanding man of letters. The cabinet had a slight leftist leaning, with the Communist, Socialist and Action parties receiving seven seats against five awarded to the more moderate Democratic Christian, Democratic Labor and Liberal parties.

Same Popular Tunes.

Like its predecessor, the new government seemed to spend most of its time doing two things still popular in official circles: first, issuing decrees defining Fascists and seeking to punish them and, second, repeating again and again the conviction that the Italian people were betrayed and forced into the war and therefore should not be dealt with too harshly by the allies.

On June 4 came the liberation of Rome. King Victor Emmanuel, while he did not abdicate as expected, turned his royal prerogative over to the prince of Piedmont, his son Umberto. A new government came in headed by Ivanoe Bonomi, 73 year old leader of the Democratic Laborites, who was Italian premier immediately before the rise of Fascism.

It is this government which has been given administrative power over southern Italy under the eye of the allied control commission [ACC]. Sforza and Togliatti are still members but Croce retired.

It is a strange "representative government." The first point is that it is emasculated. It is true that Italy from Rome south is directly controled by Bonomi's government, but the allied control commission reserves the right to impose a full military government if a crisis should arise.

Second, it is claimed that the government is representative because its members are drawn from six anti-Fascist parties. But Italy has been Fascist since 1922 and in all that time the parties have not been tested in an election disclosing what their real power is. Several did not exist in the years before fascism.

Monarchy or Republic?

As soon as peace comes, plans call for a grand assembly to draft a new constitution for Italy, but even these plans are complicated by the question of whether Italy is to remain a monarchy or become a republic.

The out of the government Democratic party, which is little more than a disguised monarchist group, demands that the assembly be preceded by a national referendum to determine whether the people want a monarchy or a republic. They reason that the Italian peasants will mark their ballots for the old life. Large factions of the Christian Democrats and the Liberals lean toward a referendum.

The monarchist hating Communists, Labor Democrats and the Action party howl at the idea of a referendum. They demand a republic with delegates to a constitutional assembly elected from the ranks of the six parties.

On paper it appears that this group has the strength to win out. They are vigorous, drawing support now from the down trodden in southern Italy and expecting support later among the workers of the still unliberated industrial north.

Desires of the allies, however, will carry great weight in determining whether Italy goes monarchist or republic and it is reported here that Prime Minister Churchill would like to see the monarchy remain in power. President Roosevelt has kept mum, but if he backed the monarchy it would not be the first time he had followed Churchill's lead.

The whole question probably will not be solved until after the peace conference. The six parties have the power now and don't want to lose it. It is their aim to represent Italy at the conference.

The most vexing political questions in Italy, those of the greatest concern to the man on the street, are the same that have existed since Badoglio's first government came to power. What are the contents of the still secret long term armistice? What does co-belligerency mean? Will Italy eventually be granted the status of an ally? Is it possible the allies will lighten whatever punishments are in store for her? Will Italy receive regular lend-lease aid? Will she be granted help from the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration?

Without definite answers to these questions the government can only go around in circles. And apparently Washington and London coyly intend to keep those answers to themselves for the time being despite the fact that their attitude is not increasing allied prestige in Italy.

Meanwhile, the armies of Russia are looming up in Marshal Tito's Yugoslavia across the narrow Adriatic sea.

YANKS PUSH TO PISTOIA, GOTHIC LINE BULWARK

ROME, Sept. 10 (AP). — American troops have driven into the outskirts of Pistoia and reached the threshhold of the Germans' Gothic line. Along the Adriatic Nazis battled fiercely to keep the British out of Rimini, gateway to the Po valley, allied headquarters announced today.

Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring hurled armored units and infantry into strong counter-attacks against the British holding Croce, nine miles southwest of Rimini and six miles inland from the coast. Two miles west of Croce the British were fighting off German assaults on Gemmano. The situation there was "not regarded as settled."

Yanks Reach Gothic Line.

American troops moving forward as the Germans retreated into the northern Italian Apennines pushed into the outskirts of Pistoia, a rail and communications hub of 72,000 population about 20 miles northwest of Florence. American patrols reached Gothic line outposts between Pistoia and Lucca.

In the high ground between the upper Arno and Tiber river valleys Indian troops of the 8th army captured several points and successfully beat off and enemy counter-attack west of Castelnuovo, 12 miles from the coast.

North of Florence Gen. Alexander's headquarters reported "big advances" and said Monte Giurbi, Monte Calerso and Monte de Calvana were in allied hands.

Supported by Planes.

Altho rain hampered aerial activity allied war planes struck at enemy communication lines and battlefront targets. Medium bombers concentrated on rail and road bridges while fighter bombers attacked bridges, roads, rail lines and yards, rolling stock, motor transport, and supply dumps.

The British gunboats Aphis and Scarab attacked enemy batteries and ships in the harbor of Rimini.

REPORT DEATH SENTENCE FOR HITLER PLOTTER

LONDON, Sept. 11 [Monday]—(AP).—Dr. Karl Goerdeler, former mayor of Leipzig, accused of plotting against Adolf Hitler, has been sentenced to death, the Berlin radio announced today.

Also sentenced, said the broadcast, were: Paul Lejeune-Jung, identified as a former deputy; Wilhelm Leuchner, former Hessian minister of the interior; Josef Wirmer, a lawyer; Ulrich von Hassell, identified as a former member of the diplomatic corps; Troot Stolz, former secretary in the foreign ministry, and Count Helldorf, former chief of the Berlin police.

Goerdeler was first named as a conspirator in an attempt on Hitler's life Aug. 1, but was not captured until nearly three weeks later, after a nation-wide hunt in which the Nazis put a price of a million marks on his head.

COURAGE, ROPES AND BOATS SAVE YANK WOUNDED

Bridgehead Injured Cross River Under Fire.

ing men from my second squad to help and one of them was hit. The engineers down there are doing a good job."

Bitney said he had lost quite a few killed or wounded out of the 25 men taken down to help in the evacuation.

Sgt. Charles Hudson of Owensboro, Ky., one of Bitney's men, said no boat was hit today.

Capt. Ferris Church of Sherlock, Mich., operations officer for a unit across the river, had been over twice and was there during the counter-attack yesterday.

"The Germans there are the type you read about," he said. "You drive them out of their positions and they come right back. They kept running patrols right down along the river bank, trying to infiltrate into our bridgehead. One man we captured said that three-quarters of his company were casualties from our artillery."

Capt. Church said that at about 1 a. m. yesterday two German tanks plunged into the woods and ran about half way thru. They knocked down trees as they went, firing machine guns and 75s, then cut back to the road. The crews shouted in German that they would be back again.

This bridgehead is the one closest to Metz.

Again today we visited the forward artillery observation post commanded by Capt. Fred Andrt, 6802 W. 26th st., Berwyn, Ill. I was chatting with a Lt. Summers of Texas, a young mortar observer, near the observation post when the Germans shelled an area just below us, then lifted the barrage until we could feel the concussion of the bursts and hear the whine of missiles overhead.

Laughter Amid Shells.

The lieutenant moved off when the shelling ceased to see whether any of his men in an observation post had been hurt. I snaked my way to Andrt's spot and was peering thru a telescope at Germans walking down a road across the river when shells screamed in. I hastily became paper flat; Andrt tried to spot the gun, but when shells fell closer he, too, flattened out. One came particularly close and he laughed and said, "If you'd like to see where they're hitting, look around." There were puffs of smoke too close to be funny.

We finally went back into our foxholes and the hill was quiet once more. Andrt, unruffled as if he were in Lincoln park, laughed, clambered from the foxhole and said, "You know, I used to swear I'd never do this sort of thing for a living."

A Coat Bites the Dust.

I started down the hill and rejoined my companions, William Reusswig, a New York artist, and Sgt. Howard Whalen, Birmingham, Mich. We were sitting talking with our backs against a slope when there was a sudden explosion and all three of us rolled over and slipped under a truck. A battery tossed three or four more shells, then quit, and when we came out we found a fresh hole less than 12 yards away. Reusswig's coat, which had been on ground above us, had been chewed up by shell splinters.

We headed for Dornot, parked our jeep well outside, and went down a winding road into the town, running past all open spaces because the road was under observation. We were accompanied by Maj. Bart Rightman, 4923 N. St. Louis av., Chicago, a surgeon going in to learn how the evacuation of the wounded was progressing.

We made an equally fast trip out, bringing a black kitten that Reusswig decided should be taken along because it was starving.

Planes Dive at Germans.

While in Dornot we saw our planes dive bombing German positions across the river despite heavy anti-aircraft fire. Later a Thunderbolt ran for home with smoke pouring from its engine. Bombs still were aboard and the pilot apparently was eager to reach his field.

It was quite a day.

A few memories cling like burrs: Lt. Bitney, back bandaged, going calmly off to the river once again; the bodies of two G. I.'s covered with white cloth and lying in the street in Dornot where we saw them two days ago, an indication of the fierceness of the battle, for our dead ordinarily are removed immediately; the crazy chatter of machine gun fire from across the river where American infantry men were taking whatever Hitler's best could hand them—and handing back just a little more than they got.

On the way home we held up our kitten for a Frenchwoman in a doorway to see. She indicated she wanted it and we gave it to her.

Finished Last

The taste of pie was consolation yesterday for Tommy McGreal, 5, seen finishing last in contest among children at garden reward party. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Early in the summer David C. Cohen, 53, who owns the apartment building at 1450 W. Garfield blvd., made a bargain with all the boys and girls in the neighborhood. It ran something like this: "If all of you will chip in to chase dogs from our war gardens, keep them weeded, and not play ball in them—we'll have a big party when summer ends."

The gardens were on a lot next to Cohen's building which he provided for his tenants. Yesterday Cohen smiled fondly at 10 bushels of tomatoes he'd picked from his 20 by 30 foot lot and paid off.

About 45 children attended and so did about 25 grownups who didn't want to miss out on the picnic spread. There were games and movies, too, with a big four car garage used as a theater. Cohen, who is married but has no children, chuckled and took movies of the festivities.

Italian Patriots Seize 500 Nazis at Simplon Tunnel

BERN, Switzerland, Sept. 10 (AP).—The Swiss telegraph agency reported that a German garrison of 500 to 600, including many SS men, surrendered today to Italian partisans. The patriots had surrounded the Germans at Domo d'Ossola, at the Italian end of the Simplon tunnel.

YOUR FAVORITE MIXER IS STILL AT IT IN PARIS

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Bartenders and hotel keepers, signposts in the lives of those who get nostalgic during periodic visits to old haunts and places, have survived the German occupation of Paris probably better than any other profession or calling.

You can make the rounds in Paris and you will find the same familiar faces in the same hangouts as before. The same proprietors and managers, with few exceptions, are there to greet you. Behind the bars the same people are there to serve you. In hotel lobbies the same porters, the same clerks, and even in the rooms the same valets and maids greet you.

I had letters from the manager of a London hotel to the managers of the Ritz, the Scribe, the George V., the Maurice, the Prince de Galles, the Edward VII. and other hotels.

Only Two Undelivered.

At only two places I failed to deliver the messages—at the first, where one manager had died a natural death altho the same staff was carrying on—and the other was the Hotel Edward VII., where the manager and staff had been removed by the Germans as this was the Gestapo center. The old manager, however, after 26 months is now back on the job. Maurice Ihermite, the manager, said that the hotel has not suffered any appreciable damage except, he said, "Since the Jerries left we have noticed a few things have disappeared such as various articles of comfort and some rugs, to say nothing of our cellar. That has been drained to the last bottle and without compensation."

This complaint was a general one and more or less applied to all hotels.

The Ritz harbored higher grades of the German army during the war. Marshals, generals and ministers met there. Hermann Goering, Dr. Joseph Goebbels and Rudolf Hess—all the heads of the reich except Adolf Hitler—came and went there. The original personnel of 355 is still employed.

Frank Meier is still running the famous Ritz bar. He said that the bar was closed for a couple of months when the Germans first arrived, but was opened again in August, 1940.

O'Neill in Business Again.

What has happened to Frank O'Neill's bar or Harry's bar on the Rue Daunou or Luigi's on the Rue du Colisee? The answer is nothing, except, of course, a short stock. Harry McIlborne, who owned Harry's New York bar, is a British subject and evacuated when the Germans occupied Paris. He has been running a bar in the Ritz in London since. His bar, however, was open during his absence. A friendly neighbor exxplained that Harry's stock has been exhausted and i is closed but temporarily.

Frank O'Neill, famous Newton, Kan., jockey, is back waiting for his old clientele to show up. Frank had been arrested, but his daughter ran the business in his absence. He was released from a concentration camp a year ago, supposedly on the strength of his Irish origin.

Luigi Palma said that he managed to pull thru, altho his daughter, who had married an Englishman, was put in a concentration camp in Vittel.

Maxim's Reopens.

Maxim's, famous as the setting of one of the scenes in "The Merry Widow," and a favorite haunt of the diplomats and newspaper men covering the peace conference of 1919, has reopened. The temporary manager has been arrested by the French Forces of the Interior on the ground that he was too chummy with the Germans during the occupation. But Louis Vaudable, the old proprietor, is back on the job.

Albert, the head waiter, is still there, and one of the assistant managers said that during the occupation "Albert was very skillful. He showed the Germans into the waiting room and made them believe that was the best place."

RUSSIANS DRIVE 18 MILES MORE INTO HUNGARY

Reported Near Capital of Transylvania.

LONDON, Sept. 11 [Monday]—(AP).—Russian troops attacking on a 225 mile front yesterday penetrated 18 miles into Hungarian-annexed Transylvania in their drive to knock Hungary out of the war. A Moscow dispatch said they were closing fast on Cluj, capital of the big plateau province and rail heart controlling axis defenses.

Moscow did not announce any gain on the western end of the curving front since the capture on Saturday of Teius, only 37 miles south of Cluj, and a dispatch said the Russians in that area were within 100 miles of the pre-war Hungarian border and within 220 miles of Budapest.

The soviet bulletin said soviet columns attacking inside southeastern Transylvania and along the eastern side almost as far north as the old Polish frontier, had captured nearly 60 towns and villages during the day, and forced another Carpathian mountain pass into Transylvania.

Reds Push South, Say Nazis.

German broadcasts said soviet units racing thru capitulated Bulgaria had crossed the eastern Balkan mountains in their drive toward Greece's Aegean sea coast.

Berlin also said soviet parachute troops had landed south of Turnu-Severin, on the Danube river section of the Yugoslav frontier. This possibly meant a Red army junction with Marshal Tito's Partisans, altho the Germans declared the parachutists had been wiped out.

It is estimated that 250,000 axis troops have been cut off in Yugoslavia, Greece, and Albania.

In the Transylvanian operations Red army columns pushing up the Brasov-Turgu-Mures railway captured Sfantul-Gheorghe, 18 miles above Brasov, and pushed on thru Bicsad, 15 miles to the north, an overall penetration of 18 miles into present Hungarian territory.

In this area the Russians said they were attacking a strong defense line containing reinforced concrete firing points.

Romania Troops Help.

The Russians said Romanians helped to capture Sfantul-Gheorghe.

Farther north, a soviet column climbing across the Carpathian mountain wall from Moldavia forced the Bekas pass and captured Gyergyo-Bekas, just inside Transylvania.

Vama, 35 miles from Hungarian Transylvania, was captured in the Russian drive from Bucovina on a front that had been quiet since last spring.

Rodion Y. Malinovsky, 2d Ukraine army commander, has been made a marshal of the soviet union, Moscow announced, for his campaign in Romania.

The Germans reported continued battles along the Narew river northeast of Warsaw, Poland, but said soviet attacks were repulsed.

In southern Poland the Russians also attacked near Sanok and Krosno in the northern Carpathian foothills, but Berlin said these thrusts also failed.

GERMAN WAR BULLETIN.

The German army's report said yesterday:

"The soviets launched abortive attacks on passes in southeastern Transylvania.

"Planes dispersed soviet motorized columns and destroyed several fuel trains in northern Romania. The enemy attacked at Sanok and Krosno. His break-thru attempts were foiled.

"At Ostrolenka soviet attacks were again frustrated."

Russians Make New Advances

Yesterday's developments on Russian war front and in Yugoslavia.

ADMIT NO ALLIED TROOPS BATTLE IN YUGOSLAVIA

LONDON, Sept. 10 (AP).—Allied military authorities in Rome tonight confirmed a broadcast statement from Marshal Tito's headquarters that no allied land forces were operating in Yugoslav territory.

Commando units belonging to land forces based in allied Adriatic territory raided Yugoslavia and then withdrew, it was explained. The statement issued by Tito's headquarters said:

"There are no allied land forces on Yugoslav territory. The struggle is being conducted only by the national liberation army of Yugoslavia with the coöperation of the allied air forces.

No Commandos on Mainland.

"There are no Commandos on the Yugoslav mainland; neither have the allies asked for them to be landed," the declaration added. It made no mention of Russian troops, who have been reported in side Yugoslavia.

Last Thursday allied headquarters in Rome announced a general offensive had started in Yugoslavia with allied "land forces of the Adriatic" participating.

On the battle fronts, Tito's Partisans reported their units had entered Zajecar, 30 miles west of the Danube and had captured Knjazevac, 25 miles to the southwest. Zajecar is about five miles from the Bulgarian border and about 30 miles from Romania.

Fight Rages in Town.

The bulletin said street fighting was in progress in Zajecar and that fighting also was going on in the Pozega Vardiste and Bajina Basta sectors.

In Bosnia, the war bulletin said, the Partisans have captured Prijedor, 70 miles southeast of Zagreb.

Aegean Shipping Attacked.

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 10 (AP).—Almost constant attacks in the last week on enemy harbors and shipping, perhaps engaged in evacuating German troops from Aegean islands, were announced in a middle east air bulletin today. It said an escort vessel was left burning and three other ships were hit in attacks on two convoys. Maleme airdrome on Crete was bombed on two nights and one day.

REPORT U. S. ITALIANS MAY PROVIDE MONEY FOR REBUILDING ITALY

ROME, Italy, Sept. 10 (AP).—Pietro Nenni, Socialist party secretary, said in an editorial in the Avanti today he was reliably informed that the White House is considering the authorization of open accounts in the United States by Italian immigrants in the name of Italians in Italy. Backed by dollars deposited in United States, the accounts would form a guarantee for reconstruction supplies needed in Italy Nenni said. The Socialist leader said President Roosevelt also was considering reopening Italian exports to the United States.

PLANES BOMB BERLIN AFTER DAY RAIDS THRUOUT GERMANY

LONDON, Sept. 11 [Monday]—(AP).—R. A. F. Mosquitos bombed Berlin last night, the British announced today.

Other R. A. F. bombers were heard flying out over the Straits of Dover during the night and the German radio reported raiders over Mecklenburg, Hannover, and Brunswick, following up Sunday's daylight assaults by nearly 5,000 planes that blasted enemy targets from the channel to Germany and Austria in one of the heaviest assaults since June 6.

More than 1,100 Britain based Fortresses and Liberators fanned deep into Germany, bombing the Daimler Benz motor plant at Gaggenau, southwest of Karlsruhe, aircraft and tank factories in the Stuttgart, Nurnberg, and Ulm areas and a large airport at Giebelstadt. Before dawn R. A. F. Lancasters made a heavy attack on Munchen-Gladbach, key communications center.

From Italy 500 heavy bombers of the 15th air force attacked oil refineries and other targets in the Vienna area. Fortresses attacked the Lobau and Nova Schwechat refineries.

1,303,554 TRAINED IN YEAR BY NAVY, SAYS FORRESTAL

Washington, D. C., Sept. 10 (AP).—Navy Secretary Forrestal announced tonight the navy had trained 1,303,554 officers and enlisted personnel in the year ending June 30.

He said this represented crews of 4,063 new vessels of all types, plus more than 20,000 landing craft and additions to the personnel of the rapidly expanding naval air service.

He reported that, of the 2,987,311 personnel in the navy on June 30, approximately 83 per cent had been added since the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

Gen. Knapp Named Head of B-25 Bombers in Italy

ROME, Sept. 10 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Robert D. Knapp, who flew night bombers from England in the first world war, has been commanding the B-25 Mitchel wing in the Mediterranean theater since March, Mediterranean allied air force headquarters disclosed today. Knapp took over the Mitchell wing after dissolution of the 12th bomber command, which he had headed. Before the outbreak of this war he was director of training at Brooks field, Tex., and later at Kelly field.

RED CROSS STILL GETS FOOD THRU TO U. S. CAPTIVES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 10 (AP).—The Red Cross said today that it anticipates no interruption in receipt of food parcels by American prisoners of war in Germany, despite the current military situation.

"The present disruption of traffic thru southern France and Switzerland into Germany was foreseen by the Red Cross and alternate plans were made," Chairman Basil O'Connor explained.

Some weeks ago, the Red Cross dispatched to Geneva a three months' stock of food parcels for most of the camps where Americans are held. It also sent 1,500,000 parcels which arrived in Sweden Sept. 6-7.

CROATS' PUPPET CHIEF REPORTED HELD BY REBELS

Moscow Attitude Toward Turkey Stiffens.

LONDON, Sept. 10 (AP).—The allied radio at Algiers, Algeria, said tonight that Ante Pavelic, quisling of Croatia, German puppet state in northwestern Yugoslavia, had been arrested by revolutionaries and handed over to Marshal Tito's Partisans. There was no confirmation.

Ante Pavelic.

Pavelic has ruled at Zagreb as leader of a puppet regime said to have slaughtered hundreds of thousands of Serbs, Jews, and Partisan sympathizers since 1941.

In capitulated Bulgaria, the Red army was cleaning up scattered German remnants and moving toward a liquidation of enemy troops pocketed in Greece and Yugoslavia.

More Pressure on Hungary.

The Russian government stepped up its diplomatic-military effort to get Hungary out of the war. Soviet troops were striking toward Hungary from the east and southeast as the Moscow radio again called on Hungarians to overthrow the Nazis and join the allies.

An imminent juncture in force in Yugoslavia of Tito's men and the Red army is likely if it has not already occurred. Russian troops in western Romania reached the Yugoslav frontier at Turnu-Severin last week, a point only 50 miles north of Zajecar, which the Partisans have entered.

The Greek government in exile in Cairo, headed by Premier George Papandreou, transferred its temporary seat to Naples, Italy, in expectation of an early entry into Athens.

Stiffer Attitude Toward Turkey.

A firmer soviet attitude toward Turkey was visible in Moscow now that the Red army is almost at the frontier of that nation, whose neutrality has long irked the Russians.

Bulgaria's request for an armistice in the war with Russia and her declaration of war against Germany have eliminated the last major German influence in the Balkans, but Moscow points out there still are Germans in Turkey.

Gen. Feodor I. Tolbukhin, 3d Ukraine army commander whose troops have overrun Bulgaria, has put it up to the new pro-allied Bulgar government under Premier Kimon Georgiev to disarm German troops in that country. If help is needed, the Red army is ready to divert forces to any threatened sector.

[A Berlin broadcast said a new Bulgarian "national government" had been formed, with former Premier Alexander Tsankov as premier, in opposition to Georgiev's regime in Sofia. A Berlin radio appeal asked the Bulgars to disregard Sofia's declaration of war on Germany and fight against the "bolsheviks and Anglo-Americans."]

Romanians Near Signing.

MOSCOW, Sept. 10 (AP).—The Romanian armistice delegation met with Russian, American, and British conferees tonight in what one member said he hoped would be the next to last session. The Romanians said no major issue remained unsettled.

Bulgar Refugee in Turkey.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Sept. 9 [Delayed]—(AP).—Peter Grabovsky, Bulgarian minister of the interior under former Premier Bogdan Philov, and founder-leader of the Bulgarian Fascist youth organization, arrived in Istanbul today aboard a special plane as a round-up of former pro-German leaders continued in Sofia.

2,652 Exchangees Sail from Sweden for Home

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 10 (AP).—The exchange ships Gripsholm, Drottningholm, and Arundel Castle sailed from Goteborg today carrying 2,652 American, British, and Dominion prisoners of war and civilian internees homeward. The ships sailed for Liverpool first. Then the Gripshholm will proceed to New York with the Americans and Canadians.

Sink Jap Tanker

Cross marks where large Japanese tanker was sunk.

GENERAL HDQ., Southwest Pacific, Sept. 11 [Monday]—(AP).—Catalina flying boats sank a 10,000 ton Japanese tanker near Zamboanga, Mindanao Island, Friday, headquarters announced today. This was the second strike near that Philippine city, 230 miles west of Davao.

Liberators showered a record of 180 tons of bombs on the Celebes the same day, wrecking three parked planes.

Another flight of Liberators destroyed or damaged five grounded Japanese planes in the Kai Islands Friday. Strong forces continued their neutralization of Halmahera Island.

[A Tokyo broadcast said more than 1,000 United States aircraft took part in the raid on Yap and Palau Islands Thursday and more than 700 were counted Friday.]

CHINESE BATTLE TO HALT JAPS IN KWEILIN DRIVE

CHUNGKING, China, Sept. 10 (AP).—Chinese battled today to stave off a threat from Japanese surging down the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad, menacing the important center of Kweilin, but the high command said the invaders had not yet punctured the Kwangsi provincial border.

The Japanese were last reported in the captured town of Tungan, 90 miles from Kweilin, after taking the American airbase of Lingling, only 12 miles from the Kwangsi frontier.

The bulletin said the situation around Tungan, 95 miles southwest of Hengyang, was unchanged. The Chinese said they still were holding Changing, 37 miles south of Hengyang.

Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced that United States heavy bombers sank a Japanese destroyer and a sailing ship south of Hong Hong on Friday and sank four freighters in the South China sea.

HOT? 90 ON THIS SHIP CHILLY TO CHICAGO YANKS

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Sept. 10.—So you think it has been hot this summer? Better not complain if you happen to write a letter to four Chicago guys aboard a navy ship here.

Mention temperatures in the 90's and you would bring chills to James Taylor, 511 S. Oakland st., Villa Park, and Frank Sladish, 1903 S. 56th ct., Cicero. They work in the ship's fireroom, where 115 is downright cold.

Even the thought of a temperature under 100 would put J. T. Muschelewicz, 46 156th st., Calumet City, and Arthur Welnicke, 3147 Narragansett av., in bed, screaming for blankets. Their station is the pump room, where the temperatures run between 120 and 135. Sometimes, during emergencies, they have to work in this heat for 12 hours at a stretch. At such times their bodies break out in an angry rash and their skins turn dead white.

Office Jobs Cooler.

Compared to these four, some other Chicagolanders aboard the ship have relatively cold jobs. Margos Margolan, 312 Helmholz av., Waukegan, and Arthur Splatt, 3059 Lyman, work in the ship's office. Splatt, being bigger, gets the fan end.

Sigmund Pawlowski, 1807 Bosworth av., works on deck, and, under the tropic sun, has turned a beautiful bronze hue. Walter Ziembricki, 2236 Magnolia av., has to run thru the ship's hot spots occasionally in his duties as oil king, but he gets lots of fresh air. And contrary to most ideas, James Turk, 7040 Osceola av., has life very cool in the engine room.

195 in Valve Room.

The ship has lost its hottest spot. This was at the main steam valve above the fireroom. When it was opened or closed Sladish, Taylor, and their buddies would run to the wheel, give it a yank and run out again. In time the valve was adjusted. Fifteen seconds was about the longest a man could stand the heat there, and even after this brief exposure some of the men collapsed.

By exact thermometer reading the temperature there was 195 degrees.

Blowers have brought this temperature down, but it is still plenty hot. I was just there and the temperature was 142 in the shade. And it's not rainwater that's dripping from my clothes.

BURGLARS STEAL AD TROPHY.
Bud Chappell, owner of a motor sales agency at 6201 S. Western av., told police yesterday that burglars had taken a brass advertising trophy from his desk.

4 YANKS SPEND 5 DAYS ON RAFT; TRY OUT RATION

HEADQUARTERS, 7TH A. A. F., CENTRAL PACIFIC [Delayed] —(AP).—Four American airmen recently took part in an unique experiment. They spent five days out on the Pacific aboard a rubber raft with only rations of rock candy and water, and later physicial checkups showed they could take it. They tested equipment designed to save airmen forced down at sea.

All the men lost weight, but a short rest in a hospital plus good food snapped them back to normal. Lt. Don C. Cherrington of Lafayette, Cal., lost nine of his 125 pounds; Staff Sgt. Michael Lang of Amelia, O., 10½ pounds of his 139½; Sgt. Irving J. Cherr of Brooklyn, N. Y., 10¾ pounds of his original 144¾, and Sgt. Francis W. Kelly of Marcellus, N. Y., 11¼ pounds of his normal 149.

The experimenters jumped into the water off Koko Head, Oahu Island, in high altitude flying clothes, got aboard the raft and remained there, under the watchful eyes of medicos, for five days. They were unanimous—they could have endured it much longer if necessary.

Swiss Fighter Battles Yank; Is Forced Down

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP).—A Swiss air patrol was engaged by an American fighter over the western Jura area of Switzerland today, and a Swiss fighter made a forced landing after being hit 12 times, a broadcast Swiss bulletin said tonight. None was injured and no American was downed, the broadcast added.

NAZIS MAY FIGHT ON IN FINLAND, COL. LANZA SAYS

Soviet Advance in South Almost Unopposed.

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA.

[Regular contributor to the Field Artillery Journal and recognized as an authority on military matters.]

The Finnish front of 600 miles is quiet. In south Finland, the German forces have been limited to air and special troops. No German units have appeared in line for some time. There seems to be no reason why these Germans cannot get out of Finland easily by Sept. 15, the deadline fixed by the Russians.

Germany still has control of the Baltic sea. Presumably the Germans in south Finland will cross the 50 mile wide Gulf of Finland to Estonia, the coast of which is still in German hands.

Six Divisions in North.

In north Finland, the German arctic army has six, and possibly seven, divisions. They have a choice of action. They have built roads connecting their lines with north Norway. Another road goes to the head of the Gulf of Bothnia. These Germans have been supplied by water transportation, sailing from Germany. This goes up the Norwegian coast, thru the inland passage, to Kirkenes. This route is available also for the withdrawal of the Germans.

It is possible the Germans will not retreat, but will fight it out. This depends upon how many troops Russia has to oppose them. There has been no fighting of importance in this area for a long time, which would indicate that the Russians were not very strong.

Most probable German action would be to withdraw to north Norway. This would release several German divisions now in that country for the defense of Germany.

Reds Gain on South.

On the 1,000 mile front from the Gulf of Finland to the Black sea, only one major Russian offensive is under way. This is against the south side of East Prussia, and has not been stopped by the Germans. The Russian offensive in Estonia has ceased. Russian reports are that the Germans are attacking here.

At the south end of the front strong Russian forces have gone around the Carpathians. They have not followed the plan of the Americans and British in France in making the enemy's main armies their primary objective, and at every possible opportunity. Almost all of Romania has been occupied. In the last week only small German forces trying to get out of the way have been met, and the advance has been virtually unopposed.

Turkey at Crossroad.

The reasons given in the Russian declaration of Sept. 5 for declaring war against Bulgaria would apply equally well against Turkey. That Turkey will so construe it is almost certain. She will have some days to prepare and in which to make her decision. If Russia demands Russian occupation of the Istanbul straits, Turkey will be forced to yield or else risk fighting all the allies.

The Hungarians are standing by Germany. Whether this is voluntary is uncertain. With German help, they have assembled troops all along the Carpathian mountains, including the south side.

It now seems established that German evacuation of the Aegean Islands is well advanced. Evacuation of Greece and Albania may have started. If the Germans succeed in withdrawing the greater part of their forces from the Balkans, if they do not repeat the mistake made in France of holding on until too late, they may be able to establish a strong south front.

British May Go to Greece.

Unless Turkey takes some military action there probably will be no great opposition to establishing a strong south front and there probably will be no great opposition to the substitution of Russian troops within the Balkan states in place of Germans.

It is possible that Greece may be occupied by British forces. Altho not much fighting may be immediately involved, the mere occupation of the Balkans by Russia will require time and a considerable number of troops.

The political effects of the current Russian moves are most important, and may later have a material influence on the outcome of the war. The probable results may become apparent within the next few weeks.

KIN TELL HARDSHIPS OF 2 CHICAGOANS ON 'FORGOTTEN CONVOY'

George Leksich.

Sebastian Frehr.

Families of two Chicagoans who were aboard the "forgotten convoy" which spent eight months last year tied up to the docks at Murmansk, Russia, yesterday confirmed accounts of the hardships endured by the crews while waiting for some one to remember the ships were there.

Mrs. Theresa Hehn, 1704 Larrabee st., whose brother, Sebastian Frehr, was aboard one of the ships, said he told her they subsisted largely on Russian black bread, and had a Thanksgiving feast of canned meat. Cigarets were $20 a package when any were to be had. The ships survived 150 German bombardments, and the crew members all retrieved incendiary bombs from snowbanks as souvenirs.

Mrs. Jean Leksich, 2202 North av., whose husband, George, was also on the convoy, said that for nine months she received no letters from her husband, and he received none from her, altho both wrote. He developed a rash from a diet of canned rations, and a shipmate developed a stomach ailment as a result of restricted diet.

German Legation Staff and Wives Quit Helsinki

HELSINKI, Finland, Sept. 10 (AP).—Members of the German legation staff and their wives departed from Helsinki by train today for Turku where they boarded a steamer for Stockholm. The German women wept and there were no "heils!" or "siegs!" as the group of about 100 boarded the train.

FRENCH CABINET SHIFTED AGAIN IN FIGHT FOR RULE

BY ROBERT SAGE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 10.—A supreme effort to settle the growing struggle for power between the resistance groups in France and the Algiers committee of national liberation was made by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, who yesterday announced a new cabinet reshuffle—the second in a week.

The new lineup, which is called the government of national unanimity, contains 20 ministers, evenly divided between the Algiers committee and the resistance movements, but giving a slight edge to the latter.

The most important change was the appointment of Georges Bidault, considered by many as the political white hope of France, to the ministry of foreign affairs, where he replaced Rene Massigli of the Algiers committee, who is slated to go to London as ambassador. Bidault, who was known during the occupation as Monsieur, is president of the National Council of Resistance and head of the Popular Democratic party.

Jeanneney Appointed.

Another important addition to the cabinet is Jules Jeanneney, aged president of the senate who was named minister of state. By the inclusion of Jeanneney, De Gaulle means to symbolize the continuity of republican legitimacy. Thruout the occupation Jeanneney maintained his opposition to Marshal Petain and Vichy. He remained in hiding last month when Pierre Laval went to Lyon in a desperate effort to bring him and Edouard Herriot, president of the chamber, back to Paris, hoping that they would be able to patch up an understanding between the allies and the Vichy government.

Out of the cabinet shakeup may come the next French ambassador to the United States. It was learned that Emmanuel d'Astier de la Vigerie, who was replaced as minister of the interior by Adrien Tixier, former minister of labor and production, has a good chance of getting the Washington post.

Another key position in the cabinet which goes to the resistance movement is that of minister of information, where Pierre Henri Teitgen, who was active in disseminating underground news during the occupation, replaces Henri Bonnet.

Minister of Air Fernand Grenier of the Algiers committee, the only Communist member of the De Gaulle cabinet, was dropped in favor of another Communist, Charles Tillon.

Augustin Laurent, a Socialist and active in the resistance, becomes minister of posts and telegraph.

Ministers of the outgoing cabinet who were retained include Rene Capitant, national education; Francois de Menthon, justice; Rene Pleven, colonies; Robert Lacoste, industrial; Jean Lepercy, finances; Pierre Mendes-France, national economy, and Alexandre Parodi, who switches from the ministry of occupied regions to labor and national security.

The five point program of the new cabinet, which holds its first meeting tomorrow, is the following: To direct the country's war effort, begin its reconstruction work, assure the defense of its interests abroad, and to restore the laws of the republic.

HOUSE SURVEY WARNS AGAINST POST-WAR WPA

Blasts New Deal Theory of Deficit Financing.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 10.—A nation tasting the sweet of an anticipated early victory was warned today of the bitter financial price for war which it must pay in the years to come.

The most advanced study of future economic problems thus far submitted to Congress was made public by the special house committee on post-war economic policy and planning, composed of 18 members representing every section of the country, many of them experts in the field of finance.

The 10 Democrats and eight Republicans composing the committee signed unanimously a report denouncing New Deal spending panaceas, announcing it was "strongly opposed to the theory that government spending in itself can provide a satisfactory stimulus to production and employment." They scored the WPA as a failure and warned against similar experiments in deficit spending after the war.

Every One to Be Affected.

The report concluded that the huge financial problems to be faced in the future must necessarily affect the economic status of every individual and corporation.

The report noted that the interest alone on a national debt of 300 billions probably will match the total federal tax of the immediate pre-war years. Moreover, a much larger military establishment and benefits for war veterans will add to the burden of the taxpayer, the report said. On top of these, the normal peacetime budget for the conduct of the federal government will make the total of federal expenditures approach 20 billions a year.

What will this huge annual outlay mean to the average citizen, the committee asked, and gave this answer: The cost of supporting the activities of the federal government alone will be around $550 a year for a family of four. State and local governments are likely to need $350 per family, or a total of $900 a year per family of four.

Cost $70 in 1933.

By contrast, the federal cost was $70 per family in 1933, when the New Deal era was ushered in, and $180 in 1940, the last full year before the war.

"The implications should be obvious," the report said. "Unless we can attain higher levels of productive employment than in any previous peacetime period, the burden of necessary taxation may prove intolerable."

Taxes can be reduced below the extreme wartime levels, the report said, "altho there can be no escape from the heavy tax burden which lies ahead."

Numerous revisions of the tax structure were suggested to stimulate investment and production, with specific consideration recommended for "the relief of those tax burdens which bear heaviest upon the lower and middle income groups, and which penalize the enterprising businesses to which we must look for a large share of the funds for expansion of employment opportunities."

Easing of Controls Urged.

Other programs recommended:

1. Gradual and coördinated discontinuance of controls after the war to release the tremendous accumulated spending power represented by 111 billions in liquid savings now available to individuals, which may reach 150 billions, three times the pre-war level, by the end of the war.

2. Removal or reduction of various types of international trade restrictions [protective tariffs], currency manipulations, and trade discriminations. Possible revisions of merchant marine laws to maintain commercial use of the vast fleet which has been built during the war.

"The farm and its welfare will be closely tied to what may be accomplished in maintaining full employment and a high level of income," the report said. "Farm relief can be no satisfactory substitute for full employment and foreign trade."

Family Size Farms Suggested.

The committee suggested encouragement of family-size farms, owner-operated, as a means of stimulating production and stabilizing the farm economy, and added:

A substantial expansion of employment is probable in the construction field, the report found, but experts doubt whether total employment in this field can be increased "by more than a few hundred thousand workers in the first year after the defeat of Germany."

From 12 to 15 million new civilian jobs must be provided within two years after Germany's defeat if large scale unemployment is to be avoided, the report said.

The committee recommended "hastening" of plans for state and local public works, assisted by federal grants in aid on a matched funds basis.

Hunt Soldier Who Fell Thru Plane Camera Hatch

Dodge City, Kan., Sept. 10 (AP).—Army and civil air patrol planes today were searching a wide area of southwest Kansas for the body of Corp. Russell E. Stone, 28, Weatherly, Penn., who is believed to have fallen from a B-26 Marauder Friday night on a combat training flight. When the plane returned the camera hatch was found open and the soldier was missing.

JOYOUS V-DAY OF PATRIOTISM CHICAGO'S AIM

Final Plans Will Be Drafted Tomorrow.

Final plans for a V-day celebration that will express the people's joy without rampant carousing will be drafted by a committee of 97 citizens tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the city council chambers, it was announced yesterday by Mayor Kelly.

The committee will include Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch, Rabbi Benjamin H. Birnbaum, president of the Rabbinical association of Chicago; the Rt. Rev. Wallace E. Conkling, and other religious leaders; Maj. Gen. H. S. Aurand, commanding general of the 6th service command; Rear Adm. A. S. Carpender, commandant of the 9th naval district; Victor Olander, secretary-treasurer, Illinois Federation of Labor; John Fitzpatrick, president, Chicago Federation of Labor, and other labor leaders.

Executives on Committee.

Representatives of the press, radio, schools, transportation lines, the amusement industry, and industrial executives also will be members.

Plans for patriotic celebrations in the larger Chicago parks, with stars of radio, stage, and screen, have been drawn by the amusement and recreation division of the Chicago Commission on National Defense, and will be presented at the meeting, said Hal Halperin, executive administrator of the division.

Dissipation to Be Curbed.

Tentative plans provide for the closing of theaters, cafes, and other places of amusement for the day, and for urging the public to attend the mass celebrations, which would be opened with prayer and continued with entertainment.

A V-day "orgy of dissipation" would be a mockery to the men who have been killed and to those still fighting in the war with Japan, Mayor Kelly told the council Friday when he authorized a committee to arrange a fitting observance.

SLASHES WRIST IN QUARREL.

James Mosher, 30, of 5602 Ridge av., will appear in Town Hall court today, charged with disorderly conduct. He slashed his left wrist with a razor blade yesterday after a quarrel with his wife, Helen, 25. Police said Mrs. Mosher told them her husband had been discharged from the navy Sept. 1.

ACTION PRESSED TO CURB BRITISH ENVOYS IN U. S.

Warning to Halt Political Acts Is Up to House.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 10.—Early house action will be sought by Rep. Calvin D. Johnson [R., Ill.], on his resolution asking that Ronald Campbell, British minister extraordinary and envoy plenipotentiary, and Girja Shankar Bajpai, British minister for India in Washington, be declared "persona non grata" should they continue their efforts "to mold American public opinion" concerning the confidential report on India of Ambassador William Phillips to President Roosevelt.

Ronald Campbell.

Girja Shankar Bajpai.

The resolution, now in the hands of the house foreign affairs committee, declared that the two diplomats endeavored to influence the American press regarding India. It was reported they had instructed British consuls thruout the United States to ask American papers to counteract the Phillips report, which said this country is getting little assistance from India in the war against Japan and that no more can be expected unless the British promise to grant India independence.

British Blamed for Recall.

British ire over the report allegedly led to Phillips' recall. Phillips, former ambassador to Italy, had been the minister to India and more recently was diplomatic adviser to Gen. Eisenhower, allied commander in chief. The state department has denied that any recall was asked.

Johnson charged that the two British ministers have been trying to influence the American press and that congress should put a stop to having the country pushed around by officials of allied nations. He said efforts to mold public opinion here by ministers and consuls constitute a gross violation of American hospitality, which may be punished by recall or dismissal.

Gavin Backs Stand.

Johnson's resolution, introduced Aug. 30, was supported during the week by Rep. Gavin [R., Pa.], who said that if American consuls had attempted any suppression of news of a similar nature anywhere in the British empire they would have been booted out "just as William Phillips was booted out."

Gavin told the house of the reported activity of British consuls and remarked: "Evidently they were at work, because the Phillips story did not break in some of our metropolitan papers until several days later." Gavin lashed at the social minded, nobility-loving aristocrats in the state department, saying that the Declaration of Independence has been nullified by New Deal subservience to "British arrogance."

Rep. Johnson cited precedence for the recall or dismissal of British diplomats for endeavoring to influence American public opinion by citing a celebrated incident during the administration of Grover Cleveland.

Sackville-West Case Cited.

The then British ambassador, Lionel Sackville-West, wrote a naturalized British-born American citizen advocating the latter cast his vote for Cleveland. The letter was released by the Republicans in the 1888 political campaign. Democrats demanded the ambassador's recall.

Sackville-West made a lame explanation to the state department. He then gave an interview in which he spoke resentfully of American political tricks, the action of congress, and by implication impugned the good faith of Cleveland.

President Cleveland then asked for Sackville-West's dismissal. When Prime Minister Salisbury refused to call the envoy home, he was dismissed.

The Johnson resolution served to emphasize the activity of British diplomatic representatives in the capital and thruout the United States. At the height of the lend-lease debate British Ambassador Halifax took an office on Capitol hill to lobby for passage of the measure. He left the capital when his action was denounced on the floor of the senate.

Work on Friendship.

It is common gossip in Washington that the ambassador knows more members of congress than President Roosevelt.

From the British embassy the visits of various titled Britishers have been carefully directed toward making friends and influencing members of congress toward friendship for Britain and her programs.

The doors of the embassy are always open to congressmen, who wish to impress constituents by having them meet the British ambassador. Since senators and congressmen can no longer have constituents shake the hand of the president, they have routed constituents to the red brick British embassy on Massachusetts av.

Rep. Gavin declared in the house that many American diplomats and other officials think more of an invitation to tea at the British embassy than to looking after American interests.

This is my wife. She always picks out my new suits.

MORE BALLOTS ARE MAILED TO MEN IN SERVICE

Thousands of additional soldiers' ballots were mailed yesterday as 150 clerks worked all day in the election commissioners' office and its adjacent hallway in the city hall.

Almost 40,000 ballots awaited workers when they reported. Chief Clerk John S. Rusch estimated that 118,000 requests for ballots had arrived by last night. The number received daily has dwindled to about 2,000 and is expected to decrease until the deadline five days before election day.

Rusch said that altho ballots for the rest of the 118,000 applications and the 22,000 in the hands of County Clerk Flynn would not arrive from the printers before Wednesday, he expected to see them all in mail by the end of the week, ending the initial run of business.

All mail in connection with the soldiers' ballots is carried by air.

LYONS DEMANDS FULL TRUTH ON PEARL HARBOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cambridge, Ill., Sept. 10.—A demand that full information on the responsibility for Pearl Harbor be revealed at once was made today by Richard J. Lyons, Republican nominee for United States senator.

He said the "real culprits" were in Washington and were not the military and naval commanders in Hawaii when the Japanese struck.

Criticizing President Roosevelt for attempting to make political capital of his recent Pacific cruise aboard a warship, Lyons said:

"During the Pacific jaunt the President is reported to have stopped at Pearl Harbor. I think it was good that he went to Pearl Harbor. It may serve to remind him there are two men—Rear Adm. Kimmel and Maj. Gen. Short—still awaiting trial for what happened there on that infamous day."

With State Sen. Arnold P. Benson, Republican candidate for secretary of state, Lyons spoke at a Henry county picnic in a grove at Andover, west of this county seat.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 10 (AP).—Dominion observatory officials reported today moderately severe earth tremors were recorded last night. [A dispatch from Cornwall yesterday said a moderately severe tremor rocked the city again Saturday.]

SECRET SERVICE SET UP TO TRAP OPA VIOLATORS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 10.—The fact that the office of price administration has established a special currency protection branch staffed with agents empowered to make arrests was disclosed today. The agency said the special operatives were necessary to cope with organized distributors of illegal ration currency, and counterfeiters and burglars who supply the distributors.

The OPA disclosed that specially trained men of the new branch were used in connection with the arrest last week in New York of four men and the seizure of a press and equipment the OPA said was set up to print almost 5 million counterfeit gasoline coupons. They said the coupons would have been good for almost 25 million gallons of gasoline and would have been worth $3,500,000 in the black market.

Fifteen sets of counterfeiting equipment have been seized this year, the OPA said.

Like Secret Service.

The branch is under supervision of Robert R. Ehrlich, OPA chief investigator. The agents are the only OPA employes empowered to make arrests. OPA said the branch is patterned after the secret service and that advice of that government agency was asked at each stage of its organization.

The OPA's secret agents begin their training by attending criminal investigation courses given by the treasury department for its own operatives. With men of the alcohol tax unit, the bureau of narcotics, and the intelligence unit of the internal revenue department they are schooled in modern methods of detection and apprehension of big time racketeers.

Secret Files Opened.

The central files of the secret service are made available to the OPA sleuths, and the secret service has lent OPA the men who are directly in charge of coördinating the new agency's field operations.

The alcohol tax unit works with the OPA on case sinvolving contraband sugar ration stamps, since illicit alcohol manufacturers constitute the most lucrative market for these coupons. State and local police also are giving aid to the new agents, OPA said.

THE WORLD'S LARGEST LIVESTOCK HOTEL

This "hotel" is located on a thousand acres of choice grassland at Montgomery, Illinois, where livestock is pastured on its way to market. Spacious barns and pastures provide de luxe accommodations for as many as 100,000 guests. Over ten million pounds of scientifically formulated feed is served each year.

A lot of folks are under the impression that shipping livestock is a simple procedure of "packing them in" and "shooing them out" when they've reached market. Far from it. The main point is to see that they get to market in prime condition and without loss of weight. When long distances are involved, that calls for regular feeding and watering, en route. Careful inspection of all livestock is standard procedure during these "hotel" interludes, too. There are even facilities for shearing sheep during their stop-over on the way to market—as many as 1500 can be de-wooled in a single day.

There are many livestock "hotels" strategically located on the Burlington System—at Denver, Casper, Billings, Edgemont, Lincoln, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis, Creston, St. Paul—in fact, at more than 50 spots in 9 different states. They play a major part in safeguarding the millions of dollars' worth of livestock which moves over its lines every year.

ANTI-NEW DEAL TEXANS KEEP UP ELECTORS FIGHT

Issue Will Be Carried to State Convention.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 10.—The anti-New Deal and anti-fourth term uprising which has split the Democratic party of Texas today moved toward its showdown in Tuesday's state convention in an atmosphere charged with discord.

The convention issue is over rival anti-Roosevelt and pro-Roosevelt slates of Presidential electors for the November election. A peace compromise suggested by Gov. Coke Stevenson and indorsed by the White House to put both slates on the ballot is being discussed pro and con in preliminary conferences but no harmony is in sight.

The September convention is ordinarily limited to routine business such as certifying results of the May convention.

Whether the convention Tuesday will be controled by the anti-New Dealers or by the pro-Roosevelt group is still in doubt. The credentials committee today heard more contests between rival groups of delegates.

It Started Last May.

The controversy had its genesis in the May convention of the party at Austin. This convention which was anti-New Deal controled, named 23 Democratic Presidential electors, and "instructed and directed" them to vote for other Democrats than the national party candidates.

Pro-Roosevelt supporters, after losing two test votes in the Austin regular state convention, bolted and held a rump convention. They put up a slate of Presidential electors and also a set of delegates to the Chicago national convention.

At Chicago, the night before the national convention opened the Texas regular delegates decided to cast their 48 votes for Sen. Byrd [D., Va.] for President. Mississippi, Virginia, Louisiana joined the revolt. When President Roosevelt was nominated, Byrd got 89 votes from southern states.

Marched Out of Convention.

The national convention after a floor battle, seated both the regulars and the rump delegation, splitting the Texas 48 convention votes between the two. The regular [anti-Roosevelt] group responded by marching out of the Stadium, singing "The eyes of Texas are upon you."

In precinct and county conventions in July, the Roosevelt forces of Texas sought to capture the September state convention next Tuesday, by the election of pro-Roosevelt delegates. The drive was with a view of undoing in September the work of the May convention in the matter of electors.

Fifteen out of the 23 Democratic Presidential electors selected by the Austin regular convention are against the national party ticket.

John Wheeler of San Antonio, a regular Democratic nominee for elector, in a newspaper advertisement says he intends to vote for Sen. Byrd.

Denies Right to a Recount.

"The suggestion that the September convention can legally undo what was done by the May convention," he asserts, "is much the same as the act of the Chicago boss and communist controled convention seating both sets of Texas delegates."

Wheeler and others argue the May rump convention has the right to have its nominees for presidential electors printed on the ballot, but not as Democrats.

The anti-fourth termers figure that if the election is extremely close, the Texas anti-Roosevelt electors, if they win, might have votes enough to keep Roosevelt or Dewey from getting a majority of the electoral college, and the house of representatives would then elect the president. Wheeler suggested that if there is a deadlock in the electoral college "Sen. Byrd may be the next president."

C. C. Renfro, who was a regular delegate to the Chicago convention, opposes Stevenson's plan.

"Why should we, the regular Democrats of Texas surrender what we have won in a legitimate Democratic way?" he asked. "Why should we surrender to Sidney Hillman and the CIO?"

The Inquiring Camera Girl
BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by William Butler, Bloomington, Ill.]

THE QUESTION.
What was the first gift you gave a girl?

WHERE ASKED.
Chicago Service Center No. 1, 176 W. Washington st.

THE ANSWERS.

Pvt. Clinton Clapp, 9831 Nottingham av., Oak Lawn—While I was over in Scotland, I met a very congenial girl. She was very kind to me and as a friendly gesture I asked her if she would like to have me send her something from the United States. I bought her a rosary and an attractive little bracelet.

Ed Dodson, aviation machinist's mate 1st class, Lawrence, Kas.—I've never been one to buy gifts for girls and it wasn't until recently that I ever gave a girl a gift. However, the exception occurred when I went to the Hawaiian Islands. Every one else was sending stuff home, so I sent a girl a walnut hand carved necklace.

Reid Hughes, seaman 1st class, High Point, N. C.—The first thing I gave a girl was a compact. I had been going with her for some time when we were in high school and when her birthday rolled around I picked out the nicest compact I could find, had my mother wrap it for me and gave it to her that night. She always carried it.

Dennis Strickland, seaman 1st class, Rayville, La.—It seems that when I once got the idea to buy my girl a present I went wild. She had been hinting around for a small token of our friendship and I got the idea but good. I spent all my cash to buy her a necklace, bracelet, and a wristwatch. She accepted them.

Theodore Muller, seaman 1st class, Great Barrington, Mass. — When I was about 17 I had a swell girl friend and wanted to make a good impression on her. It was Christmas and I wanted to buy her something better than every one else had gotten her. I bought her an elegant mirrored, fitted cosmetic case.

Louis Carino, seaman 1st class, New Rochelle, N. Y. — Before I bought my first gift for a girl I was hesitant as to the kind of gift I should get. I wanted to buy an engagement ring but I didn't know if she'd take it. So I bought her a birthstone, and later we replaced it with an engagement ring and wedding band.

REP. DEWEY RIPS SELF-SEEKERS SNEAKING POWER

Rep. Dewey, Republican nominee for congress in the ninth Illinois district, charged yesterday that the country is endangered by a "sneaking crowd of self-seekers." He spoke at a meeting in which he was welcomed home from Washington in St. Philip Benizi church hall, Oak st. and Cambridge av., before a crowd estimated at 3,000.

"This is a danger second only to the war," said Dewey, "The self-seekers are obtaining power because the boys are away at the front." He predicted a Republican landslide in November.

Zasu Pitts, motion picture actress, told the gathering that she is going to vote for Dewey and Bricker.

National Chairman Hannegan of the Democrats will move into the Blackstone hotel today for a three day meeting with leaders from 23 midwestern and southern states. Edwin Pauley, national committee treasurer; Paul Porter, publicity man; national committeemen and women, state chairmen and women, and state finance directors will join the huddle.

WOMAN G. O. P. AID SAYS SURVEY FAVORS DEWEY

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—Marian Martin, assistant chairman of the Republican national committee, reported today on her return from a tour of 27 states that "criticism and disintegration" within the party had been removed.

Miss Martin at a press conference gave this summary of her observations during her trip:

"In my opinion, we're going to elect Tom Dewey and Gov. Bricker, also a Republican house and senate. California is about even. You can't count California until the last vote is in the box. We can win without California, but I think we'll win with California. Oregon is in good shape. Oklahoma is a very possible state. Illinois is very good. So is the whole middle west. Maine will go Republican by more than 50,000 votes."

NO HISS DOES NOT MEAN NO VACUUM

Coffee in glass jars is vacuum-packed just as it was in cans

In pre-war days it was a mighty pleasant experience to open a can of vacuum-packed coffee. There was a hissing sound as the seal was broken, and a sudden burst of fragrant coffee aroma.

In opening a vacuum-packed jar of coffee, there is seldom a "hiss" and the abundant aroma of coffee is often missed. However, this does not mean that the coffee is not vacuum-packed or that the jar is faulty. What happens is this. In starting to open a vacuum can, the first turn of the key breaks the seal making just a pin-point hole before the metal strip is wound off. The pressure of "coffee-gas" through this small hole produces the "hiss" and the concentration of coffee aroma. When the cap is removed from a glass jar, however, coffee-gas is released around the entire rim of the jar at one time. Consequently, the pressure is not usually sufficient at any one point to produce a "hiss" and the pronounced "jet" of aroma.

Vacuum-packing of coffee in cans was originated by Hills Bros. in 1900. When wartime demands for tin and steel made it necessary to give up metal containers, Hills Bros. adopted glass jars for vacuum-packing their coffee to keep it fresh.

Users of Hills Bros. Coffee can rest assured that there is no change in its quality. It is still a blend of the finest coffees obtainable and the vacuum-pack protects its freshness even though there is no "hiss" when the cap is removed.

HERO, 15, HOME; HIS POST-WAR AIM: CHICKEN!

He Gets It and Pie, Too; Will Return to School.

Seaman Gerald W. Haddon, 15, a Coast Guard veteran of 13 landings on Normandy, returned to Chicago yesterday 20 pounds lighter than the day he left a year ago and anxious to make short work of some fried chicken and lemon cream pie which had been prepared specially for him.

"That's what I came home for," he told reporters who met the slight, blond youth at La Salle Street station yesterday morning. On hand to greet the hero were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Haddon of 4150 Harrison st., two sisters, June Ruth, 20, and Betty Jane, 21, a brother, Jackson, 13, his grandmother, Mrs. Florence Nevell, and an uncle, Jackson Nevell.

Living in 'Limey Town.'

Gerald explained to a couple of Coast Guard public relations men who hovered near by that the Coast Guard food was adequate, but that he had been living "in Limey town" and things weren't so good there.

He enlisted in Chicago last September, giving his birth date as 1926, and after boot training was assigned to an LST boat, on which he shuttled across the English channel during the first few days of the invasion.

Back in an English port after 40 days of tough amphibious assault, Gerald failed to answer the call for morning muster. The ship's master-at-arms found him asleep and "too tired to get up."

True Age Disclosed.

Routine interrogation which followed disclosed Gerald's true age and he was ordered returned home.

"Even before that morning, I think the chief doubted that I was 18, because when I volunteered for the small boats about two months earlier, he told me I was too young to die," he recalled.

"We were anchored off shore on D-day. But our boat didn't get hit. A few of the army personnel assigned to us were injured when a bomb hit near the end of the boat just as we opened to unload."

Gerald came home on a 10 day leave and must report back to Washington, D. C., on Sept. 22, when he probably will receive a discharge, the Coast Guard said. After that, Gerald said, he will return to Austin High school and get a diploma, and then go on to college.

Tries Pool Room Holdup; Beaten By Irate Patrons

Anthony Schullo, 34, of 1238 Congress st., a Joliet convict on parole, was beaten severely early yesterday when he and two other men attempted to hold up the pool room of Victor Millen at 2211 Grand av. When Schullo drew a revolver he was rushed by eight pool players who disarmed him.

SEEK TO RESCIND NO-STRIKE VOW AT UAW PARLEY

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 10 [Special].—A movement to rescind the union's no-strike pledge confronted delegates to the convention of the United Automobile Workers, largest CIO affiliate, as they assembled here today for the opening session tomorrow. The movement has the support of many of the union's locals.

Seriousness of the movement for abrogation of the no-strike pledge was admitted by union executives. Leading the movement is a group headed by John J. McGill of Buick local 529, Flint.

In a pre-convention radio address today union president, R. J. Thomas, charged that "thus far no adequate steps have been taken to assure jobs for either returned soldiers or those of us who have served at home in recent years in our aircraft, ammunition, and gun plants."

George F. Addes, secretary-treasurer, reported a union membership of 1,047,227, an increase of 331,845 in the year, with income for the year at $6,251,310 and expenditures at $5,389,345.

LT. A. G. ADLER OF CHICAGO WINS A PURPLE HEART

Lt. Arthur G. Adler, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Adler, 1310 Lunt av., has been awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received in action against the Japanese army in northern Burma on Aug. 1, his family was notified yesterday. Lt. Adler, who has been convalescing in an American hospital along the Ledo road in the China-Burma-India theater, was employed by the Utah Copper company prior to joining the armed forces.

Sgt. Joseph F. Wierdak, 26, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wierdak, of 1918 S. Albany av., received shell fragment wounds in the earlier phases of the Normandy invasion, his parents learned yesterday. Wierdak, leader of an infantry platoon, had been in contact with the enemy for nine successive days when he was wounded as he made observations from behind a hedgerow, an army statement said. Wierdak was employed by Stewart-Warner corporation before entering the service.

ELECTION LIKELY TO SWING HOUSE CONTROL TO G.O.P.

tic seats at issue it would be necessary for the Republicans to take 12 to capture control of the senate. Even the most optimistic Republican leaders do not expect to bag more than 8 or 9—this is, unless there should be a Dewey landslide.

Democratic leaders do not concede that they are likely to lose seats. They not only are confident they will hold what they have but predict they will make gains in such states as North Dakota where the Indenpendent candidacy of Stambaugh, whom Sen. Nye defeated in the Republican primary, has produced a three cornered contest, and Connecticut where the CIO is relied upon to carry that highly industrialized constituency for the Democratic candidate.

Industrial districts in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut and other states will be the scene of desperate fighting over house seats as a result of the activity of Sidney Hillman's CIO political action committee.

Hope for AFL Support.

Republican leaders are encouraged, however, by evidence that the threat of domination of the government by the Communist controled CIO is driving the conservative AFL union members into the Republican camp.

John L. Lewis is expected to swing the mine workers against the Roosevelt administration as a result of the raw deal he contends he received at the hands of the war labor board in dealing with the mine strikes last year. Such influence would be potent in behalf of Republican congressional candidates in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Democratic leaders pooh pooh the influence of Lewis, asserting he failed to deliver his following to Willkie in 1940.

3 Cow Watchman, Rifle Oil Company Office Files

Three armed men broke into the Standard Oil company's bulk station at 1350 S. Leavitt st. yesterday, threatened the watchman, Thomas McGuire, 58, of 1035 Hastings st., and ransacked the office. No attempt was made to open the safe, but the men rifled the papers in the files and desk drawers. It was the second time within eight days that the office has been entered. On Sept. 2, four men, two of whom wore caps and overalls, robbed the office of $40 and gasoline coupons good for 35,000 gallons.

HIT ON JAW AND ROBBED.

Three men, who approached him at Van Buren and Sangamon sts., struck him on the jaw and robbed him of $70 in cash and $60 in checks, Jose Chaves Moreno, 412 S. Sangamon st., told police yesterday.

HINES, EX-AID TO F.D.R., QUITS CELL TOMORROW

New York, Sept. 10 [Special].—James J. Hines, 67, will be freed on parole at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday from Sing Sing prison here, where he was sent in October, 1940, after conviction as political fixer for the late Dutch Schultz's $2,000,000 a year policy racket, prison officials said today.

The former powerful Tammany district leader and patronage dispenser in New York City for President Roosevelt, will leave the prison under a parole which forbids him to engage in politics or frequent night clubs and race tracks. For three years he must make monthly reports to the parole board.

Hines is to start work as a salesman after a few days' rest, it was said, but the name of his prospective employer has not been disclosed. While in prison, Hines is reported to have written a book presenting his side of the legal battle with Gov. Dewey, then district attorney of New York, which resulted in his conviction.

HOW THIS COURSE IS CONDUCTED

You will meet one evening a week for sixteen weeks as one of a group of 40 business men and women.

These meetings will be held in private dining rooms of hotels or restaurants. Each group will be strictly limited to forty.

Your instructors will tell you what is right with your talk and what is wrong with it, and how to remedy and improve it. Every member of the class will write his suggestions for improving your talks; so when you finish, you will have the instructor's help and the comments of 39 of your fellow students. You will receive the helpful co-operation of your associates in the class.

As a result of this training you will soon develop courage and self-possession. You will learn to think on your feet. You will conquer fear; and "Fear," said Elbert Hubbard, "defeats more men than any other one thing in the world."

As the course progresses, you will be shown how to plan and prepare and construct your talks, how to illustrate your points, how to be clear, how to be entertaining, how to be impressive and convincing. You will be taught how to appear to advantage before a group, how to remember what you want to say, how to begin and how to end your talks.

If we described here all the things this training will do for you, it would sound like exaggeration. So we have prepared a booklet which outlines the benefits to be derived from this training, which will be given away at this meeting. In our files at 20 E. Jackson Blvd. are the names of hundreds of students who have taken this training. If you care to investigate, we will furnish you any or all of these names. You are invited to write or telephone them and discover for yourself precisely how they have profited by it.

MAKE YOURSELF QUICKLY AND FAVORABLY KNOWN

Theodore Alvy, Chief Engineer of La Cour Iron Works, attended monthly meetings of the American Association of Engineers for twelve years without being able to say a word. After completing this training, he arose at one of their meetings and spoke for twelve minutes.

"I made more friends," said Mr. Alvy, "and acquired more prestige by one twelve-minute talk than I had been able to do in a dozen years as a silent, inarticulate member."

Hundreds of other students have had similar experiences. So can you at meetings in your business or community.

DEWEY BLASTS FCC CENSORSHIP OF BROADCASTS

Government Ownership Abhorrent to Him.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 10.—Gov. Dewey, Republican candidate for President, believes the federal communications commission should have no right to censor radio programs or control their content, the magazine Broadcasting says in its current issue. Dewey's views on the FCC's role in radio were given to a representative of the magazine last week.

The magazine said that when Dewey was asked to elaborate on the Republican platform plank which calls for a "new radio law which will define in unmistakable language the role of the FCC," the candidate said:

"I believe that the FCC should have no right of censorship, that it should not control the content of radio programs. It should stay in the field of regulating technical facilities. And when the FCC starts to control program content, free radio goes out the window."

Abhors U. S. Ownership.

The magazine said Dewey asserted that the thought of government ownership or operation of radio stations is abhorrent to him and to his party, stating that radio in this country has made its great development as part of our American enterprises.

"The government no more belongs in the field than in the field of the newspaper and the magazine," he said.

When asked about the proposal by Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] that sponsorship of news and commentators be banned, Dewey said that "it is as bad for congress to legislate in this field as it is for FCC to regulate program content."

Against Time for PAC.

When asked about the activities of the CIO's political action committee in seeking to force radio to give CIO free radio time, Broadcasting said, Dewey told the reporter radio should present all points of view and guard free speech zealously, and then added:

"No organization that is a rump part of one wing of a political party has a right to demand radio time on behalf of its activities for that party."

Broadcasting said that while Gov. Dewey has no set ideas on the operation of the FCC, he thinks it highly important that the personnel of all government commissions should be of the highest caliber and that his appointees will be of this type.

FM Not U. S. Function.

The development of FM [frequency modulation] and television is up to private enterprise, with the role of the government one of "reasonable regulation," he said.

"But when the government steps in to decide who is going to develop what and how, it is outside the province of government," he added.

The magazine said Dewey believes international broadcasting should play an important part in disseminating news, culture, and knowledge among nations but that no nation shoud try to impose its ideologies on any one against the wishes of its neighbor.

Wrong House and Money, Wrong Watch—He's Held

Stock yards police yesterday arrested Joseph Kriglestein, 48, of 522 W. 44th pl., on an open charge after he was captured in the home of Charles Harding, 508 W. 44th pl. Harding told police he found Kriglestein standing near an open rear window with some money in one hand and Harding's watch in the other. Harding floored the intruder and was sitting on him when police arrived. Kriglestein denied that he was attempting burglary and insisted he thought he was in his own house.

"My daughter's making herself sick. But I can't say anything or they'll stop asking me along on their dates!"

U. S. DRAWS UP WORLD PLAN FOR NEWS FREEDOM

Allied Steps to Guard Peace Proposed.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 10 (AP).—An American proposal for all nations to join to guarantee world freedom of news as a means of preserving peace has been drawn up here and may be submitted soon to the other allied nations.

The proposed policy, which was worked out by the state department, has been under study for some time. A number of proposals have been put forward and rejected by those preparing a draft of the plan. Agreement on a final draft was reached in the last few days.

Persons high in the administration, congressmen, and other officials are known to have been impressed by evidence from liberated Europe and from German prisoners of the extent to which the Nazis have misled peoples politically by first poisoning their minds wtih "lying propaganda and half-truths."

Free Use of News Favored.

The proposed American policy is understood to cover two main points:

1. That news reporters should have the right to gather news wherever it develops or exists and to write and transmit it out of any country without hindrance.

2. That each country should permit the unhindered receipt of news from anywhere else in the world.

Means of promoting the free interchange of information among countries has been in the diplomatic hopper since Secretary of State Hull, at the beginning of the war, initiated studies on organizing the post-war world.

Army and French Agree.

Up to the present the undertaking had reached its most advanced point in an agreement between the United States army and the French national committee of liberation stating the French should not exercise censorship over correspondents.

It also has been decided that one of the first allied activities in Germany will be to wrest from the Nazis all means of communication and restore free and honest news to the German people.

The aim of the American policy is to lower communications tolls to such a degree as to encourage a greater exchange of information.

2 NEGRO GROUPS ASK ROOSEVELT TO ACT IN TEXAS

A demand that President Roosevelt call out troops if necessary to preserve the political rights of Negroes in Texas was telegraphed to the White House yesterday by the National Negro council and the Chicago Citizens' Committee of 1,000, after a meeting in the Liberty Baptist church, 46th st. and Michigan av. Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro council, told the meeting that the Democratic party in Texas is committed to a plank in its platform to preserve white supremacy and to bar Negroes from participation in Democratic primaries in Texas.

CITE DEMOCRAT V-DINNER HOST THRU HATCH ACT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 10 (AP).—The civil service commission ruled today that France Paris, Oklahoma highway commissioner, violated the Hatch act by assisting in arranging a "victory dinner" in Oklahoma City, June 14, 1943, and that violation "warrants his removal from the office." Paris is a Democrat.

The commission interpreted the Hatch act as prohibiting such activities by officers and employes of state or local agencies whose principal employment is in connection with activities financed in whole or in part by federal grants or loans. The federal government makes highway grants to states.

President Harry B. Mitchell of the commission dissented from the finding, asserting that altho the Hatch act has been violated, the breach was not of a character to warrant Paris' removal from office.

The law provides that if Oklahoma should continue to retain Paris in office, the government shall deduct twice the commissioner's yearly salary from the federal funds handled by him.

The commission said Paris served as chairman of the state Democratic central committee and participated in arranging and conducting the victory dinner for the purpose of raising funds for the Democratic party while he was highway commissioner.

SCHENLEY DISTILLERS CORP., NEW YORK

Modesty!

This is a little story about a gentleman who has an important job in Schenley's Cincinnati operations. He is seventy-six years old and sets a pace that oftentimes makes younger men gasp for breath. His name is George "Pop" Muenzenmaier.

You know, securing cartons for the shipment of merchandise has been one of our greatest problems. So we at Schenley's instituted a carton salvaging program under which these used paper board containers are collected from dealers all over the country and shipped back to our plants for rehabilitation and re-use.

At our plant in Lawrenceburg, Indiana, "Pop" Muenzenmaier is in charge. During a recent month 85% of all shipments from our Lawrenceburg plant were packed in rehabilitated and re-used cartons. "Pop" Muenzenmaier was complimented by no less than the vice-president in charge of operations and by the chairman of the board. In their letters of commendation they mentioned his achievement of attaining 85%.

There is a humorous slant to this incident which is reminiscent of the old story of the ball player who won a game for his team by clearing the loaded bases with a three-bagger. When his team-mates pounced upon him there was a lot of handshaking and backslapping. The hero was very apologetic for making only a three-bagger; when he swung that old bat he really tried for a home run.

"Pop" Muenzenmaier didn't quite know how to take the letters he received. He didn't know whether he was criticized for making only 85% and so apologized for the 15% that was lacking. He wrote to his chief:

"I realize that I am not the youngster that I was at one time (at 76 years of age you are no kid anymore), and sometimes wonder (when pressure is put on me) whether you might think I am slipping."

Well, "Pop", after all these years, it looks to us as though your apprenticeship days are over and you now have a steady job.

GAS SPRAYING PHANTOM HITS 2 MORE HOMES

Two Children Are Among Five Victims.

BY CHARLES BALLENGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mattoon, Ill., Sept. 10.—After 24 hours of inactivity, Mattoon's gas spraying prowler struck at two homes tonight on the city's northwest side, which he has terrorized since Sept. 2. Five persons, including two children, were stricken by the nauseous, paralyzing vapor, but the phantom prowler did not gain entry.

Kenneth Fitzpatrick, 24, and his wife, Mary, 20, were the first victims. The two were playing cards in the living room about 11 p. m. Their daughter, Sandra Jo, 2, was sleeping near-by. Mrs. Fitzpatrick went into the kitchen and was enveloped by the fumes, which burned her lips and nauseated her.

Feeling her strength ebbing, she screamed. Her husband ran to her assistance and also was partially overcome. The gas apparently was sprayed into the room thru a crack beneath an ill fitting kitchen door, police said. The sleeping child was unaffected.

Two Girls Gassed.

Shortly afterward, the prowler appeared at the home of John Grafton, six blocks away. His daughter, Mrs. Richard Daniels, whose husband is in the army, was alone with two small sisters, Joan Grafton, 12, and Evon, 8. The younger girl thought she heard a noise at the front door and the three entered the living room which seemed filled with the sweetish gas. All three were affected, Mrs. Daniels most seriously. Physicians ordered her to bed.

Fifteen other alarms were answered by police during the night. Saturday night's lull was attributed to the presence of armed farmers who patroled the city, especially the northwest side. Tension grew, however, as darkness approached and police acknowledged they were no nearer a solution.

Two Under Suspicion.

Two local residents remain under suspicion and a thoro check of their movements during the last week of almost nightly attacks is being made, police said.

In a special meeting this morning, Mayor E. E. Richardson, Police Commissioner Thomas Wright, and William Kidwell, state's attorney for Coles county, and Police Chief C. R. Cole made plans to call for aid from the state police or to appoint a special group of deputies to patrol the streets if the prowler continues his attacks. A pack of bloodhounds may also be used.

Berle Says Nazis Run Several 'Murder Plants'

New York, Sept. 10 [Special].—Assistant Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle Jr., confirming recently published reports of Nazi "murder plants" near Lublin, Poland, today disclosed that from "information at hand this was one of several operated to accomplish the slaughter of millions of defenseless men, women, and children." Berle spoke at an interfaith citizens' rally attended by 5,000 persons. He said captured documents showed the Nazi high command's plan to "Balkanize the United States," by creating an anti-Semitic movement "to rouse hatred against Jews."

MORE THAN 100 DIE IN MEXICAN FLOODS, REPORT

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 10 (AP).—Rains continued to drench most of Mexico today as flood-stricken areas counted their dead, expected to exceed 100, and took stock of extensive property damage. The Chihuahua mining town, Parral, was isolated by flood waters, and reports from Torreon stated that the Parral death toll had mounted to 100.

Chihuahua City reported that rescue crews are seeking to reach 200 miners trapped by flood waters in a mine at San Francisco Del Oro, near Parral.

South of Parral, where the Nazas river left its banks, hundreds and perhaps thousands of persons were believed homeless. In western Mexico, a flood death toll of 15 has been reported, mostly in Colima and Jalisco states.

The customer ordered six bottles of liquor in the store at 2244 Foster av., then, seemingly as an afterthought, drew a pistol and told Morris Schwartz, the manager, to put the cash register contents in on top of the liquor. This amounted to $200, Schwartz told police.

AX SLAYER KILLS HIS FAMILY OF 5; SURRENDERS

New Lexington, O., Sept. 10 (AP). Sheriff Clair Butts reported today Vincent J. Nash, 50, of Crooksville killed the five members of his family with an ax as they slept this morning and surrendered.

The dead were Nash's wife, Emma, 46; their daughters, Leana, 21, Mildred, 20, and Rosalie, 5, and their son, Cletus, 18. Butts said the two older girls were killed in bed together, and that Nash then killed his wife, the younger daughter, and the son. After that he went to the home of John Brown, Crooksville marshal, and asked that police be called. The sheriff said Nash told him he committed the slayings because "I thought I was doing the best thing for my family."

Prosecutor Joseph L. Meenan said Nash had signed a confession but that charges probably would not be filed until after a sanity investigation.

They grow BUSHELS of HEALTH

Washington, the "Evergreen State", leads the nation in the production of apples . . . . firm, juicy, health-building apples. In addition to vitamin-packed fruits and vegetables, Washington's farms, forests, mines and factories supply many other products essential to our country's growth and preservation.

Washington's citizens are industrious and progressive; traits inherited from the early settlers. The state's agricultural and industrial prosperity proves the worth of the age-old American doctrine . . . the firm belief that enterprise and initiative will clear the path to success and security. CHICAGO JOINS U. S. IN HONORING RADAR INDUSTRY

Navy Certificate Given Before 35,000

Thirty-five thousand persons attended a colorful rally yesterday in Wrigley field honoring the Radar-Radio Industries of Chicago and their 70,000 workers for war production achievements.

It was understood to be the first time that recognition of this type had been accorded an entire industrial group. The Chicago radar and electronics industry is credited with having produced almost half of the radar equipment purchased by the navy.

Rear Adm. A. S. Carpender, commandant of the 9th naval district, presented the group with a certificate of achievement on behalf of the secretary of the navy. It was accepted by Leslie F. Muter, president of Radar-Radio Industries, a group of 65 companies.

A hostess from each of the companies was presented with a replica of the award by Comdr. Roger Q. White of Great Lakes naval training center.

Navy's Air Hero Speaks.

An honored guest was Lt. Alexander Vraciu, navy ace of East Chicago, whose Grumman "Hellcat" plane, with which he bagged eight of his 19 Jap planes, was on display at the main entrance to Wrigley field.

"There is no such a thing as an ace in the navy," Lt. Vraciu told the assemblage. "We are all a team and you, too, are a part of that team. That plane out there could not have been built without your help."

Ace Saved by Radar.

Lt. Vraciu told of an incident far out at sea in which, without radar equipment, he probably never would have managed to return to his carrier after his plane was disabled 100 miles away.

Adm. Carpender expressed his gratitude to radar-radio workers on behalf of the sailors, marines, and coast guards "of the seven seas and the beachheads of the world." "They know," he said, "that your contribution has played a major part in making possible the successes which have come to our forces in the combat areas."

"In presenting this certificate of achievement to you today," he added, "I must remind you that it is a challenge to continue to fight."

Mayor Kelly was among the guests and presented Lt. Vraciu.

SQUARE INTERIOR OF PLANE ADDS TO CARGO SPACE

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 10 [Special].—The war's first airplane designed exclusively for the carriage of military cargo, the C-82, today was successfully test flown at the Fairchild aircraft plant. Benny Howard, veteran flyer, designer and test pilot made the initial flight.

The new airplane is about twice the size and capacity of the familiar DC-3 of the air lines.

As the plane stands on its tricycle landing gear, the bottom of its fuselage, which is square in the interior, is at the height of a truck platform from the ground. The streamlined after end opens up to the complete height and width of the interior and freight can be stowed directly from a truck or winched up a ramp carried by the plane.

The interior of the plane is sufficiently large to carry a 90 mm. gun complete on its carriage so that the weapon can be rolled out ready to aim and fire the moment the plane stops moving. Tanks and jeeps and other weapons can similarly be unloaded near the front without the necessity of assembling them under fire.

The plane has a range of over 3,500 miles.

ARMY TO MERGE 2 UNITS IN AIR FORCES TODAY

Starting today, the army air forces material command at 11 W. Jackson blvd. will be known as the air technical service command. The new office is a consolidation of the old material and air service commands. Lt. Gen. William S. Knudsen is national director of the command with headquarters at Wright field, O. Col. Nelson S. Talbott heads the Chicago office.

Merger of the commands was ordered recently by Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding general of the army air forces.

Field functions of engineering, procurement, inspection, and readjustment of contracts will be continued on a decentralized basis by the six procurement districts with headquarters in New York, Atlanta, Ga., Detroit, Mich., Wichita, Kas., Chicago, and Los Angeles, Cal. There are also 14 area headquarters.

DAY by DAY on the FARM & BOB BECKER

Sept. 10, 1944.

THE farm ponds and the chicken farm are busy places these days, but they offer quite a contrast as far as noise is concerned. It's delightfully quiet around the water areas, for the birds are so busy hunting food that they spend little time telling the world about their activity, whereas the various kinds of domesticated fowls at the chicken farm seem to talk most of the day.

Among the birds that are visiting the water areas on the farm are the migrating shore birds. Every year some of these travelers pick up a meal or two around the edges of the pond. Then the blue herons and the black-crowned night herons also come in for their fishing. These aquatic birds are adept at catching small frogs and crawfish.

Snowy Egrets Missing.

Altho we haven't seen the snowy white egrets around the ponds this fall, they used to be pretty faithful visitors in former years. Of all the birds that move into Chicagoland late in the summer to stay thru the early autumn, we know of few that cause more comment than the stately egrets. They like the shallow ponds, lakes, and sloughs in Chicagoland at this time of the year and will stay here until cooler weather sends them southward.

Fortunately for all the bird fans around Chicago, these beautiful wading birds have been increasing so that it's possible to see them on dozens of small ponds and along the rivers and lakes in northern Illinois at a time when their snow white plumage makes such a beautiful contrast against the rich autumnal colors.

Except for the complaining call of the bluejays or the strident notes of the killdeer, it's quiet around the ponds. If one wants activity plus noise, visit the chicken farm, where half grown turkeys, chickens, guinea hens, ducks, and other fowls seem to be trying to outdo each other in broadcasting their individual calls. When one adds the 4-11 alarm calls of the guinea hens to all the quacks, gobbles, and chicken noises, the din is terrific. The pet lamb eats with the chickens and they perch on his head and back without fear.

Pointer Turns Ratter.

The pointer named Ned that belongs to one of the men on the farm is carrying on such a rat killing campaign and in such a skilful manner that any terrier would be envious of him.

Terriers are known to be keen for rat killing jobs, but this is the first pointer we ever heard of that can pinch hit for a terrier and make a high batting average.

One of the boys said last week that Ned had caught more than a dozen rats since he launched his campaign against these destructive rodents.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

THO we usually have no frost in northern Illinois until late September, gardeners will be wise to decide upon a progressive schedule so that all of the tender vegetables will be harvested before frost time. Some crops can stand no frost; others can survive light frosts, but are killed by heavy freezes; a third class of hardy vegetables can remain in the ground all winter without being damaged.

All of the bean vegetables are tender. Gardeners should harvest their snap beans, limas, pole beans, and edible soybeans regularly thru September so none will be caught by a sudden frost.

Tomatoes also are very tender, but can be carried thru light frosts, if given some protection. Gardeners who have staked plants should, in mid-September, cut the twines which hold them to the stakes and allow the plants to rest on the ground. Then, if frosts threaten, the tomatoes can be protected with bean plants, asparagus foliage, peony stalks, straw, or similar mulching material.

BAR ASSOCIATION GROUP IN FAVOR OF WORLD COURT

Members of a special committee of the American Bar association, which opens its 67th annual meeting here today, will declare in favor of a world court, the president of the bar association, Joseph W. Henderson of Philadelphia, Pa., announced last night. On the program for today also are speeches by Manley O. Hudson, present member of the permanent court of international justice, and R. L. Maitland, K. C., president of the Canadian Bar association.

The committee will report to the house of delegates of the bar association, President Henderson announced. It is, he said, "in earnest support of the earliest practicable establishment of a general international organization based on the sovereign equality of the peace loving nations."

Members of Committee.

The committee is headed by former Judge William L. Ransom of New York, with the following members: Judge Frederic H. Miller of the Supreme court of Iowa; Charles M. Ray, Missouri, deputy director of the war man power commission; Frank E. Holman of Seattle, Wash.; Judge Orie L. Phillips of Colorado, senior judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, 2d circuit; M. C. Sloss, former judge of the Supreme court of California, and Reginald H. Smith of Boston, Mass. Their report was said to be unanimous. It reads:

"The house of delegates urges that, at the earliest practicable time, as one of the vital steps in an adequate post-war organization of the nations for peace and law, the permanent court of international justice shall be continued and its jurisdiction and powers broadened as the highest tribunal in the international organization."

Armed Force Mentioned.

The report asks the house of delegates to declare that it "recognizes the practical need that whatever general international organization is created after the war shall include as its basic body an assembly representative of all peace loving nations, with defined and limited powers, as well as some form of administrative or executive council or councils with authority and powers to compel obedience to the decrees of the permanent court of international justice, deal with and settle disputes which are non-justiciable, and act promptly to prevent by armed force if need be, incipient aggressions or acts of war."

THREE TERMS WITH THE FOURTH TERMER.

The excuse for the fourth term is invaluable experience obtained in the other three. The fourth termers realize that there must be excuses and that they had better be good. The fourth term in undecorated insolence is not an attractive thing. It needs covering up. Mr. Roosevelt is supposed in his twelve years to have acquired and ripened so many qualities of statesmanship, administrative capacity, military ability, and world vision that he could not in good conscience give up his office, and the people, in regard for their own safety, could not reject his generous offer to continue in their service. For the first time in the history of the Republic it has only one man who could be trusted with the Presidency.

Mr. Roosevelt's supporters queer their pitching a bit when they pay their tribute to the opening performances of their prodigy. His miracles started as soon as he stepped into office. According to Mr. Truman, the second place candidate, a President needs a year to find his way about. His hero, however, entered the White House fully equipped for everything. When he was inaugurated he had all the answers in his pocket. Which way do the fourth termers want it?

Mr. Roosevelt and the country have had twelve years' experience together. What sort of experience? Such that not even the United States could stand a duplicate of it.

In twelve years he has never allowed the American people a normal one.

He has increased their debts until the figures are almost beyond computation and quite beyond comprehension.

He has had the longest depression and the greatest wars in United States history. In three sentences that's his experience and the country's.

As an executive he has failed in the first test of competence. He has never been able to get teamwork from his subordinates. He has not known how to prevent dissensions and conflicts of authority. In this test of administrative ability his record is one of striking failure. It is a fair test.

As a statesman he made his debut in foreign affairs with his first inauguration, and his first achievement was to wreck the London economic conference. He did that with his commodity dollar, one of his funny money ideas. His disservice to world stability at the time is difficult to determine precisely. In 1933 he may have done more than one man's share in making the events of 1939 unescapable. He then proved that he was temperamentally unfitted to give directions. It was also in keeping with his traits of administration that he wilfully made the American delegation to the conference, headed by Mr. Hull, a discordant body of men, distrustful of each other, and that when, in critical moments, they wanted to communicate with him he was out of reach, joyriding on a warship.

He may have had no particular responsibility for the failure of the disarmament conference the same year. Nevertheless, the far-seeing man in the White House didn't see that the new man in Berlin, Adolf Hitler, needed only the disarmament failure to rearm Germany, and, so far as we know, Mr. Roosevelt went along with Great Britain in willingness that he should do so, and that he should also reënter the Rhineland, in spite of the well founded French premonitions of disaster.

One fateful conference he made peculiarly his own, and that one, dealing with the ingredients of the war we now fight in the Pacific, merely left its cards in Brussels and went home. The fourth termers point with pride to the quarantine speech of October, 1937, as evidence that their paragon in world affairs was aware, long before any one else, of the dangers which threatened. The Asiatic evil was recognized in the Harding administration and treaties were signed to allay it. In the Hoover administration, Mr. Stimson, secretary of state, undertook to enforce the treaties, and Great Britain talked him out of it. The Brussels conference followed Mr. Roosevelt's quarantine speech, having been previously arranged. Again Great Britain had more use for Japan than China. Mr. Roosevelt submitted. The approach to the war was full of such statesmanship. The fourth termers are welcome to their share of it.

Mr. Roosevelt's diplomacy before the war is not an open book. There is much we do not know about it. It is apparent, however, that he promised things he didn't have to give and had no authority to offer. Reynaud's last hour appeal for clouds of airplanes in June, 1940, indicated that France had received assurances of help in a war with Germany.

As commander in chief, fully warned by Mr. Hull that the Japanese affair had passed out of the hands of diplomacy and that the army and navy must look to the safety of the country, Mr. Roosevelt, further warned by Ambassador Grew that the attack might be a sneak, allowed the ships and planes to be caught unaware and unprepared at Pearl Harbor in the morning of a Sunday off. After election this story will come out.

Mr. Churchill and Mr. Stalin, no doubt, hope that they can continue to deal with Mr. Roosevelt after the election. They know him well. He has given them everything they want. He allowed them to declare his cherished work, the Atlantic Charter, null so far as it affected their interests. They might be properly apprehensive if they had to deal with a new American President.

The country can hardly afford any more experience with Mr. Roosevelt's experience in statesmanship and administration.

ROCKET TAKE-OFFS.

The navy has developed a jet-assisted take-off engine, each unit of which develops energy approximating 330 horsepower. These "jato" motors, as the navy calls them, make possible a reduction of 33 to 60 per cent in the length of the take-off runs, or a greatly increased plane load.

The navy has placed orders for quantity production of the new devices, because land based marine and navy fighters and bombers, using the "jato" can take off from small island air strips with less danger and rendezvous more quickly for attack or defense. The boosters will also cut the take-off run of a navy fighter in half, enabling airplane carriers to use more deck space for planes and get more planes into the air.

The "jato" engines may solve another navy problem, first called to public attention in an article by Lt. Comdr. William C. Chambliss more than a year ago in the Naval Institute Proceedings. Carriers have to head into the wind as a rule, he said, to release or to take on their planes. When carriers are sailing with the wind to a destination, they have to stop and turn about to launch and take aboard aircraft. This is a nuisance and a delay when constant air patrols have to be maintained. The speed built into the carriers may be nullified by frequent halts to head into the wind, and the speed of an entire task force thus greatly reduced.

The "jato" take-offs, with the added speed and push they give, may eliminate the necessity for launching carrier based planes into the wind, thus removing at least one of the turn-abouts. Where carriers work in packs, as ours have been doing in the Pacific, a fleet heading leeward toward the enemy might be able to release its full attack strength of planes without any halts or jockeying.

THE LOUISVILLE SPEECH.

Gov. Dewey's speech at Louisville can be commended for its emphasis on the importance of justice among nations as the essential basis for an enduring peace, a point that is all too frequently overlooked. His statement of the right of small nations to their part in a future world order was equally well taken. His insistence on open discussion of foreign policy, and particularly of the machinery to be set up for maintaining peace was sensible, and so, too, was his reminder that the preservation of peace is no easy task. His denunciation of the effort of the Washington wasters "to buy themselves international power out of our pocketbooks" was a timely rebuke.

When all this has been said, however, the fact remains that Gov. Dewey's effort at Louisville to remove major questions of foreign policy from the campaign is not likely to win him a single vote from the allen-minded. The amateur colonials, the Communists, and all the rest of them have not been won away from their hero in the White House. We can only hope that the governor's remarks will not cost him the support of patriotic citizens who had hoped for a stronger declaration on foreign policy from him.

It is to such voters that these lines are addressed. Let them remember two things: First, that the senate can protect American interests because the senate must approve any treaty that is negotiated; and second, that the most important thing to be done at this election is to safeguard the American way of life. Only the defeat of the New Deal and the return to power of a party devoted to the principle upon which this republic was founded can accomplish this great purpose. Gov. Dewey is the candidate of that party.

POLAND'S CAUSE.

A Polish army is sweeping north with the British into Belgium. Another is marching with the Canadians against the channel ports. Still another has been engaged in some of the heaviest fighting in Italy. Polish aviators and Polish seamen are giving equally good accounts of themselves.

Russia now holds a great part of pre-war Poland and has indicated that she intends to keep what she wants of it. The British government does not resist this partitioning even tho England declared war on Hitler because he invaded Poland. Nor does the Roosevelt administration, which gets its signals from Downing street, seem disposed to protect Polish sovereignty.

Comment seems almost superfluous. Surely the valor of the Polish people and their sacrifice for the common cause against the common enemy deserve some recognition and some reward.

HOW TO CELEBRATE THE ARMISTICE.

The blackout is soon to be lifted from London. Before long, an armistice day is coming which will end the blackout everywhere in the western world. That day, when it arrives, will be marked by spontaneous rejoicing. We can hope with Mayor Kelly that the celebration here will not degenerate into an orgy, but it can hardly be doubted that the streets will overflow with happy people even tho the war in the Pacific will remain to be won.

How will the day be celebrated in the years to come? As was suggested at the time of the practice blackout in Chicago, there could be no more fitting observance than a half hour or an hour of grace darkness and silence out of doors. Any one who recalls the solemnity of the cities in blackout will know how appropriate this observance can be as a memorial to the heroic dead. Any one who remembers the sense of exaltation that greeted the reappearance of the lights will know how surely it symbolizes the triumph of the spirit of man over threatening darkness.

OLD TOWNS AND WARS.

The place-names of the Franco-Prussian war have been spangling the news of the allies' rush toward the German frontier. Americans seldom visit these old towns of Lorraine and Alsace when on pleasure bent, so let us glance at some of them with nothing more than a tourist's interest in their military past.

Sedan, a small place for its reputation, is familiar as the scene of the surrender of Napoleon III. with a large army to the Prussians in 1870. It was occupied by French and American troops in the last hours of World War I. as a symbolic gesture. The sedan chair of the 17th and 18th centuries is said to have been invented there, but the dictionaries throw cold water on this legend.

Nancy is a university town of considerable charm. Its savants made important contributions to psychology, especially in the field of hypnotism. From it came Emile Coué to persuade many Americans that their health would improve if they frequently repeated his formula for auto-suggestion: "Every day in every way I am getting better and better."

* * *

Metz is paired with Sedan as a surrendering place. The hardest fighting of the Franco-Prussian war was in the region around this city, where Marshal Bazaine gave up his famished army after a siege of 54 days. It has always been a fortress city, and its chief object of interest is the cathedral. On the exterior is a life-sized statue of the prophet Ezekiel, whose face might be a portrait of Emperor Wilhelm II. of Germany. The French discovered this likeness after World War I. and placarded it with the motto, "Sic transit gloria mundi."

Belfort, fortress city in the gap between the Vosges and Jura mountains, was well defended in the Franco-Prussian war and held out until the general armistice. Its garrison marched out with honors. In memory of this event there is a colossal carving in red sandstone—the Lion of Belfort, 72 feet long and 36 feet high. The sculptor was Auguste Bartholdi, who gave New York harbor its Goddess of Liberty.

WHEN HE RETURNS.

Lord, let him find, when he returns,
Each lovely thing for which he yearns;
Enjoyment of each blade and rose,
Each star that shines, each breeze that blows.

Lord, let there be warm sun and flowers,
Good company to share his hours,
And give him rest untroubled by
The mem'ry of a fiery sky.

Present him with the fruits of earth
Who can appreciate their worth;
You know the price he paid for them,
The sacrifice he made for them.

Lord, lift him high above war's mire,
And help him find his heart's desire.

A Slight Misunderstanding.

"I haven't seen your husband lately. What's become of him?"

"O, he's in the clinic."

"What!"

"Yes, he's been confined two weeks."

"Good heavens! What happened?"

"O, he took something."

"Yes, I surmised as much."

"They were afraid he'd give it to somebody else."

"Now that would be generous of him, wouldn't it? But aren't you trying to get him out?"

"Well, the doctors are doing their best."

"Doctors? He doesn't need doctors. He needs a good lawyer."

"Why should he need a lawyer to get him out of the clinic?"

"Did you say clinic? I thought you said clink."

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS.

(A Brookfield Ballad.)

If you have been too long ignored
And need your self-esteem restored,
If you would learn how one succeeds
With all men conscious of your deeds—
It's very simple; just dig in,
Then keep your head down till you win;
Select your purpose, choose your fate,
Then stick right to it, concentrate!
Far be it from me to suggest
The creature who best meets this test,
But tho the others are much bigger,
There's none more noticed than the chigger!

Linemaster: Shucks, Buckshot should have known the Illinois river [Aug. 19] when it really had traffic. Not that I can remember, but Uncle Bill Young, who's now probably watching traffic on the River Styx, used to tell me about it. He lived all of his 92 years six miles from the Illinois, in Granville, but knew it and loved it like Buckshot. He kept a list of old side-wheelers, steamboats, and packets, and barges, and had the names of 76 which plied the channel regularly. One of them was Dowler's Humbug. Them were the days!

E. L. C. writes: "I am returning to college this month under the educational provision of the G. I. law and would like to know how the veterans' administration defines 'period of one year' as used in the law. Would this be three academic quarters or four?"

The veterans' administration determined the phrase to mean a calendar year of 12 months. A Yank who has two years of "active service" to his credit would be entitled to 36 months of academic training, or enough to complete the ordinary college course.

B. B. A. writes: "Soon our marine corps fighter squadron will leave for the Pacific theater. We have enough men who have the ability and interest to form a 'whooper-doo' ensemble if we had the instruments. On our last trip out we lost everything we had and wonder if your readers would help us out. We need the following: accordion, trap drums, alto sax, tenor sax, a clarinet, and two trumpets."

We hope our readers will help this squadron out. You provide the instruments; we'll supply the address. Music these fellows make "after our daily grind is finished" means more to them than we can know.

HEALTHY, HAPPY SCHOOL DAYS.

"IDJICATION" is wonderful. But, without health, it is nothing. This month a veritable army of youngsters will throng the schoolrooms of the land. For the most part they will be filled with vim, vigor, and vitality. But now and then one will be encountered who is but poorly prepared for the tasks of the day.

It would be a wonderful thing if parents everywhere would take Johnny and Susan, Tommy and Gretchen to the doctor for a pre-school check-up. Many an easily remedied handicap would be discovered and, in the long run, the little one would be spared numerous bouts of illness. If only the forerunners of rheumatism—repeated sore throats, diseased tonsils, bad teeth, etc., could be spotted and routed out, our progeny would be spared thousands of cases of heart disease.

Has your child been immunized against diphtheria, lockjaw, and whooping cough? If not, one of the simplest precautions has been neglected. The procedure can be carried out carefully and is thoroly understood by competent physicians everywhere.

But there are even more important considerations. Is the tot pale and underweight? If so, a prompt and vigorous building program is in order. It is far wiser to keep the lad home, and wait until the red coloring matter can be restored, than to risk absences with their many discouragements.

Every household should own a fever thermometer and each adult therein should know how to read it. It is manifestly unfair to burden our educational authorities with boys and girls who are running a temperature and who obviously are sick. If the clouds of infection are gathering, the journey to and from the "House of Learning" may transform an otherwise mild attack into one that is serious.

Well trained teachers acquire a second sense when it comes to detecting ill health. But, after all, they have other things to think about. The responsibility rests squarely with parents. They, with the assistance of the family physician and the coöperation of the school nurse, can serve as saviors of well being. Who can say when a slight cough or a minor bronchial irritation, will not march forward steadily until a frank pneumonia has fastened itself upon the victim?

With properly taught lessons in good hygiene, every pupil will cover his mouth and nose during coughing and sneezing spells, to prevent the spread of germs to his companions.

CHANGEABLE.

M. F. writes: What makes a girl moody? I am in my midteens and sometimes I am sociable. In a few minutes, I just don't feel like talking to any one around me. I don't know what causes this change.

REPLY.

You need to read a few good books on mental hygiene. You are old enough and sufficiently intelligent to profit. [Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a list of such volumes.]

TOBACCO.

R. P. writes: Which is worse—chewing or smoking?

REPLY.

From the esthetic point of view, I prefer smoking. I have known octogenarians who seemed to be in excellent health, who did both. Other oldster friends are abstainers and appear to be equally well. This reply is not to be taken as a recommendation for nicotine in any form. It may disturb A seriously but not bother B, C, or D.

MAY BE EMOTIONAL.

J. V. writes: If a person has developed hoarseness to the point where he can speak only in a whisper, and a throat specialist can find nothing wrong, what is the next step?

REPLY.

Give the voice box a complete rest—several weeks. If the cause is hysteria, your emotions will have a chance to quiet down.

Sidewalk Interlude.

Both of us tongue-tied, now please won't you speed on
And if it somehow can so be arranged,
Meet me again when the weather has changed.

—MARIAN GLEASON.

Life on a Man-of-War.

The message received on the signal bridge of a ship in the Pacific from another ship in its unit was: "Capital frozen—unable to get under way." The men on the receiving signal bridge were stumped, for all capital is frozen out there—there's no place to spend it. However, they felt some mistake had been made, so a series of flashes went back and forth between the ships. Eventually came a correction: "Captain frozen, unable, etc., etc." That really worried the gentlemen, for liquor is forbidden on all American naval vessels and if the captain were stiff, they reasoned, there would be great trouble. More flashes were sent, and finally the correct version came: "Capstan [the gadget used to hoist the anchor] frozen." Then, confronted by the truth, the receiving ship made itself comfortable in a tropical sun while the capstan thawed out.

Raid from a Carrier.

Formations of carrier-based planes shattered the skies, roaring low over the bomb pitted terrain [reports R. W.]. Helmeted figures lay in sun-parched fox holes. The planes at last were out of sight, and two grimy, perspiring veterans came out and manned a mortar, a weapon that looked like a stove pipe. Machine guns chattered. . . . It seemed an endless day, but at last the sun dropped over the horizon and it was dusk. A dozen or more helmeted figures emerged from the fox holes. As they stood there, a weird, complex sound hit their ears. It was a chattering, screaming sound, and an Evanston elevated train, rounding a curve, crashed to a stop, bringing loop workers home to dinner. A dozen hungry small boys tossed helmets into fox holes and started homeward, and night fell on the pitted terrain of Rogers Park Tennis and Skating club. The planes now were on their way back to Glenview. . . . At dawn the war would be renewed.

Comes the semi-annual suit buying foray for M'Lord. Measurements have been on file for years, and cloth had been selected early in the summer. Comes the afternoon for the fitting. I hear muttered rumblings, huffings, and puffings, and M'Lord appears in a gray number. "And they made the pants too short. . . ." Then the snappy fall brown one, but the sleeves are "to short" and the waistline is "too snug." From behind the dressing room door I hear "fat stuff" and "tub" and other murmured quips, so I am not surprised when we reach the street to learn that we are going in for exercise. We are going to walk.

Armed with a pedometer and dressed in nonchalant walking togs, we begin. East, west, north, south, miles and miles we walk, and it is all good clean fun and we enjoy it. Comes the day my feet hurt. "Maybe," says M'Lord, "160 miles in one month is too much." I am not one to be outwalked, so we continue.

Of all the ugly, useful things in the world I nominate feet. In the hands of a chiropodist they look even worse. Arches down! And so bridges were made and shoes, which look like violin boxes, are invested in. . . . Let us skip my visit to the ration board. That is an episode in itself. Comes the evening when M'Lord has pains in his leg muscles. Casually I gave him the doctor's address. . . . Another visit to the ration board. A larger pair of violin boxes. I say to myself, "It is not the cost of new suits. It is living up to them." But any evening now you may see Lightfoot and Fleetfoot slipping along, pedometer in place at M'Lord's shrinking waistline, and we think we will walk 165 miles this month, just to get used to our arch supports. Besides, M'Lord thinks it will be good for my waistline.

OUR V-DAY LIES AHEAD.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—To one who well remembers the spontaneous welcome with which America greeted Armistice day in 1918, plans now being trumped up for a similar demonstration on a coming alleged V-day are a little nauseating.

Let Europe have their V-day—won with American blood, American arms, and American food. Let Churchill extend his fingers in his now famous V before Buckingham palace. Let the kings, the queens, and princes return from exile to their comfortable quarters. Does that make a V-day for Americans whose sons and daughters by the millions must work and fight in a war not yet half won?

Does any call for an all out celebration of Germany's defeat come from Maywood, and hundreds of like communities, whose sons lie buried in the dust of Bataan or suffer worse than death in Jap prison camps? Does it come from the fathers and mothers of over a million men now under arms in the Pacific trying to redeem American honor lost at Pearl Harbor?

Could there be grounds for the suspicion that this phoney V-day is being trumped up as a political demonstration, an effort to make Americans forget that our commander in chief was a late starter in the real American war?

Of course we'll be happy when Germany is beaten. It was a necessary job to do. It will surely mean that some of our boys overseas will come home sooner. But the shadow that lies on the heart of America can only be removed when Tokyo is beaten. V-day for America is still ahead.

HILLMAN'S CHALLENGE.

Barrington, Ill., Aug. 28.—A challenge has been made to every American by Sidney Hillman and his idol worshipers. This challenge must be met now or we shall pay the penalty for years to come and may even see this great nation of ours torn to pieces perhaps from within and perhaps from our many enemies in the rest of the world.

Sidney Hillman expects and demands that every member of the CIO regardless of their individual political beliefs become a sort of unofficial precinct captain and solicit his or her community on behalf of Franklin D. Roosevelt. They will be trained for this purpose by the PAC. They will be taught that all of the gains that American labor has made are because of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Never for one instant will they permit their proteges to look back upon the history of America for fear that they might find out that the lot of American labor was vastly better in 1920 than in 1900 and better in 1900 than in 1880. No, they cannot permit that, or their members might realize that no one man or any group of men are responsible for the progress they have made. The high standard of living which we obtained was thru the combined efforts of American labor and the genius of American industry.

THE FIRST TRIBUNE FARM.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—Your recent editorial on "Newspaper Farms" was pertinent and interesting, but in 1875 you had already had many years of editorial writing on the subject of farms and farm methods, and many experiments had been tried out for THE TRIBUNE by its agricultural editor, Rural, at his home farm called Rural Home. He was Matthias Lane Dunlap, whose Rural Home was at Savoy, Ill., and whose writings, under the by-line "Rural," did much to build up THE TRIBUNE'S circulation among the farmers of the state in early years. For years he had an office in Springfield, next to Abraham Lincoln's, and was asked to be his cabinet member on agriculture because he was so well and favorably known all over the agricultural states.

Your files should have this information, but it is well known in Champaign and Urbana, where Mr. Dunlap was also an early trustee of what was then called the Illinois Industrial university, now the University of Illinois, which was founded because of his feeling that boys should have the chance to learn the best way to farm, and because the farmers responded to Rural's appeals for legislative support for the plan. I mentioned 1875 because it was in that year that Matthias Lane Dunlap died. I am his great-granddaughter.

FRANCES E. SCHMIDT.

ANOTHER RECRUIT FROM DIXIE.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—The civilian guard from Navy pier who was born in Texas and says he and his son-in-law will vote Republican this year is not alone. I'm from the deep south—New Orleans—and my whole family have been Democrats all their lives, but you can bet your bottom dollar we'll all vote Republican this time to see if we can't get that bunch out of Washington. I'm trying to convert more southerners.

MAUDE GAUTRE.

BUT SHE FORGOT TO SEND A SAMPLE.

Highwood, Ill., Aug. 30.—"Indignant" complained recently about utility beef and wasting gas to cook it. I did "waste" the gas, and I prepared a most delectable dish with this utility beef. My answer to "Indignant" is that you have to know how to cook nowadays!

ILLEGAL USE OF COINS.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—1. Is the making of ornaments and jewelry from United States coins forbidden by law? I have seen rings and bracelets made from pennies, dimes, and silver dollars. 2. Isn't the manufacture of such articles an illegal act? P. A.

1. A federal statute forbids mutilating United States coins.
2. Yes.

JOHNSON DEFIES ANGRY PARENTS ON SCHOOL RULE

Residents of 30 Areas Adopt Mass Protest.

Supt. of Schools William H. Johnson last night reiterated his order that all transfer permits for elementary school pupils be voided save where a doctor's excuse is furnished, and said the order will stand unless his decision is overruled by the board of education at its meeting on Wednesday.

Faced by a city-wide protest over the order that ruled children must attend schools in their home districts, Johnson said, "It is unfortunate that parents and children won't understand that a school administrative problem is involved, and they must play the game by the rules."

Informed of rumors at protest meetings that the board of education had begun to issue transfer permits to allow pupils to attend schools of their choice, Johnson said, "It's news to me. As far as I know, transfers are not being issued except where a doctor's certificate is presented. We have always granted transfers under those conditions."

Hidden Transfers Disclosed.

Supt. Johnson said the board's original estimates were that 3,000 pupils would be affected by cancellation of the transfer permits. A larger number have been affected, he said, because schools have admitted pupils in other than their home districts without the formality of permits. A large number of "hidden" transfers were thus brought to light.

About 500 Chicago parents whose children have come under the transfer ban voted yesterday to escort their children personally to schools they attended last year and let the faculty "accept or reject them as they see fit."

The resolution was adopted at a mass meeting in the 13th ward Democratic headquarters, 3226 W. 63d st. An enthusiastic crowd supported the resolution, introduced by W. J. Roehler, 100 W. Monroe st., whose children attend the Parker school.

Thirty Schools Represented.

Representatives from 30 south side and six north side schools attended the protest meeting, which grew out of several smaller gatherings held thruout Chicago Saturday and earlier yesterday as resentment mounted against the transfer order.

Vincent P. Russo, 5042 Altgeld st., representing parents of children attending six north side schools, told the group he had been authorized to give Ald. Walter J. Orlikoski [35th] a message to take to Mayor Kelly, the board of education, and Supt. Johnson.

"Inasmuch as it has been rumored that the transfer ban has been motivated by political considerations, we refuse to let our children become political pawns in a game that may jeopardize their health and education," the message read.

Ald. Hogan Promises Help.

Ald. Michael P. Hogan [13th] said he believed the transfer order was a mistake. "I will do all I can to bring the matter to the attention of the city council," he said.

Plans for sending delegations from all parts of the city to the board's meeting on Wednesday will be made tomorrow night at 6917 S. Damen av. Another meeting was announced for Wednesday night at the Southlawn church, 86th st. and Cregier av.

Schools are expected to be crowded today with parents trying to enroll their children in schools without transfer permits. Johnson's office is also expected to receive a large number of irate parents.

LOW COST HOUSING IN WESTCHESTER IS DEBATED BY NEGROES

More than 1,000 Negroes yesterday attended a meeting called by the Chicago chapter of the National Negro congress to discuss the Negro housing project now under construction in the Westchester district.

Objections to the project had been voiced because low cost homes are being built in a district occupied largely by more costly Negro homes. The meeting was held in the auditorium of Wendell Phillips High school at 39th st. and Calumet av.

A resolution was adopted calling on federal and local governments and civic agencies to make plans for permanent housing to relieve present crowded conditions.

Dr. W. W. J. Walker, a physician, spoke for opponents of the project. Ishmael P. Flory, vice president of the National Negro congress and a CIO organizer, defended the project and assailed THE TRIBUNE, Herbert Marsh, regional director of the CIO packing workers, defended the project. State Sen. C. C. Wimbush assailed opponents of the project as allies of the Ku Klux Klan.

Autumn Social Affairs Just Around Corner

BY JUDITH CASS.

ANNOUNCEMENTS of the annual fashion show of the Illinois Opera Guild, of the first speakers in the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations' fall luncheon series, and of the first meeting of the women's committee of the Chicago Symphony Orchestral association remind Chicagoans that summer is about over and autumn activities about to start. "Guilding the Lily" is the name the Opera Guild has given to its benefit showing of opera fashions scheduled for the afternoon of Tuesday, Sept. 26, in the 28 Shop at Marshall Field & Co.

Formal and informal gowns and accessories suitable for Chicago's opera season, which opens on Oct. 16, will be shown. Kirsten Thorborg, who will sing Amneris in "Aida" the first Saturday matinee, and Fricka in "Die Walkure" that night, will be the special guest at the show, and she is lending her two costumes for those roles to be modeled by members of the Opera Guild juniors. Mrs. Elmer Jewell Dick and Mrs. Millard B. Kennedy, chairmen of the show, are entertaining at tea today at the Woman's Athletic club for the ticket committee and the juniors, from whose ranks models will be selected to wear Miss Thorborg's costumes and the bridal ensemble gowns.

Tickets at $3.60 each, including tax, may be obtained at guild headquarters, 20 N. Wacker dr., and the proceeds will go to the guild's major project of providing opera tickets for music students and service men and women. Mrs. James G. McMillan, president of the guild, and Mrs. John D. Allen, whose husband is chairman of the board of directors of the Chicago Opera company, are among other women assisting with plans for the show.

On the Calendar.

Foreign correspondents from the Pacific and the European fronts will be the Council on Foreign Relations' first speakers. Keith Wheeler will open the season on Friday in the Grand ballroom of the Palmer House, speaking on "How Long, the Road to Tokyo." Luncheon will be served at 12:15 p. m., and the annual meeting and election of officers will be held immediately before the lecture. David Nichols, now on his way here from Russia and Poland, will address council members toward the end of the month.

How to conduct its campaign for selling season subscriptions for the Chicago Symphony orchestra and the remaining boxes will be the topic of discussion when the woman's committee of the orchestral association meets for the first time this season at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in Orchestra hall. Mrs. Telfer MacArthur, president of the woman's committee, will preside. The Chicago Symphony orchestra will open its 54th season the evening of Oct. 12.

The Key club will resume its amateur models' contests today, when luncheon guests will vote for the best model among the half dozen debutantes and post-debutantes who will be competing. Modeling will be Miss Carla Hawley, Miss Joan Clement, Miss Ruth McKenna, Miss Deborah Wilder, Miss Virginia Elwood, and Miss Yvonne Hoskins. Winners will compete at a later date with winners from a group of young married women, with a war bond as prize.

The Circulo Cervantes will hold its first dinner meeting of the season for members and guests at 6:30 o'clock tonight in the Chicago College club. Mrs. Allen C. Howes, who has just returned from two months of study at the University of Mexico, will speak on her experiences in that country.

Lines to My Favorite Steno.

I wish I were the letters you are typing,
Caressed by each enameled finger tip,
Or else the carbon over which you're griping;
I'd even be a single paper clip!

I wish I were the dog-eared dictionary
You thumb and scan the pages A to Z,
The tried and true eraser that you carry—
Just so I'd know that you have need of me!

I wish I were the hours, my dear, you cheat me
As powder puff in hand you gaily hum—
And how I wish your ruby lips would greet me
As eager as they greet a stick of gum!

The signs of summer: An advertisment for a cook [placarded in a public building] describing the family as one of "elastic appetites" . . . The sign in a north shore country club: "Women's Lounge—No Men Admitted" which a week later read tersely: "Women's Lounge" . . . The slogan on an automobile: "Save gasoline and tires—Eleanor is off again" . . . The "Landon for President" sign decorating an old rattle-trap Ford. . . . The sidewalk painted warning in Philadelphia [relished by Ray Balin]: "Jaywalking is faster, but meets with disaster" . . . The printed appeal handed to his clients by Sam, a loop office shoeshiner: "I haven't had a vacation for 15 years. Without some extra help I and my family won't have one this year." He got the vacation.

Be Charming, Woman Judge Urges Sisters

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Brains under a pretty hat and complemented with charm of manner will advance practicing women lawyers in particular and women generally toward success in their professional or business careers more readily than forceful but unadorned brain power. This was the gist of the advice offered the National Association of Women Lawyers yesterday by a member famed for her sagacity and humor.

The speaker was Judge Camille Kelley of Memphis, Tenn., who addressed the association at a luncheon in the Knickerbocker hotel on the closing day of its annual meeting. Her remarks, the judge emphasized, were not offered in a facetious spirit, but were based on more than 20 years' experience in the Juvenile court of her city, reviewing more than 45,000 cases of human behavior involving domestic relations and the delinquency of minors. Judge Kelley's court has been the model for many others thruout the United States.

"Most of the men offenders brought to my court," Judge Kelley explained, "are there on complaints of non-support of their families. Women frequently ask me if my years on the bench haven't disillusioned me about men. 'Certainly not,' is my answer. 'It's not the men, God bless 'em. You ought to see their wives!'"

Urging women to increased interest and participation in politics, Judge Kelley charged the women lawyers to lead the way toward restoration of dignity to politics so that it would conform to its rightful definition—"The science of government." She told them that America's future depends on adherance to a high moral code, and that it is the duty of women to see that they and the schools of the country provide the young with "sound spiritual under-pinnings."

In a campaign described as the "hottest" ever waged for the presidency of the association, Mrs. Lulu E. Bachman of Detroit, Mich., won the annual election over her opponent, Miss Laura Miller of St. Louis, Mo. Mrs. Bachman succeeds Miss Daphne Roberts of Atlanta, Ga. Others elected were: Mrs. Ernestine Breisch Powell of Cincinnati, O.; Miss Rose Zetzer of Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Charlotte White of Chicago, and Miss Nell Sanders of Memphis, Tenn., respectively, first, second, third, and fourth vice presidents; Miss Lannette Means, Detroit, Mich., corresponding secretary; Miss Charlotte Gauer, Chicago, recording secretary; Mrs. Josephine Myers, Kansas City, Mo., treasurer, and Dr. Edith Hurd, Boston, Mass., librarian-historian.

Miss Helen Cirese of Chicago, a former national president of the association, was elected to succeed Judge Florence Allen of Cincinnati, O., as delegate to the American Bar association house of delegates.

The convention expressed, in the form of a resolution, its advocacy of Judge Allen as a representative of this country at peace negotiations. It voted down an accompanying resolution that Dorothy Thompson, columnist, "as the outstanding woman journalist of the country," also be endorsed by the association for a seat at the peace table. The convention favored an explanation that the women lawyers did not consider themselves qualified to advance the name of a member of another profession. That Miss Thompson is the foremost woman journalist, it was mentioned in discussion, is "a matter of opinion."

The McCarran-Sumners bill [house bill 5081; senate bill 2030] "to improve the administration of justice by prescribing fair administrative procedure" won unanimous endorsement by the convention. The bill was drafted and advocated by the American Bar association. It is aimed at the curbing of judicial powers exercised by governmental administrative agencies which came into being because of the war. The resolution passed by the women lawyers was drawn by Miss Adele I. Springer of New York, who was chairman of a special committee appointed to study the bill.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 10.—Metro has signed Richard Aldington, English author, who arrived Friday to write the screen play of "Diamond Rock." Aldington has been in Florida for the last two years. The story will be produced by Eddie Knopf, who tells me it's "a love story with international aspects, and a Caribbean island locale." . . . Arturo De Cordova is on his way to Mexico City to do a picture. His next picture for Paramount when he gets back this fall will be "Masquerade in Mexico" with Dorothy Lamour, and Mitch Leisen directing. . . . Phyllis Brooks has been signed by Pine & Thomas to play opposite Robert Lowery in "High Man." . . . Leo Carrillo has been asked by Herbert Brownell Jr., Dewey's campaign manager, to help with the Republican campaign in California. . . . Noreen Roth plays J. Carrol Naish's daughter in "Hold Autumn in Your Hand." She's the "Apple Blossom Queen" from Wenatchee, Wash., and has been at Metro for six months.

It's an Ill Wind.

Bette Davis gets a longer vacation than she expected before starting "Stolen Life" because they haven't a leading man yet. While they hunt, Bette goes back to her New Hampshire farm for at least a couple of weeks. This picture marks Bette's bow as a producer—she's co-producing it with Jack Chertok. They're looking for a rugged, American type of guy like Gary Cooper to do the job. . . . Arthur Freed got a letter from Fred Astaire, who said the report about his not coming back here was all hooey. He'll be back by Oct. 15 to start "Yolanda and the Thief," with Lucille Ball and Lucille Bremer. . . . After Phyllis Thaxter bid her fiance a tearful farewell when he left, she thought, for overseas, he surprised her last week by flying into town just long enough to take her to dinner.

They're Off on Tarzan Epic.

Johnny "Tarzan" Weissmuller, Brenda Joyce, and all those amazons start shooting this week. After searching all over Utah and the high Sierras for a location resembling the African veldt for "Tarzan and the Amazons," Director Kurt Newman finally found what he wanted right here in our own back yard—at Baldwin park, which is within betting distance of Santa Anita race track. . . . Universal's new horror serial, "Mystery Queen of the Jungle," starts today, with Lois Collier, Eddie Norris, Tala Birell [as the heavy], Eddie Quillan, and Douglas Dumbrille. . . . Marta Linden, who plays a WAC captain in "The Women's Army," went over to the studio for a wardrobe fitting, liked her uniform so well she wore it over to the commissary for lunch—and got a mighty snappy salute from the WAC who's technical advisor on the picture.

Confusin' and Amusin'.

Richard Himber had to come out from New York to sign up Walter Colmes as his partner, and Warren William, Joy Hodges, and El Brendel for roles in "Abracadabra," his new musical which opens on Broadway this fall. . . . He had no sooner arrived here than he got a wire telling him to return there to sign final papers for his new radio show, which is to emanate from here. Says he, "Always on the wrong coast—that's Himber." . . . Jules Styne and Sammy Cahn, now in New York working on Dave Wolper's show, "Glad to See You," will throw a big reception for Frank Sinatra when he gets there. They did the music for his last two pictures. . . . Incidentally, Wolper wants Billy Gilbert for one of the top comedy roles in his show.

It All Depends on the Climate.

Happiest man during the heat wave was Alan Ladd, who spent the whole day being photographed under a shower for "Salty O'Rourke." . . . And the unhappiest was Danny Kaye, who had to go around bundled up in overcoat, overshoes, muffler, and earmuffs for midwinter scenes in "Wonder Man." . . . Danny's happy about one thing, though—his wife, Sylvia Fine, is back on the job writing for him. Because there have been so many "houses" and "Dr.'s" in titles lately, "The House of Dr. Edwardes" now becomes "Spellbound." . . . Michael O'Shea is giving a lot of time and energy these days to the kid brother clubs, which are being formed in leading cities thruout the country to combat juvenile deliquency. The idea is to get prominent people to adopt small groups of kids and keep in touch with them. . . . The Merry Macs made a quick stop during their northern tour to sing at the wedding of a soldier and a WAC who had written them about first meeting each other at a juke box where they both wanted to play the Merry Mac recording of "The Way You Look Tonight." That's what the Macs sang at the wedding. . . . Jackie Jenkins has realized every boy's ambition—to be a fireman. Playing in front of his house in Santa Monica the other day, he saw a grass fire started across the street. His mother called the fire department, but before they got there Jackie had dragged the hose over and put it out. They made him an honorary member, gave him a badge and a fireman's hat. . . . Laraine Day is going to back a dress shop in Beverly Hills for her dressmaker, Lunette Clut, who will run it. Laraine, who does all her own designing, will design many of the dresses sold.

Preliminary steps in organizing a professional intensive study group, particularly aimed at assisting new writers and creative artists, will be taken by board members of the Northern Illinois branch of the National League of American Pen Women when they meet for luncheon on Friday in the Piccadilly tea room. The study group or writers' workshop, which among other things calls for study of techniques and markets, is being started as a part of the national organization's program, of which Ray Gale Brown of Cleveland, O., is chairman.

Wedding

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage this week of Miss Sylvia Sufrin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Sufrin of Chicago, and Maj. Julian D. Freedman of the army air forces of Atlanta, Ga. The ceremony will take place quietly in Atlanta, and after Sept. 25 Maj. Freedman and his bride will be at home at the Sedelia army air field at Warrensburg, Mo. Miss Sufrin is assistant field director of the American Red Cross hospital unit at the field. She is a graduate of Northwestern university.

This Film Cast Is Likable, but Story Is Weak

"SONG OF THE OPEN ROAD."

A United Artists picture, directed by S. Sylvan Simon, with Edgar Bergen, Charlie McCarthy, W. C. Fields, and introducing Jane Powell.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Come now Jane Powell, the new 14 year old singing star, Edgar Bergen, Charlie McCarthy, W. C. Fields, Rose Hobart, and a swarm of enthusiastic young players, to sue for your favor.

You like all of them, but your liking is tempered by the wish that they might have drawn a more believable story and a more astute director. The former lags and limps thru many stretches and little Miss Powell overacts and parrots "I'm sorry" until you're pretty sorry, too. She has a pleasing voice, but she's no genius and needed the break of understanding guidance. The veterans named appear rather casually, strut their stuff characteristically, and are a great blessing to the picture. . . . Charlie McCarthy outshines the whole caboodle, to my way of thinking.

Miss Powell plays Jane Powell, a popular movie starlet who's unhappy because she has no life of her own. . . . After making a government short depicting how kids help their country by picking crops—she has but one idea—to get back to the everyday youngsters with whom she'd been working, and away from the movie studio. . . .

—o—

She bobs and dyes her hair, runs away, lands among a new group and with them travels from hostel to hostel. . . . Her ambitious mother [Rose Hobart] is, of course, much worried. She asks the agricultural agent [Regis Toomey] to find Jane. . . . He, having had a quiet little talk with Jane's sympathetic French teacher, doesn't do too much about it. . . . In the meantime, Jane runs into varied snags that finally prompt her to reveal her true identity. Nobody believes she's THE Jane Powell—so, to prove she is, she bursts into a classical aria. Later, she performs a marvelous service for her country by a great idea which comes to her when she learns that an entire orange grove will be ruined by a coming hurricane if 1,000 pickers are not obtained at once. . . .

I'll let the picture tell you about her bright thought and what springs from it. . . .

There's some lovely scenery, splendidly photographed.

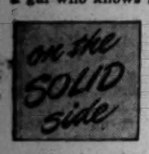
A Date-Wise Gal Writes on Hand-Holding

BY MAUREEN DALY.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Here's a bit of wise advice from a gal who knows her own mind and speaks it. This letter is written in response to several printed here from honeychiles who believe they got the brush-off from their respective boys because they did not approve of hand-holding in its advanced stages. The gal has this to say:



"I have been dating for the last three years. I have made it a firm practice never to be overly "friendly" and I have run into difficult situations at times. There are boys who will go out only with gals who neck at every possible convenience and then there are those who won't. I've been out with both kinds and, therefore, feel free to express my opinion.

"For the last seven months I have been going with one particular boy and he has remarked to me many times how great a pleasure it is to know a girl who knows her own mind. There are still a lot of considerate boys around, man power shortage or not. My advice to these young letter writers would be to wait until the right type of boy comes along even if it means a few dateless months. It's really worth it in the end. A girl shouldn't change her principles for any boy. She doesn't need to, and when the right joe for her comes along she'll be twice as glad she didn't."

Here's a gal talking from first hand dating information. Most joes know a good gal when they date one and the average fellow's idea of a pleasant evening is a girl with intelligence and personality rather than a fluff chick who is short on conversation but ready to make with the amours on a moment's notice. High school dating and friendships are important because they often form social habits that stick with a guy or gal right thru to the ol' rocking chair days. We'd like some inside comments on what the average joe considers a "good date." Send in your answers and we'll add them up to the perfect gal.

INSTALMENT XXXVII.
HOMEWARD BOUND.

Bachmann drew the wicked looking weapon from its holster and did as he was told. It hit the polished floor behind him with a dull thud. In another instant Bright picked it up and stepped into the room, covering Bachmann with his own weapon.

"What's cookin', Kansas?" he said. "You all right?"

"I'm all right."

"This guy do anything to you?"

"No. Nothing! And he's cleared the castle. Nobody can get in."

"Then I guess I turned up at a good moment," Bright said evenly. "Want to keep him covered while I tie him up?"

"You don't have to do that, Bright. He's going with us."

"That would be great fun," said Bright sarcastically. "But it's a lot simpler to leave him here." Bachmann's face was absolutely livid.

"The Englishman!" he cried in amazement. "Don't shoot! Don't let him shoot me, Fraulein! Explain! Explain!"

Carol made it as brief as she could.

"It's not only that I've made a bargain and given my word," she ended. "It's that he'll be more useful alive than dead. If they find his body here, think of what will happen to Lita!" Bright nodded.

"And if Andre doesn't turn up with the boat," he added, "this bird will commandeer another one for us, or else." Then he turned to the German.

"Get going, big boy!" he said. "You be good and nobody will hurt you. But you sure have a lot to learn."

There was a good flashlight on the desk and Bright picked it up. Carol led the way to the kitchen and turned on the light. The shutters had already been tightly closed for the night. Then she opened the small wooden door which shut off the ancient well.

"It's there!" said Carol, pointing.

"A little platform and a flight of stone steps. It leads right into the old smugglers' passage to the sea. It was in good order two years ago, but it's damp in there. We'll have to go carefully."

Bright examined the entrance with the flashlight. The first step down was barely visible and slimy with moisture and there was hardly room for a man to get thru.

"It's certainly no Peacock Alley," Bright remarked. "Think it's really usable, Kansas?"

"The ceiling's much higher a little further on," she told him. "I went down part way once because Jacques insisted. And it's all solid rock."

"Sure you wouldn't rather we just walked out of the front door, so long as we have the general here?"

"No! No!" Bachmann said hurriedly. "This I much prefer. See, I will go first."

Bright grunted unintelligibly but he allowed the man to crawl in over the open mouth of the well to the ledge on the other side. Bachmann led the way skilfully and without any apparent nervousness. His materialistic mind did not seem disturbed by the weird journey. But to Carol it was nerve-tingling. On the worst stretches, Bright's strong hands helped her. Just breathing was difficult enough and now and then a bit of rotten shale made the going difficult by sliding loose under their feet. Then at last the air changed. The sharp breath of the sea cleared their choking throats and nostrils. They were standing on level ground—on rock against which the water of the bay washed slowly. Directly ahead of them was the sea-gate, a huge iron grille which had long ago been placed there by the French port authorities. Bright tried it. It was locked securely.

"Looks like all we get out of this is the exercise!" said Bright. He took the torch and ran it briefly around the barrier. The iron of which it was made was rusty but still strong and bolted into the solid rock. The hinges were heavy—too heavy to break. Carol felt sick with disappointment. This was her doing.

"What do we do now?" she asked in a small voice.

"Excuse me!" Bachmann was feeling the lock with his short, pudgy fingers. "Hold the light here a moment. Perhaps I can do something here!"

He took out a large clasp knife, one of those which contain a seemingly unending number of implements, and one of these proved to be a corkscrew. Bachmann inserted this in the lock and stood there turning it this way and that while he listened intently. After a few minutes the lock gave.

"When I was a young boy in Munich," he said, "I learned that trick. A gang of us sometimes wanted to enter small shops at night. You know how boys are."

He turned to Bright. "I hope you do not mind if I keep the knife?" he said. "It is a sort of souvenir."

"Okay, boy scout," said Bright, "keep it."

There was almost no standing room at the foot of the cliff and that only because the six inch tide of the Mediterranean was at ebb. It was growing painfully late and if Andre were to fail them, Carol thought, there would scarcely be time to find another boat. But at last they could hear the faint click of oar-locks off shore in the dark. Bright began to whistle, not very loudly but very clearly.

Frere Jacques, Frere Jacques, Dormez-vous?

Suddenly the boat came into sight—a mere patch of blackness which was barely distinguishable because of its movement. Then a voice spoke.

"C'est Frere Jacques," said Andre as he came alongside.

"Why didn't you answer the signal?" Carol snapped the words at the lame man.

"I cannot carry a tune. I cannot sing nor whistle," Andre explained. "But you are three, madame?"

Bright had climbed into the little boat followed by Carol, Bachmann getting in last.

"It's all right, Andre," said Carol. "This gentleman is just in costume. He's a little souvenir we're taking back with us."

The wind had come up sharply and when Andre hoisted his sail they made good time. When at last the sub emerged an hour late, some one aboard her was playing Frere Jacques on a fine American harmonica. Carol could have laughed aloud for joy. Only one more lap now, and the maps would be in allied hands! Bright stood up to speak to the officer on the submarine.

"Three comin' aboard, sir!" he said. "We caught a wildcat and he wouldn't leave go, so we had to bring him along!"

He shoved Bachmann up ahead of him and when the American officer saw the uniform he gave vent to a long, expressive whistle.

"German general, eh?" he said nonchalantly. "Glad to see what one looks like!"

ANSWERS TO SATURDAY'S QUIZ.

Q. 1—Partner doubles an opening bid of one heart and you hold:
♠ J 6 2 ♥ Q 7 4 3 ♦ 9 6 5 ♣ 7 5 2
What do you do?

A.—One spade, surely the cheapest way out of an awkward situation. Don't bid one no trump, which would be far more dangerous. And hide your face in the corner if you passed from fright.

Q. 2—Partner opens with one heart and you hold:
♠ 0 ♥ K J 6 ♦ A Q 10 9 7 4 ♣ A 9 7 5
What is your response?

A.—Three diamonds. The hand has definite slam possibilities. For the purpose of computing the high card strength, the king of hearts should be regarded as a full trick.

Q. 3—Partner opens with one spade and you hold:
You have the same hand as in problem 2.
What is your response?

A.—Two diamonds. With the misfit impending no idea of slam should be entertained at this point. Future developments may induce a bullish attitude, but until such time take it easy.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
♠ K 6 2 ♥ J 4 ♦ Q 10 3 ♣ A Q 7 5 3
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 spades	Pass	?

What do you do?

A.—Four hearts. Partner's bidding has described a holding of six hearts and only four spades, consequently the eight card trump holding should be selected. You must abandon the no trump idea because of partner's obvious shortness in diamonds and clubs.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠ Q 10 8 4 ♥ 6 ♦ A K 9 5 ♣ A K J 7
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	1 spade	Pass

What do you do?

A.—Three clubs or four spades. The one bid for which there is no excuse is three spades which partner would feel obliged to pass if he held K J x x x in spades and nothing else.

Q. 6—You are South, both vulnerable, and you hold:
♠ Q J 7 2 ♥ 6 4 2 ♦ A 10 9 5 ♣ 7 3
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 no trump	2 spades	?

What do you do?

A.—Double. Strike quickly and don't bother with such petty things as bidding game when there is real business to be done.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
♠ 7 5 3 ♥ K 6 2 ♦ J 4 ♣ K Q 10 6 2
The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	Pass	1 no trump	Double
Pass

What do you do?

A.—Partner's double of one no trump should always be passed upon the slightest excuse. You have plenty of excuse. Prepare to rake in the chips.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
♠ 10 6 2 ♥ A 7 6 4 3 ♦ Q 5 ♣ K Q 10
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 club	1 spade

What do you do?

A.—This is in the nature of a Gracie Allen quiz. We provide the question but are not sure of the answer. A number of the experts have been juggling this one around between two and three clubs. There is very little support for the view favoring a two heart bid. The reason is that partner having opened in third position may decide not to bid again and hearts may not be the best contract. If partner has a good hand, a free raise of the clubs will induce him to take further action. Otherwise the hand will be played in a safe denomination.

Spice cakes are popular with almost every one. The family likes them because they are moist and full of flavor, and the cook likes them because they're almost foolproof, requiring no special "knack," as do delicate white cakes and angel food.

Spice cakes containing raisins and other fruit will keep for several weeks if stored in an air tight container. Even so, don't try to send one overseas. In addition to the fact that the postoffice says "no overseas food packages, please," even a richly fruited spice cake is likely to mold or dry out, or be smashed or otherwise arrive at its destination in a sorry state.

Marble Spice Cake.

½ cup fat
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
½ teaspoon vanilla
1¾ cups sifted enriched flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk
2 teaspoons allspice
½ cup molasses

Cream shortening and sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat well. Add vanilla. Sift flour, baking powder, and salt together. Add flour mixture alternately with milk to creamed mixture. Blend well. To half of cake batter add allspice and molasses. Mix well. Drop dark and light batters by large spoonfuls into greased 8 inch pan. Bake 1 hour at 350 degrees. Frost when cool.

Frosting: Put ¼ cup molasses, ½ cup corn sirup and 1 egg white in mixing bowl and beat [preferably with electric beaters] until mixture forms a stiff peak. Flavor with ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Honey Spice Cake.
[Deep loaf pan, 3 by 7 inches.]

¾ cup honey
2 eggs
1½ cups sifted flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
¾ cup milk or fruit juice
1 cup raisins
½ cup chopped nuts

Beat together shortening, honey, and salt. Add eggs, one at a time, and beat thoroly. Sift flour, baking powder, and spices and add alternately with liquid. Add raisins and nuts. Bake in greased loaf pan for 1 hour at 350 degrees. Serve plain, frosted, or with a custard sauce.

Coffee Spice Cake.
[8 inch loaf.]

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ginger
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
¾ teaspoon cloves
¾ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
3 tablespoons molasses
½ cup strong coffee
1 cup raisins

Sift flour, baking powder, salt, and spices. Cream fat and sugar and beat in eggs thoroly. Add molasses and blend. Alternately add dry mixture and coffee, beating after each addition until batter is smooth. Add raisins. Pour into greased loaf pan and bake 50 minutes at 350 degrees. Frost when cool with a blend of 3 tablespoons creamed margarine, 2 tablespoons strong coffee, about 2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar, and a dash of salt.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Peach Snowbank Pie.
[One 9 inch pie.]

¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
½ cup sugar
1 baked 9 inch pastry shell
4 or 5 fresh or canned peaches, peeled and sliced
1 pint ice cream

Add cream of tartar to egg whites when partially beaten. Fold in sugar gradually. Arrange peaches in bottom and around sides of pastry shell to make a thick layer. Top with slices of firmly frozen ice cream and quickly cover with thick layer of meringue. Place in hot broiler to brown meringue quickly. Serve immediately.

Need of Stoves for 2 Families Is Told by Sally

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Because of lack of adequate living conditions, it is necessary for Mrs. B. and her two children to move to the country. She receives a small family allowance, but it is impossible for her to purchase all of the items she will need, especially since she is expecting another child in the spring. The quarters into which she intends to move are not equipped with gas, and she has requested our aid in obtaining a kerosene stove. A walker for the baby who is just a year old will also be appreciated.

Mrs. D. is the widowed mother of six children. She is receiving a small grant, but it is only sufficient for food and shelter. The gas stove she has been using is now broken beyond repair, and it is impossible for her to purchase another. She will be grateful if some reader has a discarded one which could be given to her. The address is on the south side.

Mrs. X. has requested our assistance in obtaining utensils and silverware. There are three small children in the family, and the income is not sufficient to provide for these needs. The address is on the near north side.

Household Forum

—By Louise Bargelt—

Mrs. Ed T., Chicago—A windy, cloudy day, I've learned, is best when it comes to airing pillows. I never freshen them in the sunlight as sun will draw natural oil out of the feathers.

Hazel K., Lansing, Mich.—When I am pressing pleats, pocket flaps, facings, and seams in a skirt or dress, I slip strips of paper under the folds as insurance against pleat marks. If the material is heavy I use ordinary wrapping paper, but for silks I use tissue paper. And if I just have to use pins to keep original crease I press lightly—to be sure I set pleat, and then remove pins to go over material again.

Mrs. Ted H., Gary, Ind.—When I have a small tear to mend in a knitted garment I stretch article over a glass tumbler and hold with rubber band.

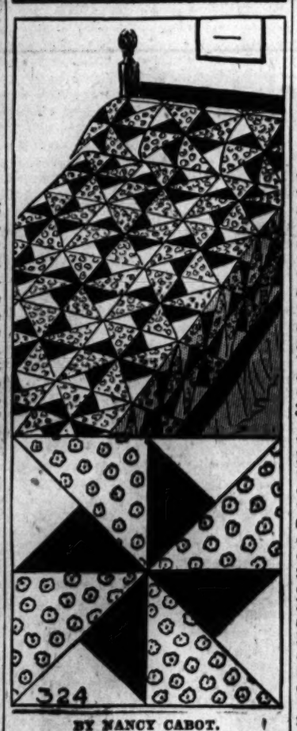
Windmill Quilt



BY NANCY CABOT.

This simple but interesting "Windmill" quilt pattern is one of the popular four-patch designs. It ranks among the first patterns used by our ancestors for their quilts. Whether it is of Dutch colonial origin is impossible to say, yet some of these quilts are to be found on Manhattan and Staten Island and date back to 1820. The finished block for this patchwork pattern measures 12 inches and is created in a combination of print and plain material.

For the "Windmill" quilt pattern, No. 324, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

Hand Knitted Wear for Fall Days Is Ready

BY REA SEEGER.

Hand-knits come into their own with the first days of crisp fall weather. Dresses, two piece suits, and the dresses designed to look like a jacket and skirt are the smartest of street, town, or country clothes. Many three piece costumes can be assembled with a suit or dress of hand-knit and a companion coat. Such outfits are smart because the hand-knits are guaranteed not to sag, bulge, or wrinkle. The skirts hang straight and slim and the jackets keep their original silhouette, even after being jammed into travel luggage.

Distinctive knitted textures make these hand-knits outstanding. Some look like the handsome imported tweeds, others vie with the exquisite soft beauty of fine imported woolens. The textures are all smooth and even; the tiny details of chevron or unusual pattern used for contrast provide that perfect hand made appeal. And tho they are costly they're well worth the price. For clothes like these last. With average care a suit or dress will last seven or eight seasons. The silhouettes are of classic simplicity, so that they cannot be definitely dated with any year.

Strong fall colors are vastly decorative and flattering. There are copper brown, dead leaf brown, shades of red from scarlet to wine, russet, gold, aspen-leaf yellow, deep October blues, stunning stone gray, and plenty of dark beige tints to serve as pleasing neutrals.

Food, Rest, Do Wonders for Nervous Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Yesterday, after talking about nervousness in children and the different forms it takes, we said.

"The framework upon which your care of your nervous child is based is made up of two fundamentals which are closely interwoven, and dependent one upon the other. The two fundamentals to follow in caring for your nervous child and helping him or her to recovery are:

"Do everything you can to put your child in as good physical condition as possible; and,

"Handle your child not only lovingly, but as wisely as is within your power."

Now let us take the first requirement. We should begin by recognizing the fact that it's hard for a child to be serene, poised, happy [the opposite of nervous] if he's in physical difficulties or if he is much below par. So build him up physically, in several ways.

Give him the right kind of food for nerve nourishment. Plenty of vegetables, fruit, milk, the grains, and, in fact, all the "protectives" are a child's essential diet. Some form of liver oil is considered imperative by many doctors and nutritionists for general health; but vitamin B1 [thiamin chloride] is definitely tied up with the restoration of nervous tone. A doctor must prescribe it.

Rest is the next vital physical need of a nervous child. A regular bed time, and a pleasant one, makes sleep come more easily. Two rest periods a day are advisable, tho not necessarily sleep periods, and these lead often to gain in weight, which helps nerves.

Plenty of fresh air and as much exercise as can be taken without undue fatigue are the next need of the nervous child.

Women in War Work

—By Dorothy Johnson

Vivian Melvin.

The September meeting of the Navy Mothers' Club of Chicago will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Medinah club. Mrs. Edward J. Dies, program chairman, will present Vivian Melvin in a dramatic excerpt from the play "Harriet."

Discussion at the session, to be presided over by Mrs. C. Ashley Deneen, president, will include plans for new headquarters for the club, which has been situated at 335 N. Michigan av.

The Navy Sisters and Wives, an auxiliary of the Navy Mothers, will hold this month's meeting on Sept. 18 in the Bismarck hotel. Members will discuss plans for an autumn benefit dance. Mrs. Mary Bird, president, expects many of the organization's new members to attend, and invites all wives and sisters of men in the navy, marines, coast guard, or maritime services to visit the session.

Mrs. Ida M. Didier, assistant professor of home economics at the Illinois Institute of Technology, will address the volunteer workshop of the Chicago unit of the American Women's Voluntary Services at 2 p. m. today on the 2d floor of Marshall Field & company. "Sewing Techniques" will be the subject of her talk, which she will illustrate with demonstrations of finishing.

The workshop is part of the A. W. V. S. war time clothing conservation program. Mrs. Frank E. Clark heads the shop, and Mrs. Roy Olin, the conservation committee, with the assistance of Miss Priscilla Payne.

A Chicago woman, Pharmacist's Mate 3d Class Josephine Quint, has been elected this week's "WAVE of the week" by the editorial staff of the bulletin published for personnel at the Great Lakes Naval Training center.

Miss Quint, the wife of Pharmacist's Mate 1st Class J. P. Frase, who is stationed at Norfolk, Va., is on duty in the hospital X-ray department at Great Lakes. She received recruit training at Hunter college, New York City.

Before enlisting, WAVE Quint was a correspondent with the General Electric X-ray corporation in Chicago, a company engaged in radar-radio war work.

The first class of WAVES to complete training as anti-aircraft gunnery instructors has left Great Lakes for an assignment in six naval districts in the United States. All 14 members of the class were advanced in rating from seaman 2d class to seaman 1st class.

The five week course included instruction in gunnery, fire control, and trainer operations. Quotas of new WAVES gunnery trainees will be received at the center every week until 182 have completed the course.

The thrift shop in the Navy Relief society's building at Great Lakes has been so successful that officers' wives directing the project are making an appeal for stock. Needs range from a twin baby carriage to a hand mirror, and include all types of clothing, small household furnishings, and toys. Slightly damaged toys are acceptable because convalescent navy men working in occupational therapy are reconditioning them for a Christmas toy sale.

Thru the Looking Glass

For your gift boxes to the G. I.'s: A shave stick, a foot stick, and a special mouthwash that can do double duty as a dentifrice. The men are mad about these things, and all three are now specially packaged in a company kit that is quite all right for mailing in this country. For shipping overseas it's advised to include the contents separately in your larger boxes.

By hearsay, and from gentlemen who should know, we gather that the shave stick is super-duper; it assures a good shave in hot, cold, hard, soft, or salt water and can be used with or without a brush. It has an olive oil base that endears it particularly to men with tender skins, made more tender than ever by the vagaries of climate and exposure. Prisoners of war, for whom soap shave is often nonexistent, like this, too.

The foot stick we know from personal experiments is a peach of a product. It's of a heavy cream consistency, easily stroked over the aching surface, and it gives wonderful relief to itching, cracking, and scaling. It's an antiseptic and a deodorant, too, and cools and soothes hot, terribly tired feet. One application soothes and protects the foot skin for a day—and a stick will last the weary doughboy for months. Won't take up much space in his gear, either.

The mouth wash has a pleasant taste, or "bite." Six drops in a little water make a clean, tangy wash, but it can also be used right on the toothbrush as an emergency cleanser or as a gum massaging medium.

The boys will appreciate these things; boys to whom they've been sent clamor steadily for more. They're practical, and scientifically sound preparations, but above all they're real aids to comfort and the sense of well being.

Law School Dean Reports 83% Drop in Enrollment

Dean Albert J. Harno of the University of Illinois law school announced yesterday that enrollments in law schools have dropped 83 per cent since 1938. There were 28,174 law students in 110 schools thruout the country in 1938. In 1941 the number of students was 18,449; in the fall of 1942 it was 7,887, and in the fall of 1943 it was 4,803. Of those registered last year, Dean Harno said, 1,049 were women. Ten law schools have closed. More than 20 per cent of all law students registered in the country last fall were in New York, he added.

YANKS SPLIT; KEEP AMERICAN LEAGUE LEAD

CUBS TROUNCE CARDINALS, 9-0, THEN FADE, 4-2

Musial, Garms Hurt in Second Game.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[BOX SCORES ON NEXT PAGE.]
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 10.—The Cubs were so impressed by the taste of last night's victory, their first of the season in 15 jousts with the Cardinals, that they bounced back this afternoon and repeated the act with an emphatic 9 to 0 in the front half of a double header before a paid house of 14,363. But the second game was strictly an affair for the champions who took a four run bite out of Paul Derringer's pitching in the first inning and went on from there to a 4 to 2 victory.

The emphatic fashion in which the titleholders were handled in the first game was partly due to a three hit demonstration put on by Paul Erickson and also to the ease with which the Chicagoans laughed off the deception of Max Lanier's southpawing. They warmed up on him with three runs in the second inning but he didn't take the hint seriously so when he came back in the third they quickly arranged for three more runs, whereupon Lanier went away and subsequent Cub blasting was against Alvin Jurisich and Sylvester Donnelly.

Sanders Hits 3 Run Homer.

The assault on Derringer at the start of the second game, an assault in which Ray Sanders accounted for three of the runs by smashing a homer, was more margin than needed by Mort Cooper for his 21st victory. He kept the Cubs in a spinning state for eight innings by yielding only three hits, meeting his first bit of distress when Bill Nicholson opened the ninth with his 32d homer of the season. The Cubs kept after him until another scored and the tying runs were on base with one out but he promptly applied the brakes.

A slight scare, so far as the world series is concerned, was tossed into the Cards in the third inning of the second game when Deb Garms and Stan Musial banged into each other in the outfield. The former, who was removed on a stretcher, suffered a cut under his chin and a right leg injury. Garms suffered a cut over the left eye but departed on his own leg power. Neither is expected to be out of action for more than a few days but as a matter of precaution Musial was sent to a hospital for observation.

Walk Starts Cubs' Fun.

A pass to Secory started the three run fun for the Cubs in the second inning of the opening game. Pafko, Merullo and Williams followed with singles but all this netted only one run because Pafko was erased at the plate on the Williams' single. However, this play let the two other runners sneak in an extra base and they romped home on Hack's single.

Lanier got himself into the third inning jam by plunking Cavarretta on the right arm, after which Nicholson beat out a bunt on the cabbage patch infield. Secory sacrificed and nobody was retired because Hopp's throw to third arrived too late. This was where Jurisich took over in behalf of Lanier but the rescuer didn't have much luck. Pafko singled to score Cavarretta and, after Merullo had popped out, Williams singled Nicholson and Secory across.

Thereafter the Cubs were modest about their hitting but nevertheless got results. Nicholson walked in the fifth and scored on Pafko's third single. In the ninth Donnelly fumbled Johnson's tap with two out, Nicholson walked. This pair galloped home on Secory's double.

Nicholson Hits 32d Home Run.

Derringer started the second game well enough by retiring the first batter to face him but there were immediate indications of distress. Garms singled to right and Musial walked, after which Walker Cooper singled to score the former. This was nothing compared to what happened a moment later. Sanders dropped his No. 11 homer atop the right field roof to make it 4 to 0.

The Cubs' ninth began with Nicholson poling No. 32 onto the right field pavilion and fresh complications arose when George Fallon threw wild to first on Dom Dallessandro's grounder. Pafko kept the argument going by singling and after Merullo had fanned, Williams also singled, Dallessandro scoring. But Lou Novikoff, batting for Red Lynn, fanned and Hack fouled to Kurowski.

BOB WIESE, Michigan's full back and captain, and Tail Back Bob Nussbaumer agree that Notre Dame's Creighton Miller is the best back they ever have faced. . . . As to men on their own side, Wiese votes for Bill Daley and Nussbaumer for Elroy Hirsch. . . . Charley Grimm.

Cubs fans still are chuckling over an act put on by Charley Grimm in Wrigley field the other day. . . . Charley trotted out to the plate to differ with Umpire Lee Ballanfant on a strike called on Roy Hughes. . . . Ballanfant warned Grimm that if he made one squawk he would be sent away for the day. . . . The Cub pilot turned his back on the arbiter and said in a loud voice to Hughes: "What's wrong with you, Roy? That was a good pitch; why it bounced over the outside corner of the plate. If you were alert you could have golfed it as far as second base." . . . Grimm then returned to his coaching spot at third base and went thru the motions of a dub golfer taking a cut at the ball. . . . But he stayed on the field. . . . New Orleans newspapers, warring on handbooks, have discontinued the publication of racing entries, results, and selections. . . . Harold Breeding of the New York Giants' farm at Bristol, Tenn., was voted the outstanding pitcher in the Appalachian league. He won 14 games, lost 7, and struck out 180. . . . George Vogler, former line star at Oklahoma A. & M., is coaching the naval station eleven in New Orleans. Udo Jansen, who represented Little Rock in the recent East-West boys' baseball game in the Polo Grounds, now is playing first base for his home town club in the Southern association. . . . The Philadelphia Athletics were counting heavily on post-war help from Pitcher Phil Marchildon, the Canadian boy who has been reported missing in air operations over Europe. . . . Phil won 17 games for the tail-end A.'s in 1942.

Frank Hayman of Chicago shot a hole in one on Timber Trail's No. 4 the other day. . . . In the foursome following him was his son, Bob, home on leave from the navy. . . . Bob's tee shot on the same hole stopped within a foot of the cup. . . . George Wilson, who led the Chicago Bears to their 24 to 21 triumph over the College All-Stars, is a cousin of Bill De Correvont, former northwestern half back, . . . Bill is a chief petty officer stationed at Norfolk, Va. . . . Eddie Hoblit, former golf professional at the Maplewood Country club in Lincoln, Ill., played 18 holes on one leg at Hamilton, Mont., where he now is employed. . . . The fact that he had been on crutches for weeks because of a broken leg simplified his chore.

This Time of Year.

I asked half a dozen women
How they'd spent the week-end—well,
I got the same answer from all of them,
"I stayed home and put up our jell."

From all the houses along the street
Exudes that heavenly smell:
All the good housewives busy
At their task of "putting up jell."

And I know what those mothers were thinking
As they slowly stirred the spoon,
"Eddie was always so fond of this—
I hope he'll have some of it soon."

These are the simple American things
Reassuring us all is well.
The women, with all that they've gone thru,
Still busy there "putting up jell"!

Loves of Yesteryear.

Where are my loves of yesteryear,
The rugged trail, the flying deer?
With dying moons these things have flown
The while my heart has older grown.

Where are those hills I used to know,
Those hidden glens where flowers grow?
Where in the world, my yesterdays,
And where the youth that sang their

The bluff and bay that lured my mind—
And there they gleam: the hills and sea;
And years have made the change . . .

The Prodigal.

I disobeyed His law day after day,
Following passion's voice persist-

I ridiculed my friends who knelt to pray,
Proud of my haughty infidelity;
But when the flame of passion had burned out,
Leaving its residue of black remorse,
All of my self-assurance turned to doubt,
Making a deadly hazard of life's course.

And so I brought my wasted life to God,
Asking His mercy on my sordid soul,
What tho He humbled me with scourge and rod,
Exacting the last farthing of sin's
toll.
But lo, the Master drew me to His breast,
Where I, a lost sheep, found a lasting rest. T. E. B.

ONWENTSIA PRO LEADS IN STATE GOLF WITH 70

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

George Smith, the Aberdeen, Scotland, veteran who is now in his 15th season at Lake Forest's Onwentsia club, yesterday led the first 18 holes in the 22d annual tournament of the Illinois Professional Golfers' association at Waukegan's Glen Flora club. George and Jack Grout, Greenacres' tall, black haired expert, were the only men in the field to solve the perplexing problems offered by the club which was originally laid out by Willie Marshall, the man for whom the events championship trophy is named.

Smith finished the opening round of the 54 hole task, last 36 of which will be played today, with a neat 70, two under Glen Flora's par, in spite of bogeys on the last two holes. Shortly thereafter, Grout came home with a 71 which included a penalty stroke at the 370 yard 14th and a 4 on the 180 yard home hole.

Thirteen Shoot 75 or Better.

Their predecessors in scoring ranged on until the final reckoning for the day revealed that 13 starters had shot 75 or better, auguring for an interesting finish today. Only entrant in the field to match par of 72 was bespectacled Al Huske of Glen Oak. Tied at 73 were Sam Bernardi, Old Elm's popular pro, and Eddie Williams, the Bryn Mawr star who holds the National P. G. A. seniors' title. The 74 bracket was headed by Jim Foulis, the slender Ruth Lake master of the irons, who needed two 37s in his opening defense of the title he won on the same course last year.

Amateurs Join in Tourney.

The first round of the professional event was joined with a special pro-amateur tourney in which two Glen Flora members collaborated with each pro. Tied with best ball scores of 66 were Montressor and Dr. H. C. Hoag, 31—35—55; Montressor and E. W. Kraft, 31—35—55; Harcke and George Macklin, 34—32—66; Huske and F. Apeland, 36—30—66; Paletti and Lester Morris, 32—34—66; Williams and Howard Guthrie, 34—32—66, and Williams and Lyle Price, 34—32—66.

Nelson Wins Texas Open by Ten Strokes!

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 10 (AP).—The birdies sang again today for Byron Nelson and he scored another par smashing round to win the second annual Texas victory open with 276, leaving his rivals far behind.

Nelson had seven birdies on the last round, five of them on the incoming nine, which he shot in 31. Harold [Jug] McSpaden of Philadelphia, Nelson's closest competitor for the top award of $2,000, faltered for a 74 and wound up with 286 for second place, worth $1,400.

Tied for third and winning $900 each were Ray Mangrum of Beverly Hills, Cal., and Lt. Ben Hogan of Fort Worth army air field. They shot 288s.

Nelson's earnings today brought his total in war bonds on the summer tour to $39,334, maturity value, for an all-time record. McSpaden, second high winner, ran his total to $25,200.

Corp. Earl Stewart of Fort Worth army air field was low amateur and finished in fifth place with 290, a stroke ahead of another amateur, A. C. January of Dallas. Leonard Dodson of Kansas City and Sgt. E. J. Harrison of Wright field, Dayton, O., tied for the next spot with 292 each.

A gallery of 10,000 was at No. 18 when Nelson came in with a 25 foot putt for his final birdie.

AMMUNITION TO BE SOLD TODAY—WITH POLICE AID

A downtown Chicago store which will start selling hunting ammunition today has applied for police protection and has asked that five policemen be provided to patrol the area, it was revealed last night.

It was disclosed that the store will ration the shells, two boxes to a customer, as contrasted to the four box limit allowed by the WPB rulings. This compares with a Lake Forest store, which is rationing the shells one box to a customer, and to a Detroit store which limits purchases to ten shells.

BROWNS WIN, 6-2, THEN LOSE TO SOX IN 11TH

Grove's Triple Nets 3 to 2 Triumph.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[BOX SCORE ON NEXT PAGE.]

Skeeter Webb's single and Orval Grove's triple off Denny Galehouse with nobody out in the 11th inning of the second game of yesterday's double header before 18,646 in Comiskey park, gave the White Sox a 3 to 2 decision over the St. Louis Browns.

This left the Browns where they started the day's business—in third place, a game pack of the Yankees and a half game back of the Tigers. By taking the first game, 6 to 2, the Browns had gone into a second place tie with the Yankees, with both the Browns and Yankees trailing the Tigers by a half game. These three teams and the fourth place Red Sox all split double headers.

The success in the second game gave the Sox their first series over a contending club since they took three out of five from the Yankees on July 22, 23, and 24, and their second successful series over any competition since Aug. 4.

Sox Bear Down on Browns.

The Sox played brilliantly thruout the set with the Browns, thus proving, perhaps, that they might themselves be in the thick of the sizzling fight if they hadn't suffered from drooping bloomers or fresh air fatigue so many days and nights this summer.

The first run of yesterday's second game was scored in the fourth inning on a lead off homer by Hal Trosky against Sigmund Jakucki. The Sox had wasted a lead-off single by Wally Moses in the first, a lead-off triple by Thurman Tucker in the second, and a single with one down by LeRoy Schalk in the third. After singles by Moses, Schalk, and Ralph Hodgin had produced a run with one down in the fifth, Sam Zoldak replaced Jakucki, and started a double play to retire the side with Schalk still on third.

Kreevich's Homer Ties It.

The Browns got to Joe Haynes for a run in the sixth on a double by Don Gutteridge, Mike Kreevich's fly and an error by Hodgin. They tied in at 2-2 with two down in the eighth when Kreevich bashed a homer.

Haynes disappeared in the course of a Sox threat in the ninth. Guy Curtright opened against George Caster with a single to left. Mike Tresh fanned but Webb singled and when Kreevich juggled the ball, Curtright got to third. Ed Carnett batted for Haynes and Galehouse replaced Caster. Galehouse tossed out Carnett and then loaded the bases with an intentional pass to Moses. Vern Stephens slapped down Schalk's grounder toward center, recovered the ball, and slid into second base in time to force Moses.

It's No. 13 for Orval.

The Sox made a big bid to end the game in the tenth, in which Hodgin singled and Curtright doubled.

Grove, who accounted for his 13th victory, his first since he beat the Yankees on Aug. 13, pitched two innings, yielding one hit, a lead-off single by Al Zarilla in the eleventh.

The Sox made their two runs off Nelson Potter in the first inning of the first game. Moses walked and advanced on Schalk's sacrifice. Wally stole third and scored on Hodgin's fly. Trosky dropped a double back of third and scored on Tucker's single to right center. Tucker stole second and Carnett was given an intentional pass. Then Tucker and Carnett executed a double steal but the effort was wasted when Tresh grounded out.

Humphries Starts Strong.

Johnny Humphries retired the first nine batsmen he faced, but got nicked for a run in the fourth. Gutteridge singled and was forced by Kreevich. Al Zarilla grounded out, but Vern Stephens singled to center, scoring Kreevich.

Stephens opened the seventh with a double to center and scored the tying run on Mike Chartak's double to right. Chartak scored on Byrnes' single to center.

Gordon Maltzberger pitched the last two innings. A walk to Chartak, a single by Byrnes, a double by Frank Mancuso, and a single by Gutteridge netted three runs.

REDSKINS WIN OVER BEARS ON PASSES, 21 TO 7

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 10 (AP).—The Washington Redskins showed the Chicago Bears how the T formation should be played today in a National Football league pre-season exhibition in Baltimore stadium, beating the world champions, 21 to 7.

A crowd of 35,000 saw Sammy Baugh and his mates come from behind with two aerial produced touchdowns in the second quarter after Chicago had smashed into a 7 pdint lead. Mike Micka intercepted one of Johnny Long's passes in the fourth quarter and sped 55 yards for Washington's final score.

Chicago began its touchdown drive as the first period ended. On the opening play of the second quarter, Bear Half Back Henry Margaritz grabbed a 10 yard toss from Long and reached the Redskin 17. Jim Fordham got nine yards, Al Grygo made it first down on the 2, then Fordham rammed across. Pete Guadauskas place kicked the extra point.

Take Lead in Last Minute.

Washington came right back to the Bear 24, where Frank Akins fumbled, but a few minutes later the Redskins made up for it. Baugh passed ten yards to Steve Bagarus on the Bear 49 and on the next play Sammy rifled a pass to Joe Aguirre, who caught the ball on the 21 and ran over.

With less than a minute of the half left, Bagarus returned a Bear punt to the Chicago 33. Bob Seymour shot 13 yards to the 20, and on second down, Baugh fired another toss to Bagarus who took it on the 13 and galloped across.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 10 [Special].—The Green Bay Packers won their second straight exhibition game of the season today, defeating the Boston Yankees, newest member of the National Football league, 28 to 0.

Two blocked kicks led to two Packer scores in the opening period, Harry Jucunski scoring on a pass and Buford Ray on a recovery. Paul Duhart counted the third Green Bay touchdown in the second, going over tackle from the 3. Lou Brock's short pass to Irv Comp brought the final points in the third period.

GEORGE HUGHES, ELECTRIC STOVE INVENTOR, DIES

Funeral Rites Tomorrow at Riverside.

Services for George Alexander Hughes, 71, chairman of the Edison General Electric Appliance Company, Inc., and inventor of the electric stove, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the First Presbyterian church, Riverside. He died late Saturday night in St. Luke's hospital.

Geo. A. Hughes.

Born in Monticello, Ia., he later was taken by his father to Bismarck, N. D., where he spent his boyhood and eventually became a newspaper reporter with the Bismarck Tribune. Later, as city editor, he was instrumental in getting his father, the state's first attorney general, to seek a franchise from the town council to serve electricity to all homes.

Enters Utility Business.

When the petition was granted, Hughes and his brother, Edmund A., organized a company operating plants in North Dakota, Montana, and Minnesota. A few years later, he sold his utility interests to his brother and came to Chicago to find an electrician who would help him build a "wire cooker."

By February, 1909, Hughes had converted an oil cook stove to an electric stove in a small loft on South Dearborn street. A year later, he displayed his invention to a group of pioneer electrical men in St. Louis, Mo., and within another year the first company to make and sell electric cooking equipment—the Hughes Electric Heating company—was organized in Chicago.

President of Firm Until 1940.

A factory site was obtained at 5600 Taylor st., and in 1918 Hughes engineered a merger by which he took control of the Hotpoint Heating Appliance company, and General Electric became owner of the new company, adding its heating appliance division to the combination. Hughes became president of the new company, a title he held until 1940 when he retired to become chairman of the board.

In his last year as president, Hughes received the Modern Pioneer award of the National Association of Manufacturers, and later that same year the McGraw award given to the man adjudged as contributing the most to his industry.

Long Head of Boys' Club.

Hughes served as president of the Chicago Boys' club for many years, and upon his retirement founded the Chicago Boys' Club foundation.

He is survived by his widow, Meta Scharkopf Hughes, 223 Bloomingbank rd., Riverside; a daughter, Mrs. Mary Call, Chicago; three brothers, Edmund A., Bismarck, N. D., Frank C., Minneapolis, and William V., Evanston, and a sister, Mrs. Atherton Richards, Washington, D. C.

ASSAIL CHANGE IN MANAGEMENT OF C. & E. I. ROAD

Viewed as Proof of Jones' Influence.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Election of Holly Stover as president of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad, reportedly thru the influence of Chairman Jesse Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, was the subject of sharp criticism yesterday by stockholders and shippers using the road. Directors on Friday made Stover, widely known Washington, D. C., coal man, president and elevated Charles O'Neal from president to chairman of the board.

Jesse Jones.

Before leaving on a business trip to New York on Saturday, John L. Markham, Chicago coal and oil operator, said the board's action had stopped his recent efforts to block the appointment. However, he expects to enlist support from stockholders for a fight on the matter at the next annual meeting, which will be in May, 1945.

Hold Jones Influenced Election.

Markham, who holds 3,300 shares of C. & E. I. preferred and common stock and $95,000 of income bonds, declared that Stover's appointment was brought about by Jones' influence. Others conversant with the road's affairs said that Jones used his influence on behalf of Stover. Spokesman for the C. & E. I. management have denied that Jones intruded in the road's affairs.

The RFC holds approximately 10 million dollars of the C. & E. I.'s bonds, the investment having been made when the road was in financial difficulties. Stover is said to be a close friend of the RFC chairman.

In launching his attack on the Stover appointment, Markham declared that he had nothing against Stover but he believed that the president of the C. & E. I. should be a man having broad practical railroad operating experience in the area served by the line. He favored retention of the present management, at least until the May annual meeting. He urged that if the board decided to choose some one else it pick a practical railroad man.

Ran Seized Peoria Road.

Stover's business career for the greater part has been in the sales end of the coal business, an activity in which he is reputed to have been successful. He is listed as a vice president of the Gulf, Mobile and Ohio railroad, which has its headquarters in Mobile, Ala., altho he has resided in Washington for many years. In January, 1943, Stover was made federal manager of the Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad which the government seized from George P. McNear Jr. after labor troubles.

Markham backed the O'Neal management of the C. & E. I. in a proxie battle last spring in which V. V. Boatner, a director, sought to gain control of the road. In that fight Boatner charged repeatedly that Jesse Jones had "improperly used his influence" on the conduct of the road's affairs.

Boatner brought his charges to the senate and after extended hearings a senate interstate commerce subcommittee headed by Sen. Johnson [D., Col.] said there was no basis for the allegation. Boatner later asked that the Johnson report be set aside and that the entire senate interstate commerce committee investigate his charges.

Assailed by Hoosier Group.

In the C. & E. I. proxy fight Markham brought in about 27,000 votes in favor of the management.

Backing up Markham's efforts either to retain the present management or to get a practical railroad man were eight prominent Evansville, Ind., shippers and manufacturers. The Evansville men in a joint statement said they had a wide interest in the road and wanted to see it in the hands of good management. Markham said that he has the support of Terre Haute coal interests with mines in the C. & E. I. territory.

One important C. & E. I. shipper declared that the Stover appointment was evidence of how RFC political influence can be extended into private business operation. He said that by appointing his own men to key business positions the RFC chairman is in a position to dictate the policies of private businesses to the advantage of the administration. He also declared that the Stover appointment had vindicated Boatner's charges that the C. & E. I. has been subjected to Jones' influence.

Hits Maverick Plans for Big War Plants

The proposal of Maury Maverick, director of the Smaller War Plants corporation, to sell the larger government owned war plants to private groups for conversion after the war into small units as "industrial apartment houses" sounds good in theory, but would be uneconomical in practice, a Chicago business man closely identified with manufacturing said yesterday.

The cost of conversion; availability of distribution and loading facilities; heating, ventilation, and lighting problems, and numerous other factors must be considered when planning such an enterprise, the business man explained.

Exact Floor Space Sought.

One of the chief obstacles would be the filling of the individual small manufacturer's needs in carrying out such a project, he said. He explained that when a producer seeks space for his business operations he is interested primarily in a building or floor space that will fill his exact needs, and that he also will have an eye on additional space available in the future to take care of expansion.

In the "apartment house" type of industrial building, he probably would have difficulty in obtaining the right size space, and would be unable to plan for expansion.

"A producer does not mind carrying an additional land value, but not additional building value, which is much more costly, in the expectation of future expansion," he explained.

Community Need a Factor.

An important factor is the need of the community for such industry; whether it could support the additional industrial capacity. He gave an example of this type of planning in one middle west community, where the present war plant space is equal to the other industrial space used by the community's industry in peace time.

One industrialist had an idea to make two floors of the present single story, high ceilinged war plant, doubling the building's floor space, which would mean tripling the space available to industry in the community. This certainly would be a most uneconomical peace time venture in a community with a small labor force, the business man explained.

"Unless there is a business boom after the war there will not be a demand for 'second hand' buildings," he asserted. "Manufacturers will need custom built buildings with their attendant economies."

Conveniences Draw Interest.

Another thing the wise producer will be interested in is distribution service and warehousing, which may not be available in the case of a made-over big war plant on a branch railroad line.

"Unless the conversion of the big war plants can be done economically to fit a customer's needs it is better to write the plants off as costs of war," he said. "The main considerations must be the availability of raw materials, the labor market, and nearness to the consuming public."

FAIR EARNINGS CUT BY TAXES AS SALES INCREASE

Sales of The Fair, Chicago department store, increased 1.4 per cent in the 26 weeks from Jan. 31 to July 29 compared with last year, but profit for the period was lower, Hector Suyker, president, reported yesterday. He said sales totaled $10,588,722 against $10,439,591 in the corresponding 1943 period.

Net income for the period was $138,086 against $222,550 a year earlier. Provision for federal income and excess profits taxes was increased to $576,905 from $466,134 a year ago. In both periods the company set aside a reserve of $150,000 for possible post-war readjustments.

After a refund of $7,784,050 to the government as the result of renegotiation proceedings, the Midvale company, 61.45 per cent owned subsidiary of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, earned $2,475,843 in 1943, equal to $4.12 a share of capital stock, the company's annual report said. Net income in 1942 was $2,582,941, or $4.30 a share.

FINNISH NICKEL HOLDING.

How large is the International Nickel company's investment in Finland and what is its present status? —I. A.

International Nickel Company of Canada up to the end of 1939 had spent $6,723,908 thru a subsidiary in developing a nickel mine in the Petsamo area of northern Finland and in constructing a hydroelectric power plant and smelter in connection with the project. The plans calling for start of production by the autumn of 1940 were interrupted by the outbreak of the Russian-Finnish war.

The company withdrew its American and Canadian employes from Finland at that time. A reserve for the full amount of the investment in that country was set up in the company's balance sheet.

Whether International Nickel's subsidiary will be able to resume development of the property and operate it as originally planned is not clear. The possibilities in this connection may be affected by the outcome of the peace negotiations between Finland and Russia.

FOREMEN VOTE FOR STRIKE IN 14 MORE MINES

Charleston, W. V., Sept. 10 (AP).—Mine supervisors at 14 additional West Virginia soft coal mines voted today to strike immediately, boosting to more than 10,000 the number of idle at 31 mines because of demands for recognition of their union.

The latest strikes, concentrated in Raleigh and Wyoming counties in West Virginia, followed a meeting of foremen at Beckley, where John McAlpine, president of the bosses' union, declared that the men would remain idle until they either received a contract from the operators or until the mines were seized by the government.

Seventeen other mines in West Virginia had previously struck as a result of efforts by the United Clerical, Technical and Supervisory Employes' union, a branch of the United Mine Workers, to gain recognition.

U. S. DEATH TAX MAKES BIG CUT IN KNOX ESTATE

About $700,000 Goes to Government.

Death taxes will take about $700,000 of the 2 million dollar estate left by Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, it was reported yesterday. Executors of the estate are conducting negotiations for the sale of the estate's holding in the Daily News.

An inventory of the assets has not been made public, but it is indicated that the estate consists almost entirely of the interest in the newspaper.

Held Voting Control.

At the time of his death Knox owned 149,941 shares of common stock in the publishing company which has 400,000 common shares outstanding. His direct holdings were 5,301 shares, the remainder represented by a 64 per cent ownership of the Daneco corporation, a holding company which owned 226,000 shares of Daily News common stock. By controling Daneco the publisher voted 51 per cent of the stock of the publishing company.

At currently quoted prices the Daily News stock owned by Daneco has an indicated value of $3,164,000. The Knox estate's 64 per cent interest is worth about 2 million dollars on this basis.

Altho the executors have confered with a number of prospective purchasers it is reported that there is little likelihood of an early sale of the Knox holdings. The federal estate tax, which constitutes most of the death taxes, is payable within 15 months of death. In hardship cases the internal revenue commissioner can grant an extension of time within which to pay the tax. In this event the estate is obligated to pay interest to the government on the unpaid balance.

Tries to Form Syndicate.

Adlai Stevenson, a Chicago attorney, is reported to be trying to organize a syndicate to purchase the Knox holdings. Stevenson was an assistant to Knox while the latter was secretary of the navy. The Stevenson family controls the Bloomington [Ill.] Pantagraph. Stevenson is said to be seeking syndicate subscriptions in units of $100,000.

Earlier this summer the Scripps-Howard interests and John S. Knight, publisher of newspapers in Detroit and Akron, O., were mentioned as possible purchasers. Both have indicated, however, that they are not considering bidding on the property. More recently the names of George F. Getz and Philip K. Wrigley have figured in the discussions. Getz, who is Wrigley's brother-in-law, is said to be interested, but is not believed to have made a bid.

Tax Rates Are a Factor.

Present corporation tax rates are an important element in the Daily News situation. Taxes on corporation earnings were only a fraction of their present rates when Knox purchased control of the property in 1931. As a result he was able to pay a substantial part of the purchase price out of earnings of the publishing company. Earnings for this purpose would be available to a very limited degree under present tax rates.

Under the Knox will the entire estate was left to his widow, Annie Reid Knox. She is one of three executors, the others being Laird Bell, the publisher's attorney, and Holman D. Pettibone, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company.

People and Events

A. H. Meyer, manager of the midland sales district of General Electric company, yesterday announced that Philip C. Sowersby had become sales promotion manager for the company's lamp department in Chicago. Sowersby formerly was lighting sales engineer for General Electric in Detroit.

Ralph S. Damon, vice president and general manager of American Airlines, will address the aviation insurance committee of the American Bar association tomorrow in the Medinah club.

Kol-Master corporation, producer of stokers, announced that R. E. Bressler, former vice president and chief engineer, had been elected president to succeed the late Joseph F. Reed. Henry G. Wickham was named vice president and Joseph C. Reed, secretary.

Myron R. Hilb has been promoted to assistant vice president of W. A. Alexander & Co., insurance firm.

Shearson, Hammill & Co., member of leading security and commodity exchanges, announced that Kenneth F. Dietz is associated with the New York office as special research analyst. Dietz formerly was acting head of E. F. Hutton & Co.'s research department.

Ward R. Schafer has been appointed general sales manager of Edison General Electric Appliance company.

Twin City Tax Plan Termed More Realistic

The Twin Cities post-war tax plan, which proposes reduced federal levies on individual income, relatively high corporate income taxes, and an alternate 5 per cent sales tax, is more realistic and equitable than the Ruml plan, John L. Connolly, secretary and general counsel of the Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing company, yesterday told the tax committee of the American Bar association in the Drake hotel.

Points Out Difference.

One of the authors of the Twin Cities plan, Connolly said the chief difference between that proposal and that advanced by Beardsley Ruml, treasurer of R. H. Macy & Co., is that the Twin Cities program calls for the reduction of individual income tax rates and continuation of current normal and surtax rates on corporations up to 40 per cent, while the Ruml plan would abolish all corporate taxes except a 5 per cent franchise tax.

"Ruml estimates 1 billion dollars of revenue will be obtained a year from the corporation tax, while the Twin Cities plan estimates a 5 billion dollar yield from this source," Connolly said. "Both plans suggest individual tax rates. The Twin City plan proposes to raise from individual taxes a maximum of 7.8 billion dollars, while the Ruml plan estimates this source will yield 13 billion dollars annually.

Questions Income Estimate.

"Even allowing for the fact that Ruml's estimate of the national income in the post-war period is 140 billion dollars while the Twin Cities plan uses 120 billion dollars as its basis, there is doubt in my mind that the individual income tax rates proposed by Ruml will produce the estimated 13 billion dollars."

Connally said treasury department estimates show that it would require the present all-time high individual income tax rates, exclusive of the new 3 per cent normal tax, rather than Ruml's proposed rates, which are much lower, to produce 13 billion on a national income of 140 billion.

Spiegel Sales in August Top 1943 by 26 Per Cent

Spiegel, Inc., yesterday reported net sales for August were $3,061,610, an increase of 26 per cent over year ago August sales of $2,421,623.

30,000 VEHICLES PUT ON SALE FOR ARMY BY SURPLUS OFFICE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 10 (AP).—Plans for immediate disposal thru regular sales channels of 30,000 assorted surplus army vehicles were announced today by the treasury department office of surplus property.

The lot consists of approximately 2,000 passenger cars, 9,000 motorcycles, and 19,000 trucks, the latter including command cars, pickup trucks, weapon carriers, dump and cargo, station wagons, and ambulances.

Lee W. Moran, director of the office's automotive division, said essential users such as farmers, produce haulers, and others who need the used vehicles should apply to their county AAA farm transportation committee, or regional offices of the WPB, petroleum administrator for war, or the office of defense transportation which are authorized to issue certificates up to the number of vehicles available.

Sales must be negotiated thru dealers, the department explained, but holders of certificates may accompany their dealer to army camps to inspect the vehicle they wish to buy. Applications will be handled in the order received from essential users.

Maverick Urges Small Plant Conversion Early

Washington, D. C., Sept. 10 (AP).—Small plants should be allowed to reconvert promptly to civilian production as war orders are finished or terminated, without waiting for large plants to complete their orders, Maury Maverick, chairman of the Smaller War Plants corporation, said today in a bi-monthly report to congress. He said small plants "could not withstand a period of enforced idleness, and many would face bankruptcy."

PERSONAL LOANS

LOWER MONTHLY PAYMENTS LOWER TOTAL CHARGES

Learn how you can SAVE enough on a $150 Loan for one year to buy a $25 War Bond!

For a 12 mo $100 LOAN — At Usual Small Loan Rate, You Pay $20.84; At Merchandise Bank You Pay Only 8.00; YOU SAVE $12.84

For a 12 mo $200 LOAN — At Usual Small Loan Rate, You Pay $39.52; At Merchandise Bank You Pay Only 16.00; YOU SAVE $23.52

Why Pay more THAN THIS LOW COST?

*Savings shown apply to "signature only" loans repaid in 12 monthly installments, cost to be deducted in advance. You can save even more if you borrow with one co-maker. In either case, you save at least half of usual and lawful Small Loan Charges.

IF—for borrowing $100 you've had to repay 12 payments of $10.07 each—that amounts to $120.84—which is $20.84 more than you borrowed. And $20.84, therefore, is what that loan cost you.

That same amount, $100, at Merchandise Bank would cost you only $8.00—on your signature only. It would cost you only $5.50—with one co-maker. So—here you would save at least $12.84—or as much as $15.34—depending on which plan you borrow.

Money In Your Pocket

What you save, in either case, is money in your pocket. It amounts to nearly as much as two payments on your loan. That's the difference between usual small loan charges and Merchandise Bank's extremely low rates.

If you need a loan, or want to reduce present borrowing costs, get in touch with Merchandise Bank. There's no need to take time off your job. Simply phone Whitehall 4500, or write, and everything can be quickly and confidentially arranged.
